400 Attend Regional Workshop

The Sikeston Public Schools were co-sponsores of a Regional Reading Workshop, with the Science Research Associates of Chicago, Ill., Saturday at the Senior High School. The workshop brought out over 400 teachers in elementary schools in grades one through nine, from Kentucky, western Tennessee, northern Arkansas, southern Illinois and southeast Missouri.

Due to the large number of teachers present separate sessions held simultaneously in three rooms on the high school campus, with average attendance of over 100 at each session, beginning at 9 a.m. and convening at 3 p.m.

Supt. Lynn Twitty, Sikeston, welcomed the large group of teachers, with three outstate instructors as the principal speakers. The keynoter was Mrs. Bernice T. Clark, director of reading, Maryvale school system, Buffalo, N.Y. Group leaders for other sessions were, Otto McClintock, reading coordinator, University City (Mo.) public school system, and director of a Ford Foundation grant in their school system. The second group leader was J. Kendall Hoggard, director of instruction, Eldorado City (Ark.) city schools.

The one day session went on harmoniously without a hitch and a 30-minute coffee break was held from 10:15 to 10:45 in the cafetorium. The sessions were held in two of the common rooms and the cafetorium.

Mrs. Clark, the keynoter, addressing junior high school teachers and administrators, used as her subject, "Principles and Concepts of Teaching Reading." She pointed out the methods and techniques of correlating reading with other content subjects such as a history, science, etc., and that reading overlaps in all subject areas. She stated that "there is much emphasis placed on need for individualized instruction in reading in elementary grades, which can be brought about through improved grouping methods."

In Mrs. Clark's address she stressed these meetings were to present some of the new methods of teaching reading, and how these methods may be inserted in our present program to improve instructions. The new methods are due to the tremendous increase of elementary students over the nation and the broadening of the subject matter now taught in the schools.

Mr. Hoggard discussed current methods of teaching reading in grades four, five and six. He emphasized the fact that where one method is not successful, for the teacher to try another, as there were a number of current methods of teaching reading which are quite effective. He stressed the necessity of effective grouping, according to a child's reading ability. "This can be determined," said Mr. Hoggard, "by a number of standardized reading tests available."

Mr. McClintock, who spoke in the cafetorium to teachers of grade one through grade three, pointed out the revolutionary methods of teaching reading on his subject, "Initial Teaching Alphabet." He stated that this method was developed in England and is now used to teach over 200,000 children in schools all over the United States.

"The topic of discussion is a new phonetic method which is supposed to simplify our present use of phonetics in teaching reading. "The method is to spell a word as it sounds phonetically, such as the syllables 'tion', 'sion', 'scion', would be spelled "shun."

Fine Leadership For Scouts

The Scouting program for boys and girls have good reason to thank Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Crites for the interest they have shown to youth during these past years.

Mrs. Crites is presently the leader of Brownie Troop #233 and has been with this group for two years. Their daughter, Cathy, is a second year Brownie. Mrs. Crites has also taken the leaders' training course in preparation for her work with the Brownies.

Mr. Crites is with the State Highway Department and he and his wife have taken an active interest in Boy Scouting. They have four sons, three who have earned their Eagle rank with the Palms. Each of the boys belong to the Order of the Arrow, one having received the Vigil honor, two having served as Lodge Chief and as camping counselors. The fourth son is now a Star Scout in Troop #41 in Sikeston. Mr. Crites has completed twelve years of Scouting, ten being in adult work.

The Crites family attend the Welsey Methodist Church.

The Girl Scout Council of Sikeston wishes to take this opportunity to say "thank you" to this family for their past work and continued interest in scouting in our community.

Mrs. Ralph W. Patton has been the assistant leader of Brownie Troop #233 for the past year. The Pattons have three children, two sons, Ralph and David, who are former scouts and a daughter, Susie, who is a first year Brownie. Mrs. Patton has also served four years as a Den Mother.

Mr. Patton is cotton buyer and the family attend the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

Former Sports Editor Injured And Is Critical

Bob Evans, former sports editor of the Standard, had a head-on collision with a tractor trailer truck Friday according to reports from the Highway Patrol of Illinois.

The accident occurred about three miles from Thebes "Y". He was taken to the St. Johns Hospital in St. Louis and is reported to be in critical condition and is still unconscious. He suffered multiple fractures of the arms and head.

The driver of the truck was James F. Simon of Clinton, Ky. He did not suffer any injuries. The truck is owned by the Edwards Trucking Company and was loaded with lambs. The truck was headed north when the accident occurred.

Four Persons Killed Over Weekend

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents in Missouri over the weekend.

Two died Sunday in a head-on collision at the crest of a hill on Highway 129 ten miles north of Buclin.

The dead were Ralph Oral Epperly, 56, the driver of one car, and his passenger, Ruby Lucine Boone, 46, both of New Boston, Mo.

The driver of the other car, Don Watson Bailey, 20, and a passenger in his car, Arthur Dale Adams, both of Brookfield, Mo., were hospitalized at Marceline.

A 15-year-old Kirksville boy was killed Sunday in the collision of the car in which he was riding and a Wabash freight train at a crossing in Kirksville. The victim, Richard Bruce McAlister, was a passenger in the car driven by his father, Bruce Morris McAlister, 44. The father and two other children were injured seriously.

The accident happened at a crossing about three blocks from the McAlister home.

Engineer Willard Russ of Moberly, told officers McAlister apparently did not see or hear the train although he blew the whistle and rang the bell.

William J. Murray, Pittsburg, Kan., was found dead Sunday in a car that had struck a bridge on a rural road about 12 miles southwest of Lamar, Mo., and 13 miles east of Pittsburg. The car plunged into about three feet of water.

Barton County officers said Murray drowned. They said the accident was not discovered until noon Sunday.

EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital over this past weekend.

William C. Corlew, Essex, Mo., injured in accident; Walter Bowman, New Madrid, Mo., shot foot during target practice; and Lloyd Merick, Sikeston, bitten by coon.

Hearing Is Expected To End Today

DALLAS (AP) — Qualified observers expect a court hearing today to end with an order for a sanity trial of Jack Ruby, the man condemned for killing presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown, who sentenced Ruby to death nearly a year ago, summoned lawyers for both sides under an order from the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to "judicially determine" the prisoner's mental state.

Ruby, a former night spot operator whose 54th birthday is March 25, has not been outside the Dallas County Jail for more than 10 months.

He was convicted last March 14 for the slaying of Oswald. It took place in the Dallas City Hall basement Nov. 24, 1963, two days after the assassination of President Kennedy. Oswald was being moved from the city to county jail.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, highest tribunal in the state on noncivil matters, issued instructions two weeks ago for Brown to find out whether Ruby is sane. It deferred hearing arguments on an appeal of his conviction until this information is provided by the tiral judge.

Defense counsel has contended Ruby's mental condition has deteriorated during his stay behind bars. Dist. Atty. Henry Wade has said his staff will argue Ruby is sane.

11 Accidents Occur Over Weekend

The state highway patrol reported 11 accidents, with one injury, but no fatalities over the weekend.

In Advance city limits Saturday at 4 p.m., a 1956 Plymouth driven by John Denning, 72, Advance, met a 1957 Ford driven by Jerrell Ladd, 19, at an unmarked intersection. The Dunning car struck the Ladd car in the side, with Dunming given a summons for not yielding the right-of-way. Neither of the two drivers received injuries.

Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Chaffee intersection of Hy. 77 and Yokum avenue, that involved three cars. A 1957 Olds driven by Doyle Norwin, 17, and going south, was struck by a 1962 Chevrolet driven by David Lee Halter, 17, route one, Chaffee, was going west. The Norwin car turned left to avoid the Halter car, while a third car, a 1956 Dodge driven by Marilyn Sue Dryeans, 18, Oran, was traveling north. No injuries were

Last Day For Senators To Introduce New Proposals

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Today was the last day for Missouri senators to introduce bills and a flood of new and old proposals was expected.

Included were about 30 bills to put into effect many of the governmental improvements suggested by the state "Little Hoover" Commission.

On the house side representatives were expected to get a new look at the controversial issue of providing school bus rides for parochial and private school pupils. It was shelved by a Senate committee last week.

The House proposal was expected to include a plan to submit the emotionally charged question to the people for a referendum vote.

House members have until March 18 to submit bills.

Another controversy comes up in a Senate committee tonight in the form of a bill to enact a broad public accommodations law in Missouri. The author is the Senate's first Negro member, Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis.

Two tax measures are on the legislative docket this week.

In the House the administration bill to plug a $6 million loophole in the sales tax law and, in effect, make the tax a gross receipts tax, is ready for debate. It was approved by a House committee last week, only a day after it was introduced.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee has before it a bill already passed by the House to authorize interest on income tax refunds owned to some 60,000 taxpayers. It was also recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

A bill to impose a severance tax on minerals taken from Missouri's earth also comes up before the House Mining Committee Wednesday night.

A host of other bills are scheduled for hearings this week-everything from humane slaughter of livestock to measures permitting taller and longer trucks.

Ready for passage in the House is a constitutional amendment recommended by the governor to allow a governor to succeed himself.

Congress Looks At Bill For Assassins Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration submitted to Congress today a bill that would make it a federal crime to assassinate, kidnap or assault a president of the United States.

The bill, submitted by Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, applies also to the vice president or any other officer next in line of succession, the president-elect and the vice president-elect.

A number of similar bills have been submitted by Congressmen and senators since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Katzenbach said the administration bill is designed to implement the recommendation of the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren which investigated the assassination. He said Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon joined him in submitting the bill. Dillon was chairman of a committee appointed by President Johnson to study the report's recommendations.

The proposed law would apply a penalty of death or life imprisonment for killing or kidnaping the president or vice president, and a jail term of up to 15 years for assault.

In a letter to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and House Speaker John W. McCormack, Katzenbach said the Kennedy slaying "focused attention on an anaomaly in federal law: It is not a federal crime to assassinate the president, nor do federal investigative agencies have absolute jurisdiction to investigate the assassination of a president."

City Reports Three Arrests Over Weekend

The city police made three arrests over the weekend. Perry Moore, 327 N. Petty, charged with assault and affray, posted a $25 bond.

Richard Hobbs, 213 Petty, charged with disturbing the peace Saturday, was placed in the city jail.

Della Crawford, 226 N. Ranney, charged with being drunk in public Sunday, was placed in the city jail.

Scott County Students Go To University

MEMPHIS -- Fifteen Scott County students are enrolled for the spring semester at Memphis State University. They are James N. Stearnes, Shirley Anne Adams, Roger E. Cooper, Mara Jane Stacy, Michael V. Wissman, Linda Rex Lambert, Tommye E. Blackwelder, Dianna Frances Chuhak, Toby Ann McConnell, Evelyn Kay Sargent, Charles W. Boyce, Gary Dwayne Fama, Lynette Caskey, Larry Eugene Paylor, and Johnny Blackwelder, all of Sikeston.

University officials said enrollment for the spring term which totals nearly 10,000 students, increased 2,000 students over the same period last year, when about 7,800 students enrolled.

Spring semester classes began February 1 and will end with spring commencement, which will be held May 28.

Classes for the first summer term begin June 9.

Peter Trone To Talk To Sikeston High Students

Peter Trone who is Dean of Admissions for the Culver Summer Schools, operated by Culver Military Academy, will talk to interested Sikeston high school students during their homeroom period tomorrow, Tuesday, March 9, regarding the Theater and Fine Arts School now expanded from the Theater program of the past five years for boys and girls from 14 to 19. The theater facilities of the Eugene Eppley Auditorium at Culver are unsurpassed in the area from New York to Chicago.

This summer all phases of the fine arts will be available for boys and girls alike, in addition, to instruction in sports such as scuba diving, water skiing, swimming in the lake or the olympic pool, tennis, golf, track or baseball.

Mr. Trone will be at Lee Hunter School at 11:15 a.m. to show the film of regular Woodcraft, Naval and Cavalry Schools for interested parents of boys who will be eligible for the program this year or next.

PUTTING IT ON is Bill Hanna at his home on 103 Powers. Bill planted his lawn on top of the blanket of snow received here last week and he used a variety of Rye Grass.

Lawns Seeded On Snow

With the snow that fell here last week many lawns were planted with the seed being dropped on top of the blanket of snow.

Planting on the snow is thought by many to be an advantage. It is felt that the seeds will be carried into the soil as the snow melts. But on reports received from some of the seed dealers here in town this idea is wrong. The melting snow will not carry the seed into the ground, it will just help to seal the seed to the soil.

Most of the planting that has been done so far is with rye grass. This type of grass is mostly annual, which is planted in the spring and dies out in the fall. It will germinate quickly and will produce wide Wazen blades. The price of this type is normally economical and most low priced mixtures contain a heavy mixture of it. Also it is a grass useful in covering bare spots until such time as conditions allow putting in permanent grasses. It is best to sow it thick, (1 lb. per 150 sq. feet) and mow it often to lessen coarseness.

Seeding times come in the early fall, (late August or September), or early spring, (late February or March). In the more northern zones April is sometimes included to start a permanent lawn. At these times, weed competition is less of a problem. Rainfall is more dependable. Longer, cooler nights help early growth. . . Seeding at other times gives less assurance of establishing a permanent lawn.

Here is what is considered five musts for a fine lawn: High quality seeds of the right kind; Seeding at the right time; A good seed bed; Application of well-balanced fertilizer and enough moisture; Follow simple rules for maintenance.

EUROPE'S AUTOMOBILE PROBLEMS

THEY PARK NOW on the sidewalks of the Champs Elysees, and almost anywhere else in Paris they can get away with it. Rome plans construction of a dozen parking garages. A pay-as-you-drive system -- charging fees for the use of congested streets -- has been proposed for London. An airline representative at a recent luncheon of the International Advertising Association in New York City showed a picture of a lovely street in Madrid and said, "Take away the trees and you've got Madison Avenue at noon."

Traffic jams in Rome are so commonplace that drivers roll back their sun roofs, and stand up and stretch. Forbidden to use their horns, Parisians bang furiously on the sides of their vehicles and call each other assassins. London traffic moves more decorously, but it can take an hour and a quarter to drive less than 15 miles at the peak 5-7 p.m. rush hour.

European policemen are notably skilled -- performing with the gestures and much of the elan of concert masters -- at breaking up jams. They see their duty as helping motorists, not catching them in law violations. But neither their ministrations nor time limitations on parking in the big cities have done much to speed up automobility.

PARIS has more than 1.5 million automobiles. A French magazine describes the city as caught in "the inferno of its traffic." Authorities awoke to the threat to the city's viability last year and adopted a master plan for regional development. An express highway is planned along the Seine, to the distress of aesthetes. Multilevel traffic is proposed, plus a $14.5 million ring road, or Boulevard Peripherique. Autoroutes -- express highways -- are under way out of the city.

Similar proposals for London and other cities in Britain are made in the recently published Buchanan Report. Meantime the London County Council is spending some $28 million a year for road improvements.

Rome, considerably smaller than either Paris or London, nevertheless has about half a million automobiles. The municipal council in December 1962 adopted a general town plan that calls for new housing and business and industrial complexes south of the historic area and similar areas southeast and northeast, all to be linked by an expressway.

WHILE EUROPE'S CITIES move at long last to relieve automotive strangulation, her ministers of transport have been more alert to accommodate themselves to the automobile era. A basic plan for a network of superhighways was laid down at a meeting in Geneva in 1950. A spider-web of 26 international routes was drawn, each with the letter "E" for Europe and each bearing a number.

Most of these routes bypass or freeway through the cities they connect, but they are linked to all important cities by secondary roads. Narrow winding town and city streets complicate Europe's traffic problems immeasureably.

Hitler's magnificent autobahnen, built for strategic military reasons, put Germany still far ahead of the rest of Europe. But the rest of Europe is catching up. Italy's Autostrada del Sole, stretching 468 miles from Milan to Naples, was completed last autumn. A 200-mile expressway across Switzerland eventually will connect the Italian road with the German autobahn from Basel to Hamburg. And in the more distant future the Continent will be linked to Britain by the proposed tunnel under the English Channel.

NEWSPAPERS: A TESTED PRODUCT

National manufacturers realize that proof of worth of a product should be obtained by testing public acceptance.

In this connection the local newspaper is probably the most tested product sold.

Each issue is tested not just by a small sample, but by the entire public. Every subscription renewal is a vote of approval.

Advertising in a local paper is similarly tested week after week by merchants that buy space and by the consumers who act upon the advertising.

In recent years, newspaper publishers themselves are actually amazed by the increasing vote of confidence in their medium. It is not unusual to hear an old - time newspaper man say that his advertising is increasing so fast he scarcely has the time or facilities to handle it.

This, of course, is a reflection of a new attitude on the part of many merchants in small cities, who themselves have found newspaper advertising an investment which brings larger profits and new customers to rapidly changing trading centers. The overall effect for the merchants, the community, and the newspaper is "escalating."

That is, expansion in nearly any community begets expansion.

This is true for individual stores as well as the community as a whole.

Of course, the merchant enjoys the profit and the newspaper appreciates increased business, but neither can come without continuing expression of confidence in the news and advertising content printed in the local newspaper.

We would remind the PTA that it is not the Food and Drug Administration that has developed the means to investigate, develop and market the most astounding array of disease-preventing vaccines and miraculous pharmaceuticals imaginable. Rather, it is the drug industry of this country. ."

Knights of the Road, they've been called, because truck drivers generally are courteous and willing to help motorists who get into trouble.

A new test program of a safety device may make it even easier for truckers to help motorists. If the test is successful, national distribution of the devices will be carried out.

Light - reflective "pylons" that motorists can use to signal passing trucks for help were recently distributed in the Lansing, Michigan area, at Pure Oil Company stations. Pure is conducting the test program in cooperation with the Michigan Trucking Association and the American Trucking Associations Foundation.

One side of the pylon has reflective red and white stripes, indicating that the motorist needs help. A second side, with green and white stripes, is a signal that the vehicle is stopped but doesn't need assistance. The third side has a postcard for the motorist to use if he was assisted by a truck driver. This will provide both Pure and the trucking association with information and will enable them or the trucker's employer to give the driver recognition.

State trucking associations have been informed of the project and it's hoped that this pylon - signal will come to be recognized and accepted over the entire country. Millions of motorists eventually will carry the pylons, if the test is successful.

The three - sided cardboard pylon was developed after various designs had been tested by the Safety Department of the American Trucking Associations in Washington.

Whether used to ask for assistance from truck drivers or to warn other motorists of a stopped or stalled car on the roadsides, the reflective pylons can be valuable safety aids. They'll be one way to slow - down the excessively high night fatality rates on our highways, rates that are considerably higher than daytime death rates, despite reduced traffic at night. In 1961 there were 20,500 motor-vehicle deaths at night as compared with 17,-500 in daytime, according to the National Safety Council.

Once again, the American public is indebted to the truck drivers who volunteer help for motorists. Perhaps we should at least return their courtesy on the highway.

The Casualty Count by Jerry Marcus

two weeks that totals 2,584 respondents in 38 states out of a total that will swell to 70,000 or more in all 50 states by year's end shows 853, or 33.01% expanded. In so doing, they invested $17,088,481, or an average of $20,033.39 each. They also provided 2,777 new jobs, or an average of 3.255 jobs each.

If the trend indicated by these first returns holds up, projected over the nation's 4,500,000 independent business enterprises it indicates that last year 1,485,450 independent firms expanded and provided 4,790,576 new jobs.

The total estimated investment made by the smaller entrepreneurs also far exceeds the $18-1/2 billion generally considered to have been invested by the big industrial complexes.

A substantial share of this spending, of course , was for automation equipment to further reduce their reliance on employees.

Practically all of the independent business expansion was made through private borrowing, and re-investment of earnings. Apparently government sponsored loans have had only a minor role in this expansion, according to the report by the Small Business Administration, which places its entire loans for the past 18 months at $44 million.

The expanding firms cover all areas of economic activity, although manufacturing and service industries account so far for well over half of the number.

Overall, the independent businessmen seem to feel that capital is available. This viewpoint is shared by 62% of all respondents, and by 64% of those who actually expanded. For those who report the unavailability of capital for expansion, lack of long term loans is the biggest barrier reported to expansion plans. A substantial share also report there is a lack of sources from which to secure capital.

This last situation appears to be spotty from a geographical standpoint. In the states of Florida, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, New Mexico, Ohio, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Minnesota, Mississippi, Oregon and Texas originate the biggest share of the reports of lack of capital sources.

On the other hand, there seems to be some hesitation on the part of many to borrow to expand. This impression is gained from the voluntary comments written by respondents.

For example, a substantial small manufacturer in the New England area who did expand last year comments "profit margins are too thin to add much more for interest charges". A processor in Texas with 28 employees who expanded writes "some of the economists need to figure out how to have a heavy natural growth in the economy instead of the artificial and heavy future borrowing taking place now".

A banker in the midwest writes "I feel it is wrong to try to accomplish the desired end by taking a tax off one place and putting it on another". The head of a midwest independent telephone company that expanded last year with an expenditure of $100,000 writes "If payroll tax was reduced we could hire more people".

So far the results seem to indicate that although capital is available to many independent businessmen, there is a reluctance to borrow for expansion. There seems to be a more than isolated sentiment that government policies have pushed interest rates up to a point not compatible with profit margins.

The reaction to tax cuts and revisions is showing an interesting pattern so far. Among all respondents, 65% feel that the 1964 income tax cut was no help in expanding. Of those who did expand, however, 51% seem to feel it was helpful.

However, in both categories there is being registered a substantial feeling that the tax revision of 1962 which permits small business to take a 7% credit against taxes on the cost of newly purchased equipment is a strong factor in promoting expansion. Of those who actually expanded 61% say this revision was most helpful. Next favored is the 1958 law which permits recovers in the first year of an extra 20% of the purchases of new equipment when computing taxes.

Of the various tax revisions including the excise tax cut, the independent businessmen appear to be somewhat apathetic, with only minorities being voted on all proposals except one, including even a proposal to permit them to deduct more from taxable income toward their own retirement programs.

However, there is being registered more than an 80% approval for the so-called plow-back allowance which would permit a business to invest tax tree in the enterprise up to 20% of a year's profits, to a maximum of $30,000.

This makes quite an interesting study by itself. It is developing quite clearly that the independent businessman is no where nearly as concerned over any measures that will give him some personal benefit, but rather, he is more interested in being able to expand his business and his payroll be being permitted to use more of the money he earns to accomplish this objective.

There is, for example, the famous story of the Presbyterian minister who was accused before a church court of having commited a grievous sin in having skated to his afternoon service one Winter Sunday.

And when he defended himself by arguing that skating was the only way of getting to the church, and could not therefore, be a sin, he was gruffly reminded that, "That's no' the point; the point is--did ye enjoy it?"--

The Ethical Outlook

H. L. Hunt Says

IN SOUTH VIET NAM

A majority of the people in South Viet Nam know little difference between communism and the profit motive system. Probably less than one-fourth of the people there oppose communism.

Those who are for freedom may not approve of the United States civilian or military leadership in charge of the assistance the United States government is offering them.

Many know of General Douglas MacArthur rebuilding war-torn Japan. They know of MacArthur's dismissal and our State Department's part in this tragedy. Many of them have heard of the known communists Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White and their co-workers who would have delighted in destroying MacArthur, and his greatness not made him indestructible. Many of them know the participants of the betrayal of China into communist domination by requiring Chiang Kai-Shek to set up a supposed neutral administration like the government Averell Harriman established in neighboring Laos.

They cannot concede that any Americans ever suspected of softness toward communism belong in the class with General MacArthur.

The Vietnamese might be willing to trust the U. S. State Department if they were more impressed with the loyalty of the free world leaders to their own nations and to the free world.

If the Vietnamese possess the wisdom to make them valuable to the free world and in defense of their country against the communists from the North and Sukarno from the South, this same wisdom may cause them to question what we will do in their behalf in South Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON -- In various foreign countries, including those friendly to the USA, President Johnson is getting the reputation of being a 2-gun Texan on foreign policy. He is accused of shooting from the hip.

This results from the image of Texans created by Hollywood and probably would be inevitable for any Texan who occupied the White House.

Real fact is, however, that the President has conducted foreign policy on a more even keel than any other recent president, certainly up until the current Vietnam crisis. Even during this difficult period he has been calm and collected.

One day after the first raids on North Vietnam, a caller found him working in his office until 9 p.m. on such problems as the dollar imbalance, appointments to the Federal Power Commission, racial and religious bigotry, and the farm program.

He looked tired, having been up most of one night during the Vietnam raids and was awakened the second night with two cabled reports from Saigon. He was worried over loss of American lives. But he was concentrating on the many difficult jobs facing an American President, as well as the almost impossible solution of the Indochinese impassee which he inherited.

Prior to the recent crisis, senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been impressed with the even-tempered conduct of foreign policy under Johnson. He has fallen back on his experience as Senate Majority Leader when he specialized on getting opposing sides to work together. In foreign affairs, he has recognized nations must also adjust to each other's point of view.

-- MOSCOW AND WASHINGTON--

Some Senators felt that he did not understand the factors behind the flag-burning incident in Panama last year; also was a little hasty in turning off Guantanamo water. But on the other hand he refused to fire back when President De Gaulle has taken sideswipes at the United States. He put the controversial MLF Naval Force for NATO on the back of the diplomatic stove when it aroused too much European dissension.

And the advice he gave Chancellor Erhard of Germany to explore avenues of better understanding with the Russians is considered the most stabilizing move recently made in Russian-German relations.

Johnson's most important foreign affairs achievement, however, was his steady build-up of confidence between Moscow and Washington which began with his sale of American wheat to Russia one year ago. This was followed by careful, well-timed moves to reduce arms both in the United States and the Soviet Union, a cutback in Plutonium, a Consular Treaty, scrapping of some bomber types and, more recently, the proposal of a Johnson-Kosygin exchange of visits.

This was not the work of a 2-gun Texan, and it had achieved more confidence between two hitherto suspicious countries than at any time since the war. Whether this will be upset by the Vietnam crisis remains to be seen. But it should be noted that before the Vietnam retaliation, President Johnson has authorized a third government to sound out the Chinese about a truce whereby the United States would withdraw from South Vietnam if the Chinese would end guerrilla warfare in that area. This was rejected.

In contrast to Johnson's even-keel conduct of foreign affairs, diplomats recall the Korean War and the Berlin airlift under Truman, plus his sudden statements about dropping the A-bomb in Korea which brought Prime Minister Attlee scurrying across the Atlantic from London; his scolding of Stalin for turning up late at Potsdam, and various other 2-gun statements.

--2-GUN PRESIDENT--

They also recall the mercurial foreign policy of Eisenhower which welcomed Khrushchev to Washington one month, then had him bellowing over the U-2 incident; a policy which lost Cuba to Castro, landed troops in Lebanon, had the 7th Fleet scurrying all around the China coast in the crisis over Formosa, and which proposed landing troops in Vietnam, then finally backed away from it.

President Kennedy also conducted foreign affairs, at times, more like a 2-gun Texan than a Harvard grad from Boston. Diplomats recall how he announced in February 1961 that we would never retreat in Laos, then pulled out of Laos a few months later; how he flew 50,-000 troops to West Germany then pulled them out later; how he waited to confer with Khrushchev until after he was in a weakened position as a result of the Bay of Pigs fiasco--thoug h Adlai Stevenson and others had urged him to begin talks with Khrushchev much earlier when the Russian leader was in a much friendlier frame of mind.

It was mercurial foreign policy and the deterioration of our relations both with Cuba and Russia that led to the Cuban missile crisis. In the end, Kennedy handled this with masterful skill. Nevertheless, a successful foreign policy is one which prevents a crisis from becoming a crisis, not letting it boil until it almost precipitates World War III.

President Johnson may have such a crisis in Vietnam right now. But up until now, he has been anything but a 2-gun Texan. Now that he is in it, however, he is exerting the old college try on his Senate friends to an unprecedented degree, as will be revealed in an early column.

--SOUTHERNER DEFENDS HARLEM CONGRESSMAN--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem is not especially popular with his colleagues from the South. Southern congressmen are polite and courteous to the handsome, eloquent chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, but they neither love him nor go out of their way to defend him.

However, Powell got strong support from a southerner, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., in a hot closed-door debate with Rep. William Ayres, R-Ohio.

Ayres, the top Republican on Powell's Committee, had been abetting the tieup of expense money for the committee. Finally Perkins called his hand.

"Why don't you tell us your true feelings?" he asked Ayres. "You have been attacking Mr. Powell and myself too. That doesn't help the Education Bill, which has been under consideration by my subcommittee. Besides, your personal remarks are unwarranted."

"I deny your charge that I have been conducting a political vendetta," shot back Ayres.

"Oh, I can prove it," declared Perkins. "You made a bitter assault on Mr. Powell recently in Ashland, Ky., when you addressed a Republican group there. I have the press clipping."

"Let's get the clipping from your office," suggested Powell, who was present. Then this was done, and Perkins read aloud from a news account in the Ashland Daily Independent.

"Davis S. McGuire, assistant city editor of The Daily Independent, quoted you as telling a Lincoln Day audience: 'People write me as the ranking Republican on the Education Committee and ask why I can't help get rid of Adam Clayton Powell or the congressman from your district.

" 'Well, all I can say to you,' " Perkins continued to read, " ' Is that you have the Constitutional power to do something about getting rid of him (Perkins), but I don't.' "

"That's untrue," bellowed Ayres. "I didn't say that. I was misquoted."

"Well, I have the utmost faith in this newspaper," snapped Perkins. "It's objective and it prints the facts. The reporter who wrote the story would have no reason to garble what happened."

About the only one at one closed hearing who seemed to enjoy the flareup was Powell, who sat back in his chair and grinned.

Washington, D. C.: -- What price courage?

When the rewards are blood and terror and beatings of those who show the spirit, the crusader understands it and takes it without a whimper. But when the reward is defamation of character by a high government official, it is irony enough to break any spirit.

This is the story -- and fate -- of a brave man who crusaded single - handed against the machine inside the Teamsters until one day Jimmie Hoffa slugged him, pummeled him, threw him over a chair bleeding, bruised and semi-conscious.

The loner in this story is Sam Baron, a gentle man, a literate man, an honest and respected man, a decent labor leader, who is now suffering because of that very same decency.

The slightly built, 62-year-old Mr. Baron is in the news these days because the chief counsel of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee -- Bernard Fensterwald Jr. -- called him a "fink" and a "stool pigeon."

Mr. Fensterwald, deliberately and insultingly spelled out the world "F-I-N-K", while cross - examining Robert Kennedy the other day during a hearing of the subcommittee on invasion of privacy. Sen. Kennedy had been accused of attempting to plant an article by Mr. Baron on Jimmie Hoffa in Life magazine.

Mr. Fensterwald, an officer of the law, asked why Sen. Kennedy would do this for a "fink." The nation now knows that Mr. Kennedy angrily denied this and sharply protested the characterization of Mr. Baron.

Bob Kennedy is quite capable of taking care of himself. But what of Mr. Baron, now in Montreal?

Who will rise in his defense against the charges of a Senate committee's chief counsel who by calling Mr. Baron a "fink" charged him with being a strike-breaker and a labor spy? That is the actual meaning of the word "fink."

Mr. Baron was not and is not a labor spy. He never hid his animosity towards Jimmy Hoffa and the kind of regime the twice - convicted Teamsters' president has run.

Mr. Baron is one of those daring men who always seems to rise at the right moment at the strategic crossroads to battle for decency. It is the Sam Barons of the country to whom the citizenry, especially the industrialists and labor's rank and file, should be grateful for not being overrun by muscle.

Mr. Baron always was one to give a working Joe a hand. Back in the glamorous twenties he was a vice president of a famous movie company. He gave up the tinsel and the golden salary to help rank and file working people.

He joined the International Ladies Garment Workers union and fought infiltrating chiselers in the garment jungle.

The Textile Workers Union offered him a vice presidency. He took it and worked hard at it, respected by both labor and management here and in Canada.

Then in 1952, long before Jimmy H. became a national story and long before the tough-muscled man from Detroit shifted from white socks to hand - tailored suits and a $94,000-a-year union income, national teamster's officials asked Mr. Baron to join the union.

He did. They made him Executive Field Director of the Brotherhood's Warehouse Division in charge of some 500,-000 men.

As a free - spending Hoffa rose to power in the union, Sam Baron treated him with distaste. After Hoffa replaced Dave Beck, the Hoffa forces organized what is known as the "Chicago Caucus" to consolidate his power.

The boys needed Mr. Baron's respectability and eloquence as fronts. They asked him to become the caucus' secretary-treasurer. He refused. He began to fight Hoffa when others ran in terror.

Mr. Baron was horrified by what he saw inside the sprawling union. As men have done through the decades when they could not single - handedly upset a powerful union machine, he sought aid inside the government.

There were no conflicts of ethical considerations. Sam Baron is a trade unionist -- a clean labor man. This was consistent with going to the probers of the McClellan racket - probing committee, to the Justice Dept. and the FBI.

But he never once betrayed the half a million men for whom he bargained. On the morning of May 17, 1962, a Teamster publication was placed on the 30-foot-wide desk of Jimmie Hoffa.

It contained praise of Mr. Baron's dedication and ability, which he showed though the doctors had long advised him to ease off and submit to badly-needed stomach surgery.

At 10:20 that morning he disagreed with Hoffa over some matter of written reports. The Teamsters' president roared and slugged Baron. There are color photos to prove it.

Mr. Baron quit later. But he did give courage to many honest Teamsters in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and on the West Coast.

They, too, have been cooperating with the government in an effort to avoid being ground down by the machine.

Now a representative of that government rewards a crusader by calling him a "F-I-N-K."

What of the others now making the same fight? What price courage now?

There are many ways to blur a crusader's vision.

SPINNING BACK THE CLOCK

Those folks who long for the "good old days" will be happy to know that top spinning is making a comeback.

It has caught on again even in New York City where the other day a 10-year-old lad won the metropolitan championship over 55 other contestants by pitching five straight bullseyes into a plastic disk three feet away. A national competition has been scheduled for next June.

One of these days we may even hear of a penny candy store opening again.

Keglers Korner

By MARY MEYER

Monday night, with the Powder Puff League, Peggy Godwin and Mavis Riley tied for high game with 174. Peggy Godwin had high series with 477. Liberty Market had high team game and series with 769 and 2158.

With the Newcomers on Tuesday morning, Mary Bain had high game of 162. High series went to Shirley Henry with a 449. Team #8 had high team game of 549. 1513 was the total high series for Team #7.

Sub, Flora Young, had high game of 178 and series of 452.

Also on Tuesday morning, with the Housewives, Mary Meyer had high game of 192 and Henrietta Ferrell took high series with a 461. The Strikers had high team game and series with 616 and 1767.

With the Delta Keglers, Peggy Swacker had high game of 227. This is also high for the week. Peggy Dickson had 565 for high series. Ziegenhorn Insurance had high team game with 852. R. D. Clayton had high 3 game total with 2325.

The other Tuesday night league, the Imperialettes, had Hildred Poole with high game and series of 194 and 492.

L & A Laundry had high team game with 776. A & B Cleaners had 2224 to cinch high series.

Wednesday night, with the Royal Keglers, we'll just say A & B Oil, as usual. Peggy Dickson of that team rolled a 205 and a 573 for high game and series. A & B Oil had both high game and series with 890 and 2456.

I must confess to getting a little pessimistic at times. Seems to be an impossibility to equal this team. But we must try to be optimistic; if it wasn't for the optimist, the pessimist would never know how happy he wasn't. True?

With the Friday Bowlettes, Peggy Godwin had both high game and series with 200 and 489. Vogue Dress Shoppe had high team game of 768. Shy's Rexall had high team series of 2190.

Apropos of nothing, my oldest child will observe his 23rd birthday this week. Brings home to me how old I am. Lots of you are in the same boat, I dare say. Allow me to quote Victor Hugo, "Forty is the old age of youth; fifty is the youth of old age."

Mrs. Crosier's Granddaughter To Be Married

Mrs. Edith Crosier, Charleston, announces the engagement of her granddaughter, Miss Glenda Ruth Spears to David Lindemann, Willis, Mich.

The bride-elect, a 1962 graduate of Kelly High School, is residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leppen, in Detroit, Mich., where she is employed as a secretary for Ford Motor Co.

The prospective bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lindemann of Willis, Mich., is serving in the U. S. Marine Corps in North Carolina.

A late June wedding is being planned.

Rumors that some sort of public meeting was held north of the Mason-Dixon Line without any picketing whatever now appear baseless.

Chocolate Pie Uses Candy Bars, Tastes Terrific

If you like pie and chocolate candy, then here's a pie that can't possibly miss pleasing you!

The filling is a billowy tempting concoction that's easily prepared because it uses convenience foods: marshmallows and almond chocolate candy bars. The top is whipped cream with a grated candy bar.

Pastry that holds all this goodness should be flaky, tender and light, as it certainly will be when lard is chosen, claims Reba Staggs, noted home economist.

Satin - Smooth Chocolate Pie Pastry

1 cup sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour and salt. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add ice water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line a 9-inch pie pan, allowing ½ inch pie crust to extend over edge. Crimp edges. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling

20 marshmallows
½ cup milk
6 bars (¾ ounce each) almond milk chocolate candy
1 pint whipping cream

Combine marshmallows and milk in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until marshmallows are melted. Add 5 candy bars and continue heating until chocolate melts. Cool thoroughly. Beat 1 cup whipping cream and fold into cooled chocolate mixture. Spoon filling into baked pie shell. Chill 3 to 4 hours. Whip remaining cream and spread over filling. Grate remaining candy bar and sprinkle over whipped cream. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from "Been There" hit me right between the eyes because I've been there, too.

In my case I filed for a legal separation but HE filed for divorce — and he got it on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. It was a travesty. He had no evidence but he got the decree.

So who lost? Everybody. He now has two children under three years of age. (He is 44.) His wife is miserable and lets everyone know it. My children, ages 8, 9 and 16, are robbed of the father they adored. Their mother is not able to give them the time they deserve because she must work to support them.

If men and women would work half as hard on their original marriage as they do building up an outside romance such tragedies would not occur. Please keep hammering away at this, Ann. People need to hear it from an unbiased third party. —TRIED TO SAVE IT

Dear Tried: You bet I will. The disenchanted throw in the sponge and look everywhere but at themselves for the cause of the trouble. Then, without realizing it, they bring to a second marriage the same qualities and the same problems that destroyed the first.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's first husband gave her a French poodle six months before he died. She named him Charles, after de Gaulle. Well, that darned dog never liked me. I couldn't even put my arm around Irene in front of Charles. He used to growl and raise cain.

When I was courting her, Charles bit me three times. Irene called them "nips." I say when a dog puts his teeth into you it's a bite.

Two weeks ago Charles died. Irene had to go on tranquilizers. She had a coffin made of pine and insisted that Charles be buried in the backyard with a French flag draped over the coffin. I told her this was an insult to the French government and that I hoped they wouldn't hear about it.

Now, Irene is begging me for another dog. I am so glad to be rid of that first hound I hate to get mixed up with another one. What do you say? -- JAKE

Dear Jake: You aren't going to win this one, so give in -- gracefully. Buy Irene a puppy and determine to make friends with the little beast from the first hello.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column Mrs. E. W. said you exposed your ignorance by saying that parrots imitate sounds but do not know what they are saying. On the contrary, Mrs. E. W. revealed her ignorance by claiming they do.

Her bird, Polly Walker, no doubt did all the things Mrs. E. W. said but the bird did not know what he was saying. The continuous repetition of Mrs. Harrison's name with one ring of the phone and repeating "Mother Platt' with two rings was an association that Polly picked up and repeated. The appearance of Bobbie was a visual stimulus that caused Polly to repeat the phrase "Bobbie, where's the whiskey?" because this phrase had been repeated when Bobbie entered the room.

At no time does Polly, or any other animal, "think" or "talk" in the way that humans do. Please set the record straight. -- S. L.

Dear S. L.: You did. Thanks.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Bloomfield Takes Third

BLOOMFIELD TAKES CHARGE

The Wildcats took charge of the contest in the early going of the third period and ripped out front 49-30. From there it was the Wildcats all the way.

WILDCATS TOUGH ON BOARDS

Bloomfield, with Mike Wise and Dennis Gillespie grabbing down 10 rebounds each, controlled the boards, especially in the last half.

UNDERWOOD COMES IN

Dale Underwood, the invaluable sixth man of the Wildcats, came off the bench in the second period to loosen up the Owensville defense by popping in three consecutive 25 to 30 feet setshots. He finished up the game in the fourth period and again he was shooting unmercifully against Owensville to haul down a total of 14 points for the game.

TOUGH FIRST HALF

In the early going of the game the Wildcats had their troubles and could pull away only by four in the initial frame, 13-9. The Owensville defense dropped back on the big men of the Wildcats at the start of the second period and pulled to the lead before Bloomfield could rally to hold their four point advantage, 30-26, as first half play subsided.

SUPERB SHOOTING PERCENT

From the field the Wildcats blasted loose to drill 33 of 62 field goal attempts for a blistering 53.2 per cent. Owensville had much less success, being able to hit only 17 of 55 for 30.9 per cent.

WHITE STARS

Ron White, thought by many to be the best playmaker in the state tournament, gave another starring performance with his playmaking and outstanding defensive moves. From the field he got nine points, but the assists that he set up were beauties. He is a real probable for college basketball.

HEWGLEY COMMENTS

Coach Tom Hewgley, states, "I am exceptionally proud of the team and the fans. And speaking for Coach Spoonhour and myself, and the Wildcats, we would like to thank all of Southeast Missouri for their backing this season."

BRILLIANT RESERVES

With six minutes left in the game the Bloomfield second team came in to show that they too could play a superb brand of basketball. Owensville, with their first team in all the way, could manage only to hold their own against the Wildcat's shock corps.

BALANCED OFFENSE

Three regulars and one reserve stuffed in enough points to register in the double figures for the Wildcats. Dennis Gillespie paced the offensive maneuvers with 16, followed by Ron Underwood with 15, Dale Underwood with 14, and Mike Wise's 12.

Hampton, with 11, was the only player on Owensville's team to register in the double figures.

A technicality is a technicality, but one team getting 29 fouls called on them while the other one gets only eight is just a little too technical.

That's what happened to the Bloomfield Wildcats last Friday night when they faced the Buffalo Bisons in the semi-finals of the State Tournament at Columbia. Bloomfield was the victim of 28 disastrous fouls as compared with eight called on the Bisons.

Bloomfield outscored Buffalo from the field 50-28, which under normal circumstances would be more than enough to drag down victory. But Bloomfield, like Southeast Missouri teams of the past, got into foul trouble.

Although I was not present at the Bloomfield-Buffalo game I did journey to Columbia for the finals Saturday afternoon and night to see the Wildcats in action for the last time this season. The officials that called their game Friday night did not call the Bloomfield-Owensville game, but they did call the Class "S" game between Archie and Lancaster, and the calling was very inconsistent.

I was sitting by a referee from Southeast Missouri and he said the same thing. A foul called one way would be changed to right the opposite just minutes later under the near same circumstances.

After seeing, and seeing is believing, I want to at this time state that Southeast Missouri is very fortunate to have the type officials that they do. Most of the ones that I have seen through this past roundball season at least have tried hard to be consistent in their calls.

After seeing Buffalo in action against California in the championship game Saturday night, I also believe that if a five game series was to be held between Buffalo and Bloomfield, Bloomfield would come out on top.

But too, you have to give Buffalo credit, they won the tournament to come in as the number one Class "M" team in the state.

A Southeast Missouri Basketball Conference game last Feb. 25 between Jackson and Fredericktown was ruled, "No Contest," by the Missouri State Activities Association. Why? -- Because Jackson had exceeded the legal schedule limit.

It's found that each team is allowed 14 games in the winter season, which starts with the Wednesday following the second Friday in December. This year that date fell on Dec. 16. Jackson had 15 games scheduled after that date.

Mike Jones, an all time great in the Kennett High School football history, has accepted a position on the University of Missouri Football coaching staff, Dan Devine, Missouri Head Coach, stated to the Daily Democrat of Kennett, Mo.

Devine said Jones would join the MU staff as an assistant while doing graduate work. He will work primarily with the freshman squad.

Hal Lane, Former All-Conference Quarterback at Cape State, is doing his practice teaching in history and physical education at the Sikeston High School. He didn't get to finish his last year of eligiblity because of a chronic knee injury.

Norm Dockins, former Sikeston Football Great is doing his student teaching at the Oran High School. At present it is not known just what or where Norm is going to do or go.

A sad note was heard as this year's roundball season ended. Bob Coffee, a referee for the past seven years in Southeast Missouri, is going to hang up his shoes as an official. He makes his home at Dexter and will be missed greatly by basketball, for his officiating was among the best in this part of the country.

Doug Sanders Wins Pensacola Golf Tournament

PENSACOLA, Fla. AP --"I hope 'Baby Beef' doesn't miss the $4,000," joked Doug Sanders after his dramatic playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the $65,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Sanders walked off with a $10,000 prize for sinking a 35-foot putt on the third playoff hole after he and Nicklaus Baby Beef finished regulation play with a 72-hole total of 277, which was 11 under par.

Nicklaus took $6,000 second money.

It was a great victory for the 31-year-old Ojai, Calif., pro who had not won a tournament since the 1963 Greensboro Open. The victory placed him in the Tournament of Champions and gave him a good shot at being selected for the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 9-12.

"It sure feels good to win again," he said. "Twenty-two months without a win is a long time."

Sanders led the burly Nicklaus by two strokes at the start of Sunday's action with a 12-under-par 204. But four bogies, especially one on the 15th hole at the Pensacola Country Club, left him into a tie.

Nicklaus took a temporary lead at that point with a birdie, only to go two-over at the 17th. A 10-foot putt on the 18th temporarily saved his day. Sanders parred the 18th to set up the playoff.

Sanders had nothing but praise for the 25-year-old Nicklaus. He called the Columbus, Ohioan, "one of the greatest players."

Billy Martindale, a young pro from Jacksonville, Tex., tied Billy Casper at 280 for third place. Sanders' win puts him ahead of Casper as the official top money winner on the tour.

Kermit Zarley, another youngster from Yakima, Wash., finished fifth with 282. Defending champion Gary Player tied for sixth with five others. Arnold Palmer and four others were next at 284.

From here, the PGA winter tour heads for the $70,000 Doral Open in Miami.

Hank Bauer Alarmed With Bunker's Arm

A year ago at this time Manager Hank Bauer was concerned with Wally Bunker because the bonus rookie was taking up a place on the Baltimore roster.

Now Bauer is worried about Bunker because the ace of the Orioles' pitching staff has a sore arm.

"I wouldn't say I am alarmed," Bauer said Sunday, "but it will be a relief when I see him throw a little batting practice and know that Wally's okay."

Bunker, who celebrated his 20th birthday 11 days ago, talked about his right arm during a 3 1/2-hour workout.

"It's really more of a stiffness in the shoulder, but I haven't been able to throw the way I like to," he said. "Actually it's been a little stiff ever since I arrived in Miami two weeks ago."

Bunker and Bauer, along with pitching coach Harry Becheen and trainer Eddie Weidner, expressed confidence that time and sunshine will solve the problem.

The Orioles signed Bunker in 1963 for an estimated $70,000 bonus. They placed him on the major league roster last season although they felt the move was impending the youngster's development and also was preventing them from using someone who might be of more immediate value to the team's American League pennant chances.

But the action was necessary to protect the hurler from the player draft. Then, several weeks and two injured starters later, Bauer was forced to call Bunker to pitch in regular rotation.

He responded by hurling a one-hitter in his initial start and following that masterpiece with another one-hitter, a three - hitter, one four-hitter, one five - hitter, four six-hitters, and 10 other victories, making 19 in all against only five defeats.

Far Flung NCAA Tournament Begins

The long, long road to Portland, Ore., and the finals of the far - flung NCAA Basketball Tournament begins tonight with first round activity in Philadelphia and Lubbock, Tex.

In addition, playoffs are scheduled tonight in Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the last two teams in the NCAA tourney field, a field that will be reduced to four for the finals in Portland, March 19-20.

In between, there's another set of first-round games in Bowling Green, Ky., Tuesday, and the four regional tourneys, in College Park, Md.; Lexington, Ky.; Manhattan, Kan., and Provo, Utah. All the regionals are scheduled Friday and Saturday.

Philadelphia has a tripleheader tonight, Penn State vs. Princeton, West Virginia vs. nationally fourth-ranked Providence, and third-ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., vs. Connecticut.

The winners of those three, along with North Carolina State, surprise winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tourney Saturday night, will advance to the East regional.

The doubleheader in Lubbock matches Houston and Notre Dame, and Colorado State U. against Oklahoma City. The Houston — Notre Dame winner goes into the Mid-West regional and the Colorado State-Oklahoma City winner to the West regional.

The playoff at Waco matches Southern Methodist and Texas for the right to represent the Southwest Conference. Tex Tech won the title but had to abandon it for using an ineligible player.

Ohio U. and Miami of Ohio play for the Mid-American Conference title in Dayton, with the winner going on to Bowling Green for a Mid-East first-round game against Dayton Tuesday. Eastern Kentucky plays DePaul in the other half of the doubleheader, completing all first-round play.

An obscure substitute and a veteran coach were the key figures Saturday in the wind-up weekend of the regular season.

Substitute Larry Worsley came off the bench, scored 30 points and led North Carolina State to a 91-85 upset of eighth-ranked Duke, 1964 runner-up to UCLA's national champions.

And the Oklahoma State Cowboys carried veteran Coach Hank Iba off the court after beating Kansas 64-58 and clinching the Big Eight title at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday.

The Big Eight crown had eluded Iba, an almost legendary coach. He is one of the two active coaches with 700 or more victories, was a many-time winner of the Missouri Valley title, has had NCAA champions and was the coach of the 1964 U.S. Olympic champions.

Michigan, the nation's No. 1 team, wrapped up its second straight Big Ten title and an NCAA berth with an 88-85 decision over sixth-ranked Minnesota. All-America Cazzie Russell sparked the Wolverines with 24 points, including the go-ahead basket.

Wichita also clinched an NCAA spot by edging Drake in overtime, 76-74, after Bradley had beaten St. Louis 94-91, also in overtime. Both Bradley and St. Louis will play in the National Invitation Tourney, opening in New York Thursday.

Ninth-ranked Villanova, the No. 1 seed in the NIT, finished its regular season with a 73-69 edge over Marquette, second-ranked UCLA took Southern California 52-50, fifth-ranked Vanderbilt beat Tulane 85-62 and 10th - ranked Brigham Young, already assured of the WAC title and NCAA spot, knocked off New Mexico, second seed in the NIT, 88-73.

Not all House members like the rules changes. Some find it hard to get used to the idea of letting issues be decided by the membership.

William Tell Apple

Slung beneath the belly of an F-101 Voodoo interceptor is a long, slim tow target now in final testing at Tyndall AFB, Fla. It is scheduled to be the primary low altitude target in the William Tell 1965 USAF world-wide weapons meet at Tyndall in October. The target, 12 feet long and some eight inches in diameter, is designed to be towed at speeds reaching 1½ times the speed of sound and at altitudes above 50,000 feet. During the William Tell competition, when other interceptors are firing their air-to-air missiles at the target, it will be reeled out far behind the tow plane. (NNS)

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER IX
DIVISION OF HEALTH (Con't.)

The legislature has created three advisory bodies and assigned each to the Division of Health. The members of two of these agencies (the Hospital Advisory Council and the State Cancer Commission) are appointed by the Governor with senatorial consent. The members of the third agency (the Nursing Home Advisory Council) are appointed by the director of the Divison of Health with the approval of the Governor.

The Hospital Advisory Council is composed of seven members each serving a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on the official state plan for the construction of additional hospital and health center facilities.

The Nursing Home Advisory Council is composed of the director of the Division of Health who serves as chairman ex officio, and eleven other members each serving for a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on matters of policy related to the licensing of convalescent and nursing homes.

The State Cancer Commission is composed of four members with the only qualification that they be qualified voters of the state. The Commission, with consent of the Governor, appoints an administrator who is made responsible for the operation and conduct of the state cancer hospital. The Commission also appoints the general medical staff of the hospital. All other employees are appointed by the administrator with their salaries fixed by the Commission in accordance with the state merit system.

1. Section of General Services -- The assistant director of health (administration) heads this section. The services provided are as follows:

Administrative and Personnel Services-- All the accounting, budget preparing, personnel and procurements programs of the division are supervised and the records maintained. A sizable printing, duplicating, and mailing room for divisional use is maintained.

Vital Records -- This unit registers all births and deaths in Missouri and issues birth and death certificates in accordance with statutory requirements. Its works in close cooperation with the U. S. Census Bureau, and supervises the work of the local registrars located in the counties. A project designed to microfilm more than seven million birth records and three million death records was started in 1962 and will be completed in 1965.

Statistical Services -- This unit collects, tabulates, and analyzes public data including all vital statistics, and makes special studies related to public health.

2. Section of Hospital and Technical Services -- This section contains the following programs which are administered from the central office:

Hospital Construction and Licensing--This unit is the agency for allocation and administration of federal grants to the state for hospital construction.

Since 1953 the division has administered the hospital licensing law which provides for the annual inspection and licensing of all hospitals except those operated by the state or federal governments.

Radiological Health Program --In 1963 the legislature established a program for radiation control. The Division of Health with the guidance and advice of the committee on radiation (a subcommittee of the Missouri Atomic Energy Commission) supervises a state-wide program for the evaluation and control of health hazards associated with atomic radiation.

Occupational Health -- This unit maintains a close liaison with the Division of Industrial Inspection to eliminate industrial health hazards.

Veterinary Public Health -- The functions performed by this unit include not only veterinary public health (animal diseases) but also the programs of milk and food sanitation, and food and drug control.

Laboratory -- The laboratory provides services for the other sections of the division, and makes tests and studies for local health agencies and private physicians.

Environmental Services -- Certain environmental sanitation inspection programs are conducted by this unit. These include general sanitary inspection of water supplies, including swimming pools, and air pollution control. Members of this unit also advise and consult with district and local health personnel on special problems of environmental sanitation.

State Tuberculosis Sanatorium and State Cancer Hospital -- These two hospitals provide direct medical and hospital care for indigent persons with these diseases. They also cooperate in the general health program by providing information and instruction to divisional personnel and students in training institutions.

3. Section of Chronic Diseases --This section is concerned with programs seeking to control the following chronic diseases: cancer; heart disease; tuberculosis; and diabetes. The preventive mental health program was transferred from the Division of Health to the Division of Mental Diseases July 1, 1964. Other activities carried on by this section are the nursing home licensing program and the home care program created in 1955.

4. Section of Local Health Services -- The division maintains five district offices as centers for educational, advisory, and inspectional work. Each office is under the general administrative supervision of a health officer who is a medical doctor. The staff consists of trained public health nurses, health educators, nutritionists, engineers, sanitarians, and other specialized public health workers.

The central office staff of the section are trained consultants in the areas of communicable diseases, dental health, environmental sanitation and health education. They are responsible for the development of programs and standards to guide the activities of personnel in the districts and local health departments.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — In an era of unprecedented prosperity more than two billion people are hungry, and widespread famine is a possibility in the near future. The following first of five articles on the world food supply—or lack of it—outlines the challenges man faces to avoid anarchy and war resulting from starvation.

The Hungry millions part 1
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Frightening specters haunt the rich North Atlantic world today.

These are the specters of widespread famine, pestilence, violence and ultimately war, less than a generation from now.

Men may be able to keep their fingers away from the trigger which would exterminate millions in nuclear clouds. Can mankind meet the other awesome challenge?

While the North Atlantic world rejoices in an era of unparalleled prosperity, scientists sound a grave warning: the inexorable mathematics of hunger can mean catastrophe is around the corner, probably less than 15 years away.

Hunger has a variety of forms: malnutrition, or lack of proteins, minerals and vitamins: undernutrition, or just not enough of any food, and starvation.

People in these categories are numerous enough to fill Metropolitan New York 160 times over. If they stood in single file, two feet apart, the line would circle the globe 25 times. Two years or less from now, there would be another circle, and then more at more frequent intervals. These are the hungry.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization estimates that one person in every two in the world is badly nourished, one in three is chronically hungry, one in 8 or 10 is undernourished. Nearly two-thirds of the world's people know some form of hunger.

These are just some of the grim statistics compiled by researchers contemplating a terrifying equation of population growth and food supply. Experts say that before long, famine can present the rich nations —their people outnumbered 2-1 by the hungry—with dangers as great or greater than those emanating from the clash of ideologies.

"If present trends continue," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, vice president for research at the State University of New York in Buffalo and an authority on the subject, "it seems likely famine will reach serious proportions in India, Pakistan and China in the early 1970s, followed by Indonesia, Iran, Turkey, Egypt, and Brazil, then followed by most of the other countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America by 1980.

"Such a famine will be of massive proportions, affecting hundreds of millions, possibly even billions of persons. If this happens, as appears very probable, it will be the most colossal catastrophe in history."

Part 1 Gal 2

To meet the challenge will take time and international cooperation, both scarce commodities.

"We have the skills and the scientific knowledge," says FAO Director General Binay Ranjan Sen. "What we need is the will."

Most experts agree that more than two billion of the world's 3.3 billion people are hungry.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says diet deficit areas are: Asia (except Japan), the Near East (except Israel) most of Central America and the Caribbean, northern and equatorial South America, much of Africa. Oddly, hunger is most prevalent south of the 38th Parallel.

A small group of nations with 16 per cent of the population has 70 per cent of the world's wealth. These are nations grouped around the North Atlantic, along with Japan, and Australia-New Zealand.

Two-thirds of the human race barely subsists. Most of the hungry are nonwhite. On the average they eat 900 less calories daily than those in the white, developed third of humanity. But calories are meaningless when two out of three have less than nutritional requirements in any event.

India eats 24 per cent less than it needs in nutrition. Americans eat 17 per cent more than they need. In general, people in developed nations eat two to three times more than the poor ones. North America consumes nearly five times more food per person than is eaten on the Asian mainland.

Americans, only 6 per cent of the world's people, have 40 per cent of the world income. About 1.4 billion people in about 100 countries have an average income per person of under $100 a year, 30 times less than President Johnson says should be the bare minimum for a U.S. married couple.

The FAO says that in the 1963-1964 fiscal year, the world produced less food per person than the year before. Deficits likely will grow.

The U.S. Agriculture Department says the food problem in poor countries can be the most insoluble problem that humanity faces in the next few decades. Production cannot keep up with rapid population growth without substantial changes in world agricultural policies.

Americans and the developed world now are concerning themselves with the problem. It is a staggering one, laden with ominous political and social connotations. Once the hungry did not know there was hope. Today, there is swift communication. People know. Hopes are aroused. But if ascending hopes clash with bitter disappointment, danger is near.

The southern areas of the world, for the most part, are in the grip of frustration. The northern areas wax richer all the time, their capacity to produce wealth constantly expanding. People in the north — even the poorest — are rich beyond the dreams of the poor in the southern parts.

The mathematics of violence is all too clear. There is an invitation in the poor lands to seek overnight solutions to their woes, solutions offered from such sources as the witch doctors of communism. The temptation is to seek the quick, violent answer.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

MEXICO CITY — It is a puzzling thing in any nation, listening to the courtroom language of a barrister or reading a paper he has written, for that matter.

Out of doors in the clear fresh air, the avis legis speaks in phrases of the working man. Even the letters he writes home are easily understood by small cousins.

Only in courts of law or other similar haunts do we find this conspiracy of language. I speak with authority on this curious situation, having attended a hearing here with a friend whose attorney did some very effective work in the Unknown Tongue. Some sort of an international case but don't ask what.

It was an edifying experience and my friend's barrister explored such points as ex post facto, pro bono publico and quantum sufficit.

And the enemy fired back volleys of aurea mediocritas in a scholarly manner, all of which dripped from the impermeable back of our shyster. Otium cum dignitate was his middle name.

So during one of the recesses when everybody got back to Spanish, we tried reading a document on the case. It told all about the party of the first part hereinabove mentioned with another party who occupied some other part.

Nothing came of it, so far as we could tell.

Later on it turned out that my friend was the party of one of the parts but we didn't know which part. Even the judge seemed confused because he kept going into another room (to watch Perry Mason in Spanish on TV, if you ask me) and conferring with the barristers and a number of experts on different things.

Finally, the confusion was cleared up and since our solicitor had produced the most effective orbis scientiarum he won by a TKO.

The judge announced it and then rushed back to his chambers to check up on Perry Mason.

All of which is very well but did you ever imagine what might happen if the councelors used this frightening vocabulary in every day encounters? Picture such a meeting at the table next to you in a swanky restaurant like The Ambassadeur.

A tweedy barrister approaches this table in a casual manner and says, "Well, Harrison. Dulce et decorum es pro patria mori."

So the other caballero daubs his mustache with a napkin as he arises to shake hands and says, "Emmet old boy. De gusti bus non est disputandum." (Probably means "if we get in a dispute I'll miss my bus.")

Then the first legalist says, "Do you perchance have un embarras des richesses?"

Whereupon Harrison shrugs and answers, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum. I am barely together."

And the first one says, "Gee, that's casus belli. Did you have eggs?"

"Et tu, Brute." (Well, that's terribly corny but you can think of something better in Latin go ahead and laugh.)

Obviously, someone must faint to put a stop to this ignoranti juris and it might as well be us.

But in defence of this legal lingo, my friend's solicitor offers this bit of unexpected information, to wit: court encounters are even more confusing in London where they speak a combination of Puritan and Latin. With British accents.

Buried cable:
$10,000,000 in new life insurance for your telephone this year

Put telephone wires underground and you've put them in a safe place. Safe from wind, rain, hot weather, cold weather, stormy weather. Safer from the slow death of ordinary weathering. Safer from man-caused damage, too. All around safer from the kinds of trouble which most often affect the talkability, hearability and dependability of your phone service.

That's why this year Southwestern Bell is spending $10 million burying hundreds of additional miles of telephone cable underground. In effect, buying life insurance for your telephone service.

There's another tangible benefit, too. Because of this buried cable construction program, new jobs will be created. Some in the telephone business (which already has 52,179 persons on the payroll), but most important, an estimated 500 new jobs among the hundreds of firms which sell supplies, services and materials to the telephone company.

This is a 1965 communications bonus from Southwestern Bell. Part of a massive construction effort (our biggest ever) to make the world's best telephone service even more useful, dependable, convenient and valuable seven days a week, good weather and bad.

WE SALUTE TOMORROW'S WOMEN

For over half a century Girl Scouting has played an integral part in making fine citizens, good wives and mothers and competent career women.

During this Girl Scout Week we are proud to take time out to congratulate our girls, leaders and workers on a job well done throughout the year.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK MARCH 7TH-13TH

The Girl Scouts of Sikeston were very successful in their cookie sale this year selling 8,432 boxes in Sikeston.

Proceeds from the cookie sale will go for the maintenance of and the improvement of the established Girl Scout Camp Latonka, on beautiful Lake Wapappello.

Sikeston is showing her appreciation to the Girl Scout leaders Monday, 6:30 p.m., at the Armory with a Recognition Dinner.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK
MARCH 7th - 13th

THE GIRL SCOUT PROMISE --

ON MY HONOR, I WILL TRY

TO DO MY DUTY TO GOD

. . . AND MY COUNTRY.

TO HELP OTHER PEOPLE AT ALL TIMES,

TO OBEY THE GIRL SCOUT LAWS.

The promise is made by every girl when she becomes a member of the Girl Scouts -- it is the code of honor by which she lives.

While earning proficiency badges in a variety of activities she learns to live up to the Girl Scout Laws and prepares to become an honorable and useful citizen of her community.

THE GIRL SCOUT LAW --

1. A Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted.
2. A Girl Scout is loyal.
3. A Girl Scout's duty is to be helpful and help others.
4. A Girl Scout is a friend to all and a sister to every Girl Scout.
5. A Girl Scout is a friend to animals.
6. A Girl Scout obeys orders.
7. A Girl Scout is cheerful.
8. A Girl Scout is thrifty.
9. A Girl Scout is clean in thought, word and deed.

WE SALUTE EVERY MEMBER OF THIS FINE ORGANIZATION FOR THEIR SUCCESS IN HELPING EACH OTHER, OUR COMMUNITY, AND OUR NATION.

DR. GENE SHIPLEY

"There is a basic need for education concerned with meat inspection in Missouri," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

"We will not have meat inspection in Missouri until the consumer demands complete inspection.

"The final answer to the assurance that all meat sold to the public is safe is of course complete inspection of all facilities and of all meat. This requires a lot of money and a lot of personnel.

"Inspection in Missouri, we have determined, would cost in excess of $500,000 dollars a year. This is quite an amount of money. In the past and even today, most consumers are unaware that all meat is not inspected. Also they are unaware of the hazards inherent in the situation.

"When the consumer is educated, the consumer will demand the inspection.

"The education of the producer and processor of these meat products is also important. These people can only do the job they are educated to do.

"When we point out the need for sanitation — the need for inspections of the product — when we are able to convince all processors of this, then we'll have a better product for you to consume.

INSPECTION:

"Two basic sections of Missouri statutes (part of the Food and Drug Act of the State of Missouri) constitute the base for all meat inspection activities in the state," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

These two sections are concerned with adulteration and misbranding of food products. They apply from the wholesale level through the retail levels and actually up to the consumer.

"Under these statutes we have a set of regulations — a code governing meat and slaughter houses. This code involves twenty-two separate items of basic construction and sanitation for the protection of the product. It does not involve any inspection of the meat itself, or of the animals being slaughtered.

"We go into these plants on a periodic basis to inspect and to see that these plants are constructed in accordance with the regulations, and that the sanitation or cleanliness of the plants conforms to our standards.

The items of construction are basically involved with walls, floors, ceilings, etc. The construction of water supplies and sewage treatment is very important.

Sanitation is just the cleanliness of keeping the equipment in the plant and the product in the plant clean and well protected from any kind of contamination. Pests and rodents must be excluded from the plant.

"We have several types of plants under inspection in Missouri.

"Some are one room slaughter houses. Some handle only one kind of meat such as beef. More of them are complete including total processing, curing of meats, some even to the retail level. These plants contribute a great amount of meat to the total meat consumption of the state.

"We do not know exactly how much or what percentage of the meat is from these plants under so called state inspection.

"We have state inspection of facilities only. It does not apply to the product or to the animal slaughtered.

"These plants are under sanitation inspection — not under meat inspection regulations.

"We have other types of inspection in the state. We have city inspection in the larger cities and there are a number of cities in the state and some city-county health units that have enacted ordinances or laws which enable them to give the same sort of inspection the federal government gives — a continuous on the line inspection of the animals before they are slaughtered and the product afterwards as well as the plant itself.

The state regulations provide only for the inspection of the facilities — primarily once a year.

We have facilities and procedures whereby if a plant is not in compliance with a regulation, we do make more frequent inspections. We issue work orders which require the plant to come up to specifications.

If they fail to meet the requirements of the work order we can (under the Director of the Division of Health) issue a closing order which requires the plant to close until such time as they meet our regulations. They may then reopen.

PROBLEMS OF UNINSPECTION:

"Thee are a number of diseases which can be transmitted to the human through uninspected meat. This is the basic reason for meat inspection where we do have it.

Many people are not aware of the fact that there is not complete coverage of inspection of meat. There is a large amount of uninspected meat in out state Missouri. By and large, this is good meat, but there are of course some carcasses from diseased animals or that may become contaminated during the slaughter and processing. This could lead to staphylococcus infections, various stomach ailments, brucellosis, tuberculosis, and these types of diseases which animals have and to which humans are susceptible.

"About 230 plants in Missouri of which we are aware slaughter under state sanitation only. These plants do produce uninspected meat and quite a large quantity of meat in Missouri is so produced.

All meat you may purchase is not necessarily inspected. Only if it has a Federal or City Inspection stamp on it, you will know it has been inspected.

The division of health is divided into five districts. Each of these districts do the inspection of slaughter houses and meat processing plants in their area.

Dr. Shipley coordinates the activities of these districts — to assist them whenever necessary and to achieve some standardization so all inspections are handled in the same way and to give the same sort of service to consumers in the state.

CHEMICALS:

Chemicals such as sulphides are used to prevent meat from spoiling or to conceal spoilage.

Sulfites in spoiled hamburger will make the hamburger appear fresh and red as though it had just been ground.

Carmine dye is added to make the meat look red and appetizing. It has no other useful purpose.

Sodium benzoate is added to ground meat to maintain freshness. Under the state regulations no additive may be added to fresh ground meat products other than salt or tenderizer.

The federal regulations specify what additives may be put in preserved meats such as cured sausage, etc. also in some of the combined meat products, meat loaves, etc.

We accept these Federal standards and attempt to enforce them to the best of our ability in Missouri.

Our regulations too on hamburger with regard to preservatives is in line with the federal regulation.

"You are always more safe with inspected meat. If the inspection stamp is on there you know the meat was produced under sanitary conditions from wholesome animals," concluded Dr. Shipley.

New Madrid County Library

A brisk business in birthday parties for pre-school and school age children is the mid-winter prospect in many homes.

A number of excellent manuals are available at the New Madrid County Library which cover all aspects of planning children's parties.

One of the most recent guides is "The Complete Guide to Giving Successful Parties for Children," by Lois Freeman. The volume provides complete instructions for over 150 children's games and activities, in addition to advice on everything else needed to make party-giving for 5 to 11 year olds a happy experience.

Other helpful books on party giving for children are "Betty Betz Party Book,"; "Fun Encyclopaedia," by Elvin Oscar Harbin; "The Complete Book of Children's Parties," by Florence Hamsher; "Group Fun," by Catharine C. Reiley; "The Year 'round Party Book," by William P. Young; "Social Games for Recreation," by Bernard S. Mason, and "Gay Parties," by E. O. Harbin.

Books with ideas for games of all kinds, are also plentiful.

Airman
Sylvester M. Sisson Jr.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman Sylvester M. Sisson Jr., grandson of Mrs. Laura A. Pope of Rt. 1, Bell City, Mo., has completed his U. S. Air Force basic military training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and has been selected for technical training.

Airman Sisson will be trained as a water and sanitation specialist at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. The school is one of the many military and civilian education facilities used in the vast Air Training Command system to prepare officers and airmen for duty in the diverse skills required by the nation's aerospace force.

The airman is a 1964 graduate of Bell City High School.

FORT RUCKER, ALA. (AHTNC)—Pvt. Louis R.L. Thatch, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezell Thatch, Parma, Mo., completed a two-week single rotor utility helicopter maintenance course at the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., March 5.

During the course Thatch received instruction in the maintenance and repair of Army utility helicopters.

He entered the Army last September and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood.

Thatch was graduated from Lilbourn East High School in 1964.

VICENZA, ITALY (AHTNC) —PFC Glenn M. Holmes, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Holmes, Route 1, Box 59, Oran, Mo., a member of the U.S. Army's Southern European Task (SETAF), participated in a five-day NATO maneuver KING NEPTUNE 65 in northern Italy.

The exercise, which ended March 5, was designed to test the command's ability to provide advance weapons support under fast moving battlefield situations with integrated staffs of the participating NATO countries.

Holmes, a member of the Supply and Maintenance Group's Direct Support Company near Vicenza, Italy, entered the Army in February 1964 and arrived overseas last November.

He was graduated from Oran High School in 1962.

VICENZA, ITALY (AHTNC) —PFC Charles E. Organ, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Organ, Star Route, Box 337, East Prairie, Mo., a member of the U.S. Army's Southern European Task Force (SETAF), participated in a five-day NATO maneuver KING NEPTUNE 65, in northern Italy.

The exercise, which ended March 5, was designed to test the command's ability to provide advance weapons support under fast moving battlefield situations with integrated staffs of the participating NATO countries.

Organ, an auto mechanic in Headquarters Battery of the 30th Artillery's 5th Battalion near Vicenza, Italy, entered the Army in March 1964 and completed basic training at Fort Gordon, Ga. He was last stationed at Fort Hood, Tex.

Organ was graduated from Kewanee High School in 1960 and was employed by St. Louis Shipbuilding before entering the Army.

Lady Bullfighter Teaches Others

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlene Abernathy, 43, anxious to share her knowledge of bullfighting with others of her sex, brandished a pair of horns and pretended to be a charging bull.

A score of young women watched. They appeared in Griffith Park in answer to Miss Abernathy's advertisement for girls interested in learning the art of bloodless bullfighting.

Miss Abernathy, a slim, tailored blonde, says she has given bullfighting exhibitions in Mexico, where she learned the matador's technique. She said she hopes to train a team to tour the United States demonstrating the art.

"After two months of training," said Miss Abernathy, "we'll be ready for the first live animal. Later we'll get around to real fighting bulls — about 700 pounds on the hoof."

"But," said Lora Davis, 22, a model and a student bullfighter, "they'll have padded horns, like in Portugal."

"Of course," said Miss Abernathy. "Crowds love to see us thrown — but not gored."

The girls include housewives, secretaries and models. Many said they came to the first lesson out of curiosity. The appearance of live bulls is expected to cut attendance a trifle, but Miss Abernathy hopes she'll keep enough girls to form a demonstration team.

The girls are training with horns from which the bulls have been removed — although one set is mounted on a wheeled-cart, called a carretilla, at which neophytes can wave capes.

In bloodless bullfighting swords aren't used, and most of the risks are assumed by the matador.

"Now," said Miss Abernathy, spinning her cape, "this is a right-hand pass."

Carol Christmas, 27, a bathing suit model, giggled. "Most of us already know about those," she said.

Removing Hand Odors

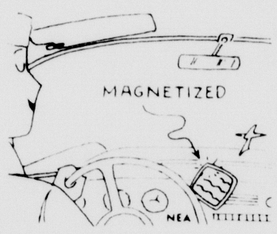
DEAR POLLY—A very effective way to remove objectionable odors from the hands is to spray them with a small amount of room deodorizer and then thoroughly wash with soap and water.—NORMAN

DEAR POLLY—Use masking tape to fasten screws or other small parts to the backs of articles that have to be taken apart to be stored or moved. Then the necessary screws are easy to find when installing the items in a different place or new home.—CLIFFORD

GIRLS—The next Pointer is a good answer for those Scout troop leaders and teachers who are looking for gift ideas easy enough for children to make.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My hint is in answer to the reader who wanted to know how to set crayon color on cotton fabric so it will not wash out. Press with a hot iron, on the wrong side, after placing the crayon design right side down on newspaper so your ironing board cover will not be stained. I have a place mat, with fringed edges, that my daughter made while in kindergarten 40 years ago and the colors in the crayon design still show. —MRS. F. R.

DEAR POLLY—My husband suggested that I place a magnetized pot holder on the dash of my car so as to have it ready to wipe the windshield off on the inside. I also found it convenient for using on the outside of the windshield which spatters so quickly in the winter. Pot holders are easy to wash and keep clean.—L. D.



DEAR POLLY—When I receive any gifts that I do not like, already have or cannot use, I put them in my white elephant box. A box, drawer or old suitcase could be used to hold these things. First mark each one with the date received, the donor or the meeting where it may have been received and store it away. When you have an occasion to give a gift, turn to the white elephant box and select a gift which someone else may enjoy even though you did not. Date and donor's name keep one from making an embarrassing mistake of returning the gift to the original giver. Please do not use my name.—MRS. X

Grade School Students Exchange with Foreigners

The sixth grade students at Matthews R-V Grade School are building strong international friendship with their counterparts in Australia. Under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Cecile Greene, they will exchange scrapbooks, letters, tape recordings and school projects with students at Barham Central School, Barham New South Wales, Australia. The affiliation was arranged through People-to-People, Inc. as part of its School and Classroom program.

"The Program has strong educational value," Mrs. Greene said. "This project was designed to build students' interest in geography, history, language and culture of Australia, and more important, to create an awareness of the people in other countries," she added.

People-to-People officials report that over 700,000 students in 67 countries are participating in the classroom exchange. The program was set up to be flexible and practical for all grade levels. The purpose of the exchange is to stimulate international good will and to teach students how to communicate with others who speak different languages and follow other customs.

People-to-People is an organization dedicated to promoting international understanding. The program was conceived by General Dwight D. Eisenhower at a White House conference in 1956. In November, 1961, People-to-People was established as a non-profit, non-political movement of private citizens with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. General Eisenhower is chairman of the board of trustees.

Mrs. Greene's pupils received replies last week from the letters they wrote last fall to the students at Barham. The delay in answering was caused by the Australian children being out of school for a 7-week Christmas vacation, during which they were having temperatures of 100 degrees and above.

Former Matthews Man Appointed Superintendent

Mrs. Malcolm Ratcliffe has received word that her son, David Ratcliffe, who has been acting superintendent of schools at Danville, Illinois, was recently elected to the position of Superintendent of Schools for a three-year period beginning July 1965. Mr. Ratcliffe is an alumnus of Southeast Missouri State College, as is Mrs. Ratcliffe, the former Miss Bobby Lou Lear, of Jackson. The couple have two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas and son, Bruce Douglas, of Milwaukee, Wis. visited during the weekend with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whiffen, and children.

Mrs. Ralph Fairies was called to Flint, Mich. Saturday by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Roberts, who had undergone surgery. She was accompanied by her nephew, Leon Kesler of Essex. Mrs. Robert's condition improved and they returned Tuesday.

Jimmy Burch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, was dismissed from Missouri Delta Hospital where he had been a surgical patient. Other patients at the hospital are Talton Cannon, Charles Spalding, George Gaines, and Ralph Fairies.

FHA Represented at State Meeting

The Matthews R-V Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America will be represented at the Missouri State Meeting of the FHA on March 6, on the Lincoln University Campus in Jefferson City by Paula Huffstutler, Regional Officer; Linda Tollison, Chorus; Linda Buchanan and Janice Griffin, Chapter Representatives. They will be accompanied by their advisor, Mrs. Bernice Rogers, and Mrs. Willie Tollison, a Chapter Mother. The 1400 delegates will represent the 336 FHA chapters in Missouri.

"For We Are the Builders of Homes" is the theme of the meeting. Dr. John Furbay, Educational Director, Trans-World Airlines, will make the keynote address at the opening session. Other program highlights include: a panel discussion on the education needed for a successful marriage, a performance by the 190-voice all-state chorus and the installation of new state and regional officers.

A banquet for regional and state officers will be held Friday evening March 5. Miss America of 1964, Miss Donna Axum, will be guest speaker.

FHA is a national organization of youth enrolled in home economics. It is co-sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education and the American Home Economics Association.

High School Honor Roll

Students at Matthews R-V High School whose names appear on the Honor Roll for having attained an "S" (3.00) or better average in academic subjects for the first six-weeks period of the second semester are:

Seniors: Ruth Jones, Janice Bye, Paul Roberts, Willis Rodgers, Richard Schuerenberg, Larry Roach, Danny Causey, Patricia Griffin, and Mary Ann Gruen.

Juniors: Linda Tollison, Diane Bratton, Alan Hartlein, Randy Porter, Douglas Moore, and Barbara Roach.

Sophomores: Joel Buchanan and Charles Conrad.

Freshmen: Paul Lomax, Patricia McMillen, Connie Griffin, Judy Jenkins, Michael Geske, James Myers, Amon Ring, Eugene Gruen, Jimmy Tollison and Mason Yarbrough.

Grade 8: Jerry McCoy and Carl Sullivan.

Grade 7: Deborah Lynn Porter, Bruce Huffstutler, James Lindley, Kenneth Burch, Roger Dale Graham, Richard Rushing, Twyla Leach, Sonja Harwood.

Mrs. Doyle Lefler, left, is the leader of Girl Scout Troop #199. She and Mr. Lefler, who is manager of the I. F. C. Loan Co., have three children--Danny who is a second class scout and Dana Sue who is a junior scout, and one child at home. Mrs. Lefler has completed the basic sixteen hour leader's training course and has been very active in scouting this year.

Mrs. Robert Moore, right, is the assistant leader of Troop #199. She and Mr. Moore, who is a postal clerk, have two children--Robert, age fifteen who is a Life Scout and Teresa, age nine, who is a Brownie scout.

Mrs. Moore is also a member of the Meadow Lane Garden Club and LaForge Extension Club. The Moores are members of the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

I, _____, being first duly sworn, say that I reside at _____Street, City of Sikeston, County of _____, State of Missouri; that I am a qualified voter therein; that I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Councilman to be voted upon at the primary election to be held on the third Tuesday of March, 1965, and am eligible therefor and I hereby request that my name be printed upon the official primary ballot for nomination by primary election for such office, and that I will serve as such officer, if elected.
Signed: _____
Subscribed and sworn to (or affirmed) before me _____ on this _____ day of _____, 1965.
Signed: _____

Section 8: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to have published all the necessary poll books, tally sheets, and ballots for said election, as authorized by law.

Section 9: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to give notice of said election, as required by law, by publishing notice in the Daily Sikeston Standard in three issues, the first issue shall appear not less than 20 days before the date of election.

Section 10: Immediately upon the expiration of the time for filing the statements, the City Clerk shall cause to be published in proper form for three successive days in the Daily Sikeston Standard, the names of the candidates to appear upon the primary ballot, and said Clerk shall thereupon cause the primary ballots to be printed, and shall arrange their names thereon in the order filed with him. Above the names of such candidates shall appear the words, "Vote for (number to be elected)-Scratch all others." The ballots shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper, and shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be chosen for any one office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL PRIMARY BALLOT
Candidates for nomination for Councilman of Sikeston, Missouri, at the primary election.

FOR COUNCILMAN

Vote for (number to be elected): scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Section 11: The City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last municipal election. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges cannot be made by more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges at a general election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election except as to the number. Judges of the election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by said Clerk, within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the Council shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall make and publish the result thereof in the Daily Sikeston Standard. Such canvass by the Council shall be publicly made, and the names of candidates receiving the highest number of votes for councilman, equal to twice the number to be elected, if there be so many running, shall be placed upon the official ballot for councilman at such general election.

Section 12: The primary election shall not be required if upon the expiration of the time for filing of statements with the City Clerk of persons desiring to become a candidate for councilman, the number of such persons shall not exceed a number equal to twice the number to be elected at the general election. Within forty-eight hours after the expiration of the time for filing of such statements with the City Clerk, the council shall canvass the statements filed to determine from the number of statements filed whether this section shall be applicable. In the event that it is determined that the provisions shall be applicable, the council shall, by ordnance, provide that a primary election shall not be held and that the names of the persons filing statements shall be printed on the general election ballots as the nominees for councilman, provided, however, that the name of such persons appearing on such ballot shall appear thereon in the order that they were filed with the City Clerk.

Section 13: The City Clerk shall thereupon cause the official ballots to be printed, and upon the said ballots the names of the candidates shall be arranged in the order of their vote received at the primary election, and above the names of the candidates shall appear the words "Vote for (number to be elected) -- scratch all others". The ballot shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The ballots shall be in substantially the following form:
Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be elected to any office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL BALLOT

FOR COUNCILMAN
Vote for Two (2) Candidates only -- scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each volling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election.

Section 14: Each of the nominees for Councilman may appoint a challenger. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make the return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said Clerk within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said election, the Council shall canvass said returns so received from the polling precincts and declare the result; and the two candidates receiving the first and second highest number of votes for Councilman, shall be declared duly elected Councilman.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 1st day of February, 1965.

After determining to increase the size of the proposed bond issue from $10,000 to $15,000 to provide for laborers if work relief funds should suddenly be cut off, councilmen Monday night unanimously approved an ordinance authorizing a bond issue election April 2. The issue will be voted for the extension of waterlines and sewers in the eastern, northern, and southwestern parts of town, but particularly for extensions to the new cotton oil plant which will be constructed on a 13-acre tract east of town.

Men on the Sikeston work relief roll began Wednesday morning to construct a concrete foundation and floor for a 21 foot extension to the city fire truck garage following the council's action Monday evening in approving the project.

A radio broadcasting studio, to be operated in the Del Rey parlor by remote control from KFVS transmitter near Cape Girardeau will be opened March 18, Harry Young said Thursday. The exact date, however, is still tentative. After attempting for 10 years to secure a station for Sikeston, Mr. Young has at last been successful in realizing part of his plan. By arrangements with KFVS officials he will be allowed a maximum of two hours' time each day.

Women's Health

WOMEN GAINING IN BATTLE VS. CANCER

Slowly but surely women are gaining in the fight for life against cancer -- which caused one out of six deaths among women in 1962. The reason for their victory: Early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

According to a recent study made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 8 percent fewer women of all ages died of cancer in 1960-1962 than ten years earlier (1950-1952).

Death from cancer of the various organs of the digestive system showed a striking decrease, as did death from uterine cancer.

"The cancer death toll," emphasizes the study, "can be reduced by early diagnosis and treatment. A recent follow-up study of cases diagnosed in 1950-1954 showed that among patients with breast cancer whose disease was detected while still at localized stage, the five-year survival rate was 82 percent compared with 57 percent for all breast cancer cases."

WOMEN STAY YOUNG LONGER

If you've had the feeling that women nowadays look younger longer, you're right. Science now documents your observation. According to British physician Dr. J. J. Frommer, menopause is occurring about four years later than it did 100 years ago. He observes, "There may be a link between later menopause and decreased rate of aging."

Dr. Frommer says that the median age of menopause for 443 women who were patients at London's Royal Free Hospital was 50.1 years. In 1845, menopause occurred at around 45 years of age, while in ancient times, says Dr. Frommer, it occurred at about 40 years. Dr. Frommer believes that later menopause may be a result of better nutrition and our greater knowledge of how to keep healthy. Dr. Frommer's findings were published in the British Medical Journal.

AN EXTRA HEALTH DIVIDEND

Before a physician gives a woman a prescription for a contraceptive -- and the safest, most reliable contraceptives must be prescribed — he usually gives her a thorough physical check-up. "This step can do a great deal to safeguard a woman's health and a family's happiness," says Dr. Frank R. Lock, President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"In the course of such an examination we may catch defects and illnesses which, untreated," the doctor warns, "might interfere with pregnancy and childbirth. The precontraceptive exam adds up to safer pregnancy and delivery, as well as better maternal health, and increases the odds that the baby will be normal."

"SPRING-CLEAN" YOUR MEDICINE CABINET

Even the most meticulous housekeeper often neglects giving her medicine cabinet a thorough spring-cleaning. If yours is crammed with an assortment of bottles and jars of partly used, outdated, inadequately labeled drugs, the time has come for an all-out cleaning. Here are some indications for immediate down-the-drain treatment of "tired" drugs:

Any medicine whose color has changed.

Prescription drugs whose labels are gone or whose labeling is so vague that the medicine is unidentifiable. Name and strength of dosage, and for whom the drug was prescribed, should be on the label. If these designations are not on, and you're not sure what the medicine is, discard it.

Peroxide that is flat, doesn't bubble vigorously; milk of magnesia that has caked; aspirin that has a vinegary odor and crumbles easily; left-over eyewash or eye drops; discolored, spotty ointments; cloudy or sedimented nose drops.

Regular "editing" of the medicine cabinet is more than good housekeeping. It may be lifesaving.

TODAY IN U.S. HISTORY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, March 8, the 67th day of 1965. There are 298 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1782, on the banks of the Tuscarawas River in central Ohio, 90 Indians who had been converted to Christianity were massacred by a company of militia.

On this date

In 1765, the British House of Lords approved the Stamp Act resented by the Colonies.

In 1841, Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was born.

In 1848, the expedition led by Gen. John Charles Fremont reached Sutter's Fort in California.

In 1888, the great American football coach, Knute Rockne, was born.

In 1941, the Senate passed the Lend-Lease Act.

Ten years ago—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles warned the Chinese Communists in a broadcast that any use of force against Formosa would bring retaliation by the United States.

Five years ago—John F. Kennedy won the year's first presidential preference primary with a heavy vote by New Hampshire Democrats.

One year ago — Suspended Black Muslim leader Malcolm X announced he was forming his own black nationalist party.

TODAY'S SPANISH LESSON

By William Archer
Lesson No. 15
Reading time 5 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

If the English word ends in 'ent', such as, 'president', simply add an 'E' and you will see that you have a Spanish word:

A) president, B) presidente, C) pray-see-DAIN-tay

A) accident, B) accidente, C) ox-see-DAIN-tay

A) eminent, B) eminente, C) a-me-NAIN-tay

A) incident, B) incidente, C) een-see-DAIN-tay

Thee are scores of 'ent' ending words that you already know in Spanish, all you need do is change your vowel sounds to Spanish, and add an 'E'. Thus, whenever you see a Spanish word ending in 'ente', look to your English word that ends in 'ent' and they most likely will be the same word.

Now let us review the noun "keys" that you have studied:

No. 1 — Words ending in 'or' in English will almost always be the same in Spanish:

interior, director, superior, actor, color, doctor

No. 2 — If it ends in 'tion' in English, change the 'T' to 'C' and you have a Spanish word:

description - descripcion; admiration-admiracion; anticipation-anticipacion; invitation-invitacion

No. 3 — If it ends in 'C', add an 'O':

economic - economico; dramatic - dramatico; critic-critico; artistic-artistico

No. 4 — If it ends in 'ent', add an 'E':

president - presidente; eminent - eminente; accident-accidente; incident-incidente

As we proceed we will give you additional "keys" to transform your English vocabulary into Spanish.

AN OPEN AND SHUT CASE — J.R. WILLIAMS

ACE HIGH, MAJOR! COUNSELOR CRUMWELL VISITED A COUNTRY OVERSEAS THAT HAS BROUGHT BACK THE DUCKING STOOL! HE CAN'T WAIT TO REPORT ON IT AT THE NEXT SCHOOL MEETING!

Mrs. Albert Merrell, left, is the leader of Junior Troop #30 and has served in that capacity and as an assistant for the past three years. She has taken the basic leaders' training course, as well as the Arts Caravan and other available training, in order to prepare for competent leadership.

She and Mr. Merrell, who is employed as a plumber, have two daughters in scouting, Linda, age eleven, a junior scout, and Peggy, age nine, a Brownie scout. They are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Billie Butler, right, has served as the assistant leader for Troop #30 for the past three years. She and her husband, the Rev. Billie Butler, have one daughter, Donna, age ten, who is a junior scout. They are active in the ministerial alliance and Rev. Butler is pastor of the Apostolic Penecostal Church of Sikeston.

Here's Plan for Stopping Red 'Take-overs' at Start

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) The same Communist methods that work in Viet Nam could work in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East.

The careful blending of terrorism, tight, militant organization, exploitation of the woes of minorities, and "promises" of social reform (land, credit, equality, freedom from foreign domination) can be as effective in Chile, Panama, the Congo or Iran as in Asia.

Ten worried officials who among them spent 20 years in Viet Nam and 50 years in the Far East on counterinsurgency and development are now working unofficially on a proposal to prevent future Viet Nams by "strangling" insurgencies before they appear.

Says one leader in this project: "In retrospect, we got into South Viet Nam three years late. We should have moved in during 1958 before the Communists built their strong political organization. We've got to stick there now at heavy cost."

SOMETIMES IT TAKES THE REDS five or six years to build an organization in a country, sometimes 10 or 15. This group of U.S. officials proposes that the United States pick 10 priority countries where the Reds have begun building underground political organizations but are still relatively weak and move in with strong four-year preinsurgency crash programs.

Targets for such projects might include Chile, Ecuador, Peru, Brazil, the Congo.

The four-year preinsurgency programs would operate in four phases, average $10 million a year per country.

PHASE I IN EACH TARGET COUNTRY, the evaluation phase, would last three to six weeks. The Phase I team would consist of four high-ranking men.

The chief would be an expert in the country, important enough personally and so close to the U.S. President that Mr. Johnson and the host government would respect what he reported.

The second man would be experienced in intelligence and counterinsurgency. The third would be expert in government systems with knowledge of how coups are managed. The fourth man would be expert in organizing—from labor unions to freedom fighters.

All four men would be sharp in practical politics.

PHASE II, THE SELLING PHASE, would last one year and would concentrate on propaganda, training and political action.

Phase III—also one year—would be devoted to carrying out the program "sold" (propagandized for 12 months) in Phase II.

In Phase IV, the two-year technical phase, technical teams would further step up farm, factory and government productivity, and encourage wider land ownership and widespread, reasonable credit.

Then, these 10 countries would be on their own—the plan says—able to handle their own Communist underground.

Secret Communist Plans

NOTE: The following message is composed of verbatim excerpts from several newspaper articles in the August 25, 1964 and later issues of the CONCORD DAILY TRANSCRIPT, (California), and written by Andy Gerber, Transcript Staf. Writer. We received this information AFTER publication of our last issue of divine love, no. 29. This documentation ties in perfectly with facts given in our last issue, in the article, "Communist Strategy For World Conquest."

By ANDY GERBER

You may believe the following statements, you may not. You may scoff at the predictions, or, you may shrug them off. Whatever your reaction, you will not forget:

"Nuclear powered Russian aircraft in February, (1964), flew over San Francisco, Oakland, New York, New Jersey and the Hawaiian Islands undetected by U. S. radar equipment."

"Target date for Communists to begin their all-out attack for world domination is set for the last days of 1965."

These statements are made and attested to by Kilsoo Haan, a diminutive, compact Korean, 65 years of age who has for the past 32 years headed the Korean Underground movement in the United States.

He is a dedicated man, a citizen of the United States and the man who in January of 1941 submitted to the Advisory Council of National Defense the complete 455-page Japanese Imperial High Command book of war plans which described in detail the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. The plans had been stolen and smuggled out to Haan by members of the Korean Underground. They were ignored.

On March 25, 1941, Haan submitted to the State Department the "Three Power Alliance and a United States-Japanese War" plans written in Japanese. It revealed the plan to send a "peace envoy" to Washington and during the talks the Japanese were to open a "sneak attack" on Pearl Harbor.

U. S. Senator Guy M. Gillette in April 1942 said, "The loyalties of certain Koreans to the interest of the United States, and especially the earnest, unremitting and tireless efforts of Mr. Kilsoo Haan, made this volume available to certain of our governmental agencies prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor."

On the 5th of December -- two days before the infamous date of the beginning of the war--Haan warned U. S. officials: "It is our considered observation and sincere belief that December is the month of the Japanese attack, and the suprise attack is aimed at Hawaii, perhaps the first Sunday in December."

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, in April, 1942, said, "The Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor had been accurately predicted by alert Korean exiles."

MANY ACCURATE PREDICTIONS

There is more. Much more to support the credulity of Kilsoo Haan . . . In May, 1950, Haan reported to the office of National Defense that Russians and North Korean armies had held joint maneuvers. South Korea was invaded by the joint forces in June of 1950...

Koreans reported that Russians had developed an A-bomb in May 1947. President Truman announced in 1949 that the Russians had exploded their first nuclear fission bomb in Siberia. The Russians announced on September 24th -- the day following Truman's revelation--that they had possessed the bomb since November, 1947.

The Korean Underground reported to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission the first Sputnik on June 29, 1954. The report revealed that Soviet scientists were working on their first space vehicle and that it would be launched by 1958. In October of 1957 the first Sputnik went into orbit...

To return to the statements made at the beginning of this article, Haan has this to say: "Soviet Russia now has 150 thermo-nuclear powered bombers capable of speeds in excess of 3500 miles per hour. These planes can remain aloft for from 90 to 120 days without refueling. They can lift loads many times greater than anything our planes can carry. And, (flying at 85,000 feet), they are not detectable on our radar devices."

The second statement is based on a report received by Haan and forwarded to Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Dec. 15, 1962. It stated: "Soviet Embassy officials and Mao Tse Tung held a conference at Mao's official residence in Peiping November 2, 1962. Soviet officials urged Mao and Chou En-Lai to revise their strategy and create a climate to ease U. S.-Red China tensions. Soviet officials stressed the need and importance of stockpiling grains, industrial products and machines if Sino-Soviet alliance is to attain its goal of realistic military readiness by 1965."

The report further stated that "Mao observed it would be advantageous to the alliance to fully exploit the Western Power's thinking that the Sino-Soviet alliance is in danger and will soon break apart." This, said Haan, was done to lull suspicions of the United States. And it came to pass...

On the Cuban situation, Haan says: "The removal--or seeming removal--of surface ICBM weapons in Cuba following the crisis of 1962 should not be taken as proof that the U. S. is safe from that quarter . . . Underwater launching pads not unlike submersible platforms now are in Cuba. They are capable of launching ICBM missiles of the Polaris type carried by our own nuclear-powered submarines, and have ranges from 1,000 miles. These are nuclear war-headed missiles.

"The Reds expect that civil defense troops in Cuba would be the invasion forces to be used on the southern and eastern coasts of the United States. Installations, which the Communists hope to place either in Bolivia, Uruguay or Chile area are to house additional civil defense troops which will invade the west coast and Alaska."

1965 CRITICAL YEAR

The year 1965 will be Soviet Russia's banner year, Haan says. "It is the year Soviet Russia will be at the height of nuclear war readiness, particularly in the field of nuclear weapons and its new delivery system--the fleet of space platforms." The reference to "space platforms" is not made lightly by the underground chief. Existence of th platforms was reported to Secretary of Defense Robert MacNamara on Aug. 20, 1962. Haan's report, as relayed to MacNamara, gives the following specifications for the vehicles: The vehicles weigh 10 tons, carry three and four-man cosmonaut teams and are capable of sustained flights lasting 14 to 21 days.

Each vehicle is equipped with rocket propulsion units to control speed and direction. Among the significant military features are the facts that platforms are capable of delivering and detonating nuclear bombs at designated enemy targets. They are able to launch and guide missiles. Their equipment includes a new anti-missile unit which can search out and destroy enemy missiles in flight. Soviet and Red Chinese high commands term it the ultimate nuclear warfare weapon. It is still in the experimental stage but the Soviets claim it will be ready by the winter of 1964 and, at that time, they will have an operational fleet of space platforms.

The following intelligence report has just been received from Kilsoo Haan of the Korean underground: "Three days before Khrushchev was ousted the Chief of Soviet Strategic Command, Marshal Nicolai Kraylov representing the Soviet Military high command called on Mao Tse Tung in Peiping.

"Marshal Kraylov told Mao Tse Tung Russia was in the final phase of nuclear preparation and it was necessary to remove Khrushchev. Beginning in 1965 Soviet high command will assist with Red China's "Arsenal of China" which is centered in the provinces of Kansu, Sinkiang and Tibet.

"The Russians agreed to equip for Red China: 1. Two underground plants for production of anti-aircraft weapons. 2. Two underground plants for production of medium range missiles. 3. One or more underground plants for production of jet bombers. 4. Two underground plants for production of nuclear tactical weapons. The Soviets also agreed to deliver 500 anti-aircraft weapons to Red China by February 1965.

"Marshal Kraylov expressed confidence that the Sino-Soviet military alliance can be militarily ready for any international emergency by late 1965 or early 1966."

TURNING POINT

Standing on a Northwest corner one night recently, two Negro youths . . . saw a gang of younger teen-agers snatch a purse from a 70-year-old woman . . . The two took off in pursuit, collared the purse-snatcher and, after a scrap with the gang, turned the culprit -- and the purse -- over to police.

The matter could have ended then, but it didn't. Police commended the two 18-year-olds, Erskine Gregory and Francis Wells. An anonymous donor sent then $50. School Superintendent Hansen sent his compliments, with an apt notation that the "good things young people perform" are too seldom noticed. At the Garnet-Patterson School the other night, more than 100 people turned out to honor the boys. And best of all, Lt. Tilman O'Bryant of the 2d Precinct has found them jobs.

Perhaps there is no moral of great significance in this story. But for these two youths, at least, that decision to do the right thing could have been a turning point in their lives. At least they have the opportunity now to make it so. -- The Evening Star (Washington)

EXPERIMENTAL MARSH SCREW AMPHIBIAN is tested in the water by U.S. Army General Test Activity, Fort Lee, Virginia. The 2300 pound vehicle is driven by two rotating pontoons with spiral blades. Rotation of the two pontoons in opposite directions causes forward or reverse movement depending upon direction of rotation. Sideways travel can be performed by disengaging one pontoon and rotating the other. Troops or cargo can be transported through water, swamps, sand beaches or snow. Four Reigning Kings Attend Funeral

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) —Four reigning kings are expected to attend the state funeral Saturday of Queen Louise of Sweden, great-granddaughter of Britain's Queen Victoria.

Together with the 75-year-old queen's husband, King Gustaf VI Adolf, 82, Kings Frederik IX of Denmark, Olav VI of Norway and Constantine II of Greece are to walk in the funeral procession through the streets of Stockholm.

Queen Louise died in a Stockholm hospital Sunday, four days after emergency surgery for removal of a blood clot in her right leg. A change in her main artery, the aorta, caused her heart to falter.

Her husband, confined to bed with a severe cold, rushed to St. Goeran Hospital when told his wife was dying. The king's daughter, Queen Ingrid of Denmark, was also at the hospital when the queen was pronounced dead.

The Swedish court prescribed a six-week mourning period, but there will be no lying in state.

400 Attend Regional Workshop

The Sikeston Public Schools were co-sponsores of a Regional Reading Workshop, with the Science Research Associates of Chicago, Ill., Saturday at the Senior High School. The workshop brought out over 400 teachers in elementary schools in grades one through nine, from Kentucky, western Tennessee, northern Arkansas, southern Illinois and southeast Missouri.

Due to the large number of teachers present separate sessions held simultaneously in three rooms on the high school campus, with average attendance of over 100 at each session, beginning at 9 a.m. and convening at 3 p.m.

Supt. Lynn Twitty, Sikeston, welcomed the large group of teachers, with three outstate instructors as the principal speakers. The keynoter was Mrs. Bernice T. Clark, director of reading, Maryvale school system, Buffalo, N.Y. Group leaders for other sessions were, Otto McClintock, reading coordinator, University City (Mo.) public school system, and director of a Ford Foundation grant in their school system. The second group leader was J. Kendall Hoggard, director of instruction, Eldorado City (Ark.) city schools.

The one day session went on harmoniously without a hitch and a 30-minute coffee break was held from 10:15 to 10:45 in the cafetorium. The sessions were held in two of the common rooms and the cafetorium.

Mrs. Clark, the keynoter, addressing junior high school teachers and administrators, used as her subject, "Principles and Concepts of Teaching Reading." She pointed out the methods and techniques of correlating reading with other content subjects such as a history, science, etc., and that reading overlaps in all subject areas. She stated that "there is much emphasis placed on need for individualized instruction in reading in elementary grades, which can be brought about through improved grouping methods."

In Mrs. Clark's address she stressed these meetings were to present some of the new methods of teaching reading, and how these methods may be inserted in our present program to improve instructions. The new methods are due to the tremendous increase of elementary students over the nation and the broadening of the subject matter now taught in the schools.

Mr. Hoggard discussed current methods of teaching reading in grades four, five and six. He emphasized the fact that where one method is not successful, for the teacher to try another, as there were a number of current methods of teaching reading which are quite effective. He stressed the necessity of effective grouping, according to a child's reading ability. "This can be determined," said Mr. Hoggard, "by a number of standardized reading tests available."

Mr. McClintock, who spoke in the cafetorium to teachers of grade one through grade three, pointed out the revolutionary methods of teaching reading on his subject, "Initial Teaching Alphabet." He stated that this method was developed in England and is now used to teach over 200,000 children in schools all over the United States.

"The topic of discussion is a new phonetic method which is supposed to simplify our present use of phonetics in teaching reading. "The method is to spell a word as it sounds phonetically, such as the syllables 'tion', 'sion', 'scion', would be spelled "shun."

Fine Leadership For Scouts

The Scouting program for boys and girls have good reason to thank Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Crites for the interest they have shown to youth during these past years.

Mrs. Crites is presently the leader of Brownie Troop #233 and has been with this group for two years. Their daughter, Cathy, is a second year Brownie. Mrs. Crites has also taken the leaders' training course in preparation for her work with the Brownies.

Mr. Crites is with the State Highway Department and he and his wife have taken an active interest in Boy Scouting. They have four sons, three who have earned their Eagle rank with the Palms. Each of the boys belong to the Order of the Arrow, one having received the Vigil honor, two having served as Lodge Chief and as camping counselors. The fourth son is now a Star Scout in Troop #41 in Sikeston. Mr. Crites has completed twelve years of Scouting, ten being in adult work.

The Crites family attend the Welsey Methodist Church.

The Girl Scout Council of Sikeston wishes to take this opportunity to say "thank you" to this family for their past work and continued interest in scouting in our community.

Mrs. Ralph W. Patton has been the assistant leader of Brownie Troop #233 for the past year. The Pattons have three children, two sons, Ralph and David, who are former scouts and a daughter, Susie, who is a first year Brownie. Mrs. Patton has also served four years as a Den Mother.

Mr. Patton is cotton buyer and the family attend the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

Former Sports Editor Injured And Is Critical

Bob Evans, former sports editor of the Standard, had a head-on collision with a tractor trailer truck Friday according to reports from the Highway Patrol of Illinois.

The accident occurred about three miles from Thebes "Y". He was taken to the St. Johns Hospital in St. Louis and is reported to be in critical condition and is still unconscious. He suffered multiple fractures of the arms and head.

The driver of the truck was James F. Simon of Clinton, Ky. He did not suffer any injuries. The truck is owned by the Edwards Trucking Company and was loaded with lambs. The truck was headed north when the accident occurred.

Four Persons Killed Over Weekend

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents in Missouri over the weekend.

Two died Sunday in a head-on collision at the crest of a hill on Highway 129 ten miles north of Buclin.

The dead were Ralph Oral Epperly, 56, the driver of one car, and his passenger, Ruby Lucine Boone, 46, both of New Boston, Mo.

The driver of the other car, Don Watson Bailey, 20, and a passenger in his car, Arthur Dale Adams, both of Brookfield, Mo., were hospitalized at Marceline.

A 15-year-old Kirksville boy was killed Sunday in the collision of the car in which he was riding and a Wabash freight train at a crossing in Kirksville. The victim, Richard Bruce McAlister, was a passenger in the car driven by his father, Bruce Morris McAlister, 44. The father and two other children were injured seriously.

The accident happened at a crossing about three blocks from the McAlister home.

Engineer Willard Russ of Moberly, told officers McAlister apparently did not see or hear the train although he blew the whistle and rang the bell.

William J. Murray, Pittsburg, Kan., was found dead Sunday in a car that had struck a bridge on a rural road about 12 miles southwest of Lamar, Mo., and 13 miles east of Pittsburg. The car plunged into about three feet of water.

Barton County officers said Murray drowned. They said the accident was not discovered until noon Sunday.

EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital over this past weekend.

William C. Corlew, Essex, Mo., injured in accident; Walter Bowman, New Madrid, Mo., shot foot during target practice; and Lloyd Merick, Sikeston, bitten by coon.

Hearing Is Expected To End Today

DALLAS (AP) — Qualified observers expect a court hearing today to end with an order for a sanity trial of Jack Ruby, the man condemned for killing presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown, who sentenced Ruby to death nearly a year ago, summoned lawyers for both sides under an order from the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to "judicially determine" the prisoner's mental state.

Ruby, a former night spot operator whose 54th birthday is March 25, has not been outside the Dallas County Jail for more than 10 months.

He was convicted last March 14 for the slaying of Oswald. It took place in the Dallas City Hall basement Nov. 24, 1963, two days after the assassination of President Kennedy. Oswald was being moved from the city to county jail.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, highest tribunal in the state on noncivil matters, issued instructions two weeks ago for Brown to find out whether Ruby is sane. It deferred hearing arguments on an appeal of his conviction until this information is provided by the tiral judge.

Defense counsel has contended Ruby's mental condition has deteriorated during his stay behind bars. Dist. Atty. Henry Wade has said his staff will argue Ruby is sane.

11 Accidents Occur Over Weekend

The state highway patrol reported 11 accidents, with one injury, but no fatalities over the weekend.

In Advance city limits Saturday at 4 p.m., a 1956 Plymouth driven by John Denning, 72, Advance, met a 1957 Ford driven by Jerrell Ladd, 19, at an unmarked intersection. The Dunning car struck the Ladd car in the side, with Dunning given a summons for not yielding the right-of-way. Neither of the two drivers received injuries.

Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Chaffee intersection of Hy. 77 and Yokum avenue, that involved three cars. A 1957 Olds driven by Doyle Norwin, 17, and going south, was struck by a 1962 Chevrolet driven by David Lee Halter, 17, route one, Chaffee, was going west. The Norwin car turned left to avoid the Halter car, while a third car, a 1956 Dodge driven by Marilyn Sue Dryeans, 18, Oran, was traveling north. No injuries were

Congress Looks At Bill For Assassins Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration submitted to Congress today a bill that would make it a federal crime to assassinate, kidnap or assault a president of the United States.

The bill, submitted by Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, applies also to the vice president or any other officer next in line of succession, the president-elect and the vice president-elect.

A number of similar bills have been submitted by Congressmen and senators since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Katzenbach said the administration bill is designed to implement the recommendation of the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren which investigated the assassination. He said Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon joined him in submitting the bill. Dillon was chairman of a committee appointed by President Johnson to study the report's recommendations.

The proposed law would apply a penalty of death or life imprisonment for killing or kidnaping the president or vice president, and a jail term of up to 15 years for assault.

In a letter to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and House Speaker John W. McCormack, Katzenbach said the Kennedy slaying "focused attention on an anaomaly in federal law: It is not a federal crime to assassinate the president, nor do federal investigative agencies have absolute jurisdiction to investigate the assassination of a president."

City Reports Three Arrests Over Weekend

The city police made three arrests over the weekend. Perry Moore, 327 N. Petty, charged with assault and affray, posted a $25 bond.

Richard Hobbs, 213 Petty, charged with disturbing the peace Saturday, was placed in the city jail.

Della Crawford, 226 N. Ranney, charged with being drunk in public Sunday, was placed in the city jail.

Scott County Students Go To University

MEMPHIS -- Fifteen Scott County students are enrolled for the spring semester at Memphis State University. They are James N. Stearnes, Shirley Anne Adams, Roger E. Cooper, Mara Jane Stacy, Michael V. Wissman, Linda Rex Lambert, Tommye E. Blackwelder, Dianna Frances Chuhak, Toby Ann McConnell, Evelyn Kay Sargent, Charles W. Boyce, Gary Dwayne Fama, Lynette Caskey, Larry Eugene Paylor, and Johnny Blackwelder, all of Sikeston.

University officials said enrollment for the spring term which totals nearly 10,000 students, increased 2,000 students over the same period last year, when about 7,800 students enrolled.

Spring semester classes began February 1 and will end with spring commencement, which will be held May 28.

Classes for the first summer term begin June 9.

Peter Trone To Talk To Sikeston High Students

Peter Trone who is Dean of Admissions for the Culver Summer Schools, operated by Culver Military Academy, will talk to interested Sikeston high school students during their homeroom period tomorrow, Tuesday, March 9, regarding the Theater and Fine Arts School now expanded from the Theater program of the past five years for boys and girls from 14 to 19. The theater facilities of the Eugene Eppley Auditorium at Culver are unsurpassed in the area from New York to Chicago.

This summer all phases of the fine arts will be available for boys and girls alike, in addition, to instruction in sports such as scuba diving, water skiing, swimming in the lake or the olympic pool, tennis, golf, track or baseball.

Mr. Trone will be at Lee Hunter School at 11:15 a.m. to show the film of regular Woodcraft, Naval and Cavalry Schools for interested parents of boys who will be eligible for the program this year or next.

PUTTING IT ON is Bill Hanna at his home on 103 Powers. Bill planted his lawn on top of the blanket of snow received here last week and he used a variety of Rye Grass.

Lawns Seeded On Snow

With the snow that fell here last week many lawns were planted with the seed being dropped on top of the blanket of snow.

Planting on the snow is thought by many to be an advantage. It is felt that the seeds will be carried into the soil as the snow melts. But on reports received from some of the seed dealers here in town this idea is wrong. The melting snow will not carry the seed into the ground, it will just help to seal the seed to the soil.

Most of the planting that has been done so far is with rye grass. This type of grass is mostly annual, which is planted in the spring and dies out in the fall. It will germinate quickly and will produce wide Wazen blades. The price of this type is normally economical and most low priced mixtures contain a heavy mixture of it. Also it is a grass useful in covering bare spots until such time as conditions allow putting in permanent grasses. It is best to sow it thick, (1 lb. per 150 sq. feet) and mow it often to lessen coarseness.

Seeding times come in the early fall, (late August or September), or early spring, (late February or March). In the more northern zones April is sometimes included to start a permanent lawn. At these times, weed competition is less of a problem. Rainfall is more dependable. Longer, cooler nights help early growth. . . Seeding at other times gives less assurance of establishing a permanent lawn.

Here is what is considered five musts for a fine lawn; High quality seeds of the right kind; Seeding at the right time; A good seed bed; Application of well-balanced fertilizer and enough moisture; Follow simple rules for maintenance.

Last Day For Senators To Introduce New Proposals

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Today was the last day for Missouri senators to introduce bills and a flood of new and old proposals was expected.

Included were about 30 bills to put into effect many of the governmental improvements suggested by the state "Little Hoover" Commission.

On the house side representatives were expected to get a new look at the controversial issue of providing school bus rides for parochial and private school pupils. It was shelved by a Senate committee last week.

The House proposal was expected to include a plan to submit the emotionally charged question to the people for a referendum vote.

House members have until March 18 to submit bills.

Another controversy comes up in a Senate committee tonight in the form of a bill to enact a broad public accommodations law in Missouri. The author is the Senate's first Negro member, Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis.

Two tax measures are on the legislative docket this week.

In the House the administration bill to plug a $6 million loophole in the sales tax law and, in effect, make the tax a gross receipts tax, is ready for debate. It was approved by a House committee last week, only a day after it was introduced.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee has before it a bill already passed by the House to authorize interest on income tax refunds owned to some 60,000 taxpayers. It was also recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

A bill to impose a severance tax on minerals taken from Missouri's earth also comes up before the House Mining Committee Wednesday night.

A host of other bills are scheduled for hearings this week-everything from humane slaughter of livestock to measures permitting taller and longer trucks.

Ready for passage in the House is a constitutional amendment recommended by the governor to allow a governor to succeed himself.

Mr. Hoggard discussed current methods of teaching reading in grades four, five and six. He emphasized the fact that where one method is not successful, for the teacher to try another, as there were a number of current methods of teaching reading which are quite effective. He stressed the necessity of effective grouping, according to a child's reading ability. "This can be determined," said Mr. Hoggard, "by a number of standardized reading tests available."

Mr. McClintock, who spoke in the cafetorium to teachers of grade one through grade three, pointed out the revolutionary methods of teaching reading on his subject, "Initial Teaching Alphabet." He stated that this method was developed in England and is now used to teach over 200,000 children in schools all over the United States.

"The topic of discussion is a new phonetic method which is supposed to simplify our present use of phonetics in teaching reading. "The method is to spell a word as it sounds phonetically, such as the syllables 'tion', 'sion', 'scion', would be spelled "shun."

Fine Leadership For Scouts

The Scouting program for boys and girls have good reason to thank Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Crites for the interest they have shown to youth during these past years.

Mrs. Crites is presently the leader of Brownie Troop #233 and has been with this group for two years. Their daughter, Cathy, is a second year Brownie. Mrs. Crites has also taken the leaders' training course in preparation for her work with the Brownies.

Mr. Crites is with the State Highway Department and he and his wife have taken an active interest in Boy Scouting. They have four sons, three who have earned their Eagle rank with the Palms. Each of the boys belong to the Order of the Arrow, one having received the Vigil honor, two having served as Lodge Chief and as camping counselors. The fourth son is now a Star Scout in Troop #41 in Sikeston. Mr. Crites has completed twelve years of Scouting, ten being in adult work.

The Crites family attend the Welsey Methodist Church.

The Girl Scout Council of Sikeston wishes to take this opportunity to say "thank you" to this family for their past work and continued interest in scouting in our community.

Mrs. Ralph W. Patton has been the assistant leader of Brownie Troop #233 for the past year. The Pattons have three children, two sons, Ralph and David, who are former scouts and a daughter, Susie, who is a first year Brownie. Mrs. Patton has also served four years as a Den Mother.

Mr. Patton is cotton buyer and the family attend the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

They bring to the area consumer a cooperative effort in sales for the best in merchandise in the bootheel. Shop with your home town merchants and keep your tax money at home where it will help you and the community.

Former Sports Editor Injured And Is Critical

Bob Evans, former sports editor of the Standard, hau a head-on collision with a tractor trailer truck Friday according to reports from the Highway Patrol of Illinois.

The accident occurred about three miles from Thebes "Y". He was taken to the St. Johns Hospital in St. Louis and is reported to be in critical condition and is still unconscious. He suffered multiple fractures of the arms and head.

The driver of the truck was James F. Simon of Clinton, Ky. He did not suffer any injuries. The truck is owned by the Edwards Trucking Company and was loaded with lambs. The truck was headed north when the accident occurred.

Four Persons Killed Over Weekend

Four persons were killed in traffic accidents in Missouri over the weekend.

Two died Sunday in a head-on collision at the crest of a hill on Highway 129 ten miles north of Buclin.

The dead were Ralph Oral Epperly, 56, the driver of one car, and his passenger, Ruby Lucine Boone, 46, both of New Boston, Mo.

The driver of the other car, Don Watson Bailey, 20, and a passenger in his car, Arthur Dale Adams, both of Brookfield, Mo., were hospitalized at Marceline.

A 15-year-old Kirksville boy was killed Sunday in the collision of the car in which he was riding and a Wabash freight train at a crossing in Kirksville. The victim, Richard Bruce McAlister, was a passenger in the car driven by his father, Bruce Morris McAlister, 44. The father and two other children were injured seriously.

The accident happened at a crossing about three blocks from the McAlister home.

Engineer Willard Russ of Moberly, told officers McAlister apparently did not see or hear the train although he blew the whistle and rang the bell.

William J. Murray, Pittsburg, Kan., was found dead Sunday in a car that had struck a bridge on a rural road about 12 miles southwest of Lamar, Mo., and 13 miles east of Pittsburg. The car plunged into about three feet of water.

Barton County officers said Murray drowned. They said the accident was not discovered until noon Sunday.

EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital over this past weekend.

William C. Corlew, Essex, Mo., injured in accident; Walter Bowman, New Madrid, Mo., shot foot during target practice; and Lloyd Merick, Sikeston, bitten by coon.

Hearing Is Expected To End Today

DALLAS (AP) — Qualified observers expect a court hearing today to end with an order for a sanity trial of Jack Ruby, the man condemned for killing presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown, who sentenced Ruby to death nearly a year ago, summoned lawyers for both sides under an order from the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to "judicially determine" the prisoner's mental state.

Ruby, a former night spot operator whose 54th birthday is March 25, has not been outside the Dallas County Jail for more than 10 months.

He was convicted last March 14 for the slaying of Oswald. It took place in the Dallas City Hall basement Nov. 24, 1963, two days after the assassination of President Kennedy. Oswald was being moved from the city to county jail.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, highest tribunal in the state on noncivil matters, issued instructions two weeks ago for Brown to find out whether Ruby is sane. It deferred hearing arguments on an appeal of his conviction until this information is provided by the tiral judge.

Defense counsel has contended Ruby's mental condition has deteriorated during his stay behind bars. Dist. Atty. Henry Wade has said his staff will argue Ruby is sane.

11 Accidents Occur Over Weekend

The state highway patrol reported 11 accidents, with one injury, but no fatalities over the weekend.

In Advance city limits Saturday at 4 p.m., a 1956 Plymouth driven by John Denning, 72, Advance, met a 1957 Ford driven by Jerrell Ladd, 19, at an unmarked intersection. The Dunning car struck the Ladd car in the side, with Dunning given a summons for not yielding the right-of-way. Neither of the two drivers received injuries.

Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Chaffee intersection of Hy. 77 and Yokum avenue, that involved three cars. A 1957 Olds driven by Doyle Norwin, 17, and going south, was struck by a 1962 Chevrolet driven by David Lee Halter, 17, route one, Chaffee, was going west. The Norwin car turned left to avoid the Halter car, while a third car, a 1956 Dodge driven by Marilyn Sue Dryeans, 18, Oran, was traveling north. No injuries were

Congress Looks At Bill For Assassins Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration submitted to Congress today a bill that would make it a federal crime to assassinate, kidnap or assault a president of the United States.

The bill, submitted by Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, applies also to the vice president or any other officer next in line of succession, the president-elect and the vice president-elect.

A number of similar bills have been submitted by Congressmen and senators since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Katzenbach said the administration bill is designed to implement the recommendation of the commission headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren which investigated the assassination. He said Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon joined him in submitting the bill. Dillon was chairman of a committee appointed by President Johnson to study the report's recommendations.

The proposed law would apply a penalty of death or life imprisonment for killing or kidnaping the president or vice president, and a jail term of up to 15 years for assault.

In a letter to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and House Speaker John W. McCormack, Katzenbach said the Kennedy slaying "focused attention on an anaomaly in federal law: It is not a federal crime to assassinate the president, nor do federal investigative agencies have absolute jurisdiction to investigate the assassination of a president."

City Reports Three Arrests Over Weekend

The city police made three arrests over the weekend. Perry Moore, 327 N. Petty, charged with assault and affray, posted a $25 bond.

Richard Hobbs, 213 Petty, charged with disturbing the peace Saturday, was placed in the city jail.

Della Crawford, 226 N. Ranney, charged with being drunk in public Sunday, was placed in the city jail.

Scott County Students Go To University

MEMPHIS -- Fifteen Scott County students are enrolled for the spring semester at Memphis State University. They are James N. Stearnes, Shirley Anne Adams, Roger E. Cooper, Mara Jane Stacy, Michael V. Wissman, Linda Rex Lambert, Tommye E. Blackwelder, Dianna Frances Chuhak, Toby Ann McConnell, Evelyn Kay Sargent, Charles W. Boyce, Gary Dwayne Fama, Lynette Caskey, Larry Eugene Paylor, and Johnny Blackwelder, all of Sikeston.

University officials said enrollment for the spring term which totals nearly 10,000 students, increased 2,000 students over the same period last year, when about 7,800 students enrolled.

Spring semester classes began February 1 and will end with spring commencement, which will be held May 28.

Classes for the first summer term begin June 9.

Peter Trone To Talk To Sikeston High Students

Peter Trone who is Dean of Admissions for the Culver Summer Schools, operated by Culver Military Academy, will talk to interested Sikeston high school students during their homeroom period tomorrow, Tuesday, March 9, regarding the Theater and Fine Arts School now expanded from the Theater program of the past five years for boys and girls from 14 to 19. The theater facilities of the Eugene Eppley Auditorium at Culver are unsurpassed in the area from New York to Chicago.

This summer all phases of the fine arts will be available for boys and girls alike, in addition, to instruction in sports such as scuba diving, water skiing, swimming in the lake or the olympic pool, tennis, golf, track or baseball.

Mr. Trone will be at Lee Hunter School at 11:15 a.m. to show the film of regular Woodcraft, Naval and Cavalry Schools for interested parents of boys who will be eligible for the program this year or next.

PUTTING IT ON is Bill Hanna at his home on 103 Powers. Bill planted his lawn on top of the blanket of snow received here last week and he used a variety of Rye Grass.

Lawns Seeded On Snow

With the snow that fell here last week many lawns were planted with the seed being dropped on top of the blanket of snow.

Planting on the snow is thought by many to be an advantage. It is felt that the seeds will be carried into the soil as the snow melts. But on reports received from some of the seed dealers here in town this idea is wrong. The melting snow will not carry the seed into the ground, it will just help to seal the seed to the soil.

Most of the planting that has been done so far is with rye grass. This type of grass is mostly annual, which is planted in the spring and dies out in the fall. It will germinate quickly and will produce wide Wazen blades. The price of this type is normally economical and most low priced mixtures contain a heavy mixture of it. Also it is a grass useful in covering bare spots until such time as conditions allow putting in permanent grasses. It is best to sow it thick, (1 lb. per 150 sq. feet) and mow it often to lessen coarseness.

Seeding times come in the early fall, (late August or September), or early spring, (late February or March). In the more northern zones April is sometimes included to start a permanent lawn. At these times, weed competition is less of a problem. Rainfall is more dependable. Longer, cooler nights help early growth. . . Seeding at other times gives less assurance of establishing a permanent lawn.

Here is what is considered five musts for a fine lawn; High quality seeds of the right kind; Seeding at the right time; A good seed bed; Application of well-balanced fertilizer and enough moisture; Follow simple rules for maintenance.

Last Day For Senators To Introduce New Proposals

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Today was the last day for Missouri senators to introduce bills and a flood of new and old proposals was expected.

Included were about 30 bills to put into effect many of the governmental improvements suggested by the state "Little Hoover" Commission.

On the house side representatives were expected to get a new look at the controversial issue of providing school bus rides for parochial and private school pupils. It was shelved by a Senate committee last week.

The House proposal was expected to include a plan to submit the emotionally charged question to the people for a referendum vote.

House members have until March 18 to submit bills.

Another controversy comes up in a Senate committee tonight in the form of a bill to enact a broad public accommodations law in Missouri. The author is the Senate's first Negro member, Sen. T. D. McNeal, D-St. Louis.

Two tax measures are on the legislative docket this week.

In the House the administration bill to plug a $6 million loophole in the sales tax law and, in effect, make the tax a gross receipts tax, is ready for debate. It was approved by a House committee last week, only a day after it was introduced.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee has before it a bill already passed by the House to authorize interest on income tax refunds owned to some 60,000 taxpayers. It was also recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

A bill to impose a severance tax on minerals taken from Missouri's earth also comes up before the House Mining Committee Wednesday night.

A host of other bills are scheduled for hearings this week-everything from humane slaughter of livestock to measures permitting taller and longer trucks.

Ready for passage in the House is a constitutional amendment recommended by the governor to allow a governor to succeed himself.

EUROPE'S AUTOMOBILE PROBLEMS

THEY PARK NOW on the sidewalks of the Champs Elysees, and almost anywhere else in Paris they can get away with it. Rome plans construction of a dozen parking garages. A pay-as-you-drive system -- charging fees for the use of congested streets -- has been proposed for London. An airline representative at a recent luncheon of the International Advertising Association in New York City showed a picture of a lovely street in Madrid and said, "Take away the trees and you've got Madison Avenue at noon."

Traffic jams in Rome are so commonplace that drivers roll back their sun roofs, and stand up and stretch. Forbidden to use their horns, Parisians bang furiously on the sides of their vehicles and call each other assassins. London traffic moves more decorously, but it can take an hour and a quarter to drive less than 15 miles at the peak 5-7 p.m. rush hour.

European policemen are notably skilled -- performing with the gestures and much of the elan of concert masters -- at breaking up jams. They see their duty as helping motorists, not catching them in law violations. But neither their ministrations nor time limitations on parking in the big cities have done much to speed up automobility.

PARIS has more than 1.5 million automobiles. A French magazine describes the city as caught in "the inferno of its traffic." Authorities awoke to the threat to the city's viability last year and adopted a master plan for regional development. An express highway is planned along the Seine, to the distress of aesthetes. Multilevel traffic is proposed, plus a $14.5 million ring road, or Boulevard Peripherique. Autoroutes -- express highways -- are under way out of the city.

Similar proposals for London and other cities in Britain are made in the recently published Buchanan Report. Meantime the London County Council is spending some $28 million a year for road improvements.

Rome, considerably smaller than either Paris or London, nevertheless has about half a million automobiles. The municipal council in December 1962 adopted a general town plan that calls for new housing and business and industrial complexes south of the historic area and similar areas southeast and northeast, all to be linked by an expressway.

WHILE EUROPE'S CITIES move at long last to relieve automotive strangulation, her ministers of transport have been more alert to accommodate themselves to the automobile era. A basic plan for a network of superhighways was laid down at a meeting in Geneva in 1950. A spider-web of 26 international routes was drawn, each with the letter "E" for Europe and each bearing a number.

Most of these routes bypass or freeway through the cities they connect, but they are linked to all important cities by secondary roads. Narrow winding town and city streets complicate Europe's traffic problems immeasureably.

Hitler's magnificent autobahnen, built for strategic military reasons, put Germany still far ahead of the rest of Europe. But the rest of Europe is catching up. Italy's Autostrada del Sole, stretching 468 miles from Milan to Naples, was completed last autumn. A 200-mile expressway across Switzerland eventually will connect the Italian road with the German autobahn from Basel to Hamburg. And in the more distant future the Continent will be linked to Britain by the proposed tunnel under the English Channel.

Today's smile: An employee of a defense plant appeared at the pay office window and carefully counted out his week's wages. "One dollar short," he said to the pay clerk. The clerk checked a list and said: "Last week we paid you a dollar extra, You didn't complain then," . . "One mistake is OK," the worker said, "but not two in a row."

NEWSPAPERS: A TESTED PRODUCT

National manufacturers realize that proof of worth of a product should be obtained by testing public acceptance.

In this connection the local newspaper is probably the most tested product sold.

Each issue is tested not just by a small sample, but by the entire public. Every subscription renewal is a vote of approval.

Advertising in a local paper is similarly tested week after week by merchants that buy space and by the consumers who act upon the advertising.

In recent years, newspaper publishers themselves are actually amazed by the increasing vote of confidence in their medium. It is not unusual to hear an old - time newspaper man say that his advertising is increasing so fast he scarcely has the time or facilities to handle it.

This, of course, is a reflection of a new attitude on the part of many merchants in small cities, who themselves have found newspaper advertising an investment which brings larger profits and new customers to rapidly changing trading centers. The overall effect for the merchants, the community, and the newspaper is "escalating."

That is, expansion in nearly any community begets expansion.

This is true for individual stores as well as the community as a whole.

Of course, the merchant enjoys the profit and the newspaper appreciates increased business, but neither can come without continuing expression of confidence in the news and advertising content printed in the local newspaper.

We would remind the PTA that it is not the Food and Drug Administration that has developed the means to investigate, develop and market the most astounding array of disease-preventing vaccines and miraculous pharmaceuticals imaginable. Rather, it is the drug industry of this country. ."

Knights of the Road, they've been called, because truck drivers generally are courteous and willing to help motorists who get into trouble.

A new test program of a safety device may make it even easier for truckers to help motorists. If the test is successful, national distribution of the devices will be carried out.

Light - reflective "pylons" that motorists can use to signal passing trucks for help were recently distributed in the Lansing, Michigan area, at Pure Oil Company stations. Pure is conducting the test program in cooperation with the Michigan Trucking Association and the American Trucking Associations Foundation.

One side of the pylon has reflective red and white stripes, indicating that the motorist needs help. A second side, with green and white stripes, is a signal that the vehicle is stopped but doesn't need assistance. The third side has a postcard for the motorist to use if he was assisted by a truck driver. This will provide both Pure and the trucking association with information and will enable them or the trucker's employer to give the driver recognition.

State trucking associations have been informed of the project and it's hoped that this pylon - signal will come to be recognized and accepted over the entire country. Millions of motorists eventually will carry the pylons, if the test is successful.

The three - sided cardboard pylon was developed after various designs had been tested by the Safety Department of the American Trucking Associations in Washington.

Whether used to ask for assistance from truck drivers or to warn other motorists of a stopped or stalled car on the roadsides, the reflective pylons can be valuable safety aids. They'll be one way to slow - down the excessively high night fatality rates on our highways, rates that are considerably higher than daytime death rates, despite reduced traffic at night. In 1961 there were 20,500 motor-vehicle deaths at night as compared with 17,-500 in daytime, according to the National Safety Council.

Once again, the American public is indebted to the truck drivers who volunteer help for motorists. Perhaps we should at least return their courtesy on the highway.

The Casualty Count by Jerry Marcus

Most vehicles involved in accidents are in good mechanical condition.

The butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker apparently spent in 1964 the amazing sum of almost $30 billion in modernization and expansion. The projected total is a precise $29,758,597,871 to be exact.

This is the projection given by the electronic computers scanning the first two weeks' returns from the current field survey being conducted among small and independent business by the National Federation of Independent Business.

The compilation of the first two weeks that totals 2,584 respondents in 38 states out of a total that will swell to 70,000 or more in all 50 states by year's end shows 853, or 33.01% expanded. In so doing, they invested $17,088,481, or an average of $20,033.39 each. They also provided 2,777 new jobs, or an average of 3.255 jobs each.

If the trend indicated by these first returns holds up, projected over the nation's 4,500,000 independent business enterprises it indicates that last year 1,485,450 independent firms expanded and provided 4,790,576 new jobs.

The total estimated investment made by the smaller entrepreneurs also far exceeds the $18-1/2 billion generally considered to have been invested by the big industrial complexes.

A substantial share of this spending, of course , was for automation equipment to further reduce their reliance on employees.

Practically all of the independent business expansion was made through private borrowing, and re-investment of earnings. Apparently government sponsored loans have had only a minor role in this expansion, according to the report by the Small Business Administration, which places its entire loans for the past 18 months at $44 million.

The expanding firms cover all areas of economic activity, although manufacturing and service industries account so far for well over half of the number.

Overall, the independent businessmen seem to feel that capital is available. This viewpoint is shared by 62% of all respondents, and by 64% of those who actually expanded. For those who report the unavailability of capital for expansion, lack of long term loans is the biggest barrier reported to expansion plans. A substantial share also report there is a lack of sources from which to secure capital.

This last situation appears to be spotty from a geographical standpoint. In the states of Florida, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, New Mexico, Ohio, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Minnesota, Mississippi, Oregon and Texas originate the biggest share of the reports of lack of capital sources.

On the other hand, there seems to be some hesitation on the part of many to borrow to expand. This impression is gained from the voluntary comments written by respondents.

For example, a substantial small manufacturer in the New England area who did expand last year comments "profit margins are too thin to add much more for interest charges". A processor in Texas with 28 employees who expanded writes "some of the economists need to figure out how to have a heavy natural growth in the economy instead of the artificial and heavy future borrowing taking place now".

A banker in the midwest writes "I feel it is wrong to try to accomplish the desired end by taking a tax off one place and putting it on another". The head of a midwest independent telephone company that expanded last year with an expenditure of $100,000 writes "If payroll tax was reduced we could hire more people".

So far the results seem to indicate that although capital is available to many independent businessmen, there is a reluctance to borrow for expansion. There seems to be a more than isolated sentiment that government policies have pushed interest rates up to a point not compatible with profit margins.

The reaction to tax cuts and revisions is showing an interesting pattern so far. Among all respondents, 65% feel that the 1964 income tax cut was no help in expanding. Of those who did expand, however, 51% seem to feel it was helpful.

However, in both categories there is being registered a substantial feeling that the tax revision of 1962 which permits small business to take a 7% credit against taxes on the cost of newly purchased equipment is a strong factor in promoting expansion. Of those who actually expanded 61% say this revision was most helpful. Next favored is the 1958 law which permits recovers in the first year of an extra 20% of the purchases of new equipment when computing taxes.

Of the various tax revisions including the excise tax cut, the independent businessmen appear to be somewhat apathetic, with only minorities being voted on all proposals except one, including even a proposal to permit them to deduct more from taxable income toward their own retirement programs.

However, there is being registered more than an 80% approval for the so-called plowback allowance which would permit a business to invest tax free in the enterprise up to 20% of a year's profits, to a maximum of $30,000.

This makes quite an interesting study by itself. It is developing quite clearly that the independent businessman is no where nearly as concerned over any measures that will give him some personal benefit, but rather, he is more interested in being able to expand his business and his payroll be being permitted to use more of the money he earns to accomplish this objective.

There is, for example, the famous story of the Presbyterian minister who was accused before a church court of having commited a grievous sin in having skated to his afternoon service one Winter Sunday.

And when he defended himself by arguing that skating was the only way of getting to the church, and could not therefore, be a sin, he was gruffly reminded that, "That's no' the point; the point is--did ye enjoy it?"--

The Ethical Outlook

H. L. Hunt Says

IN SOUTH VIET NAM

A majority of the people in South Viet Nam know little difference between communism and the profit motive system. Probably less than one-fourth of the people there oppose communism.

Those who are for freedom may not approve of the United States civilian or military leadership in charge of the assistance the United States government is offering them.

Many know of General Douglas MacArthur rebuilding war-torn Japan. They know of MacArthur's dismissal and our State Department's part in this tragedy. Many of them have heard of the known communists Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White and their co-workers who would have delighted in destroying MacArthur, and his greatness not made him indestructible. Many of them know the participants of the betrayal of China into communist domination by requiring Chiang Kai-Shek to set up a supposed neutral administration like the government Averell Harriman established in neighboring Laos.

They cannot concede that any Americans ever suspected of softness toward communism belong in the class with General MacArthur.

The Vietnamese might be willing to trust the U. S. State Department if they were more impressed with the loyalty of the free world leaders to their own nations and to the free world.

If the Vietnamese possess the wisdom to make them valuable to the free world and in defense of their country against the communists from the North and Sukarno from the South, this same wisdom may cause them to question what we will do in their behalf in South Viet Nam.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- In various foreign countries, including those friendly to the USA, President Johnson is getting the reputation of being a 2-gun Texan on foreign policy. He is accused of shooting from the hip.

This results from the image of Texans created by Hollywood and probably would be inevitable for any Texan who occupied the White House.

Real fact is, however, that the President has conducted foreign policy on a more even keel than any other recent president, certainly up until the current Vietnam crisis. Even during this difficult period he has been calm and collected.

One day after the first raids on North Vietnam, a caller found him working in his office until 9 p.m. on such problems as the dollar imbalance, appointments to the Federal Power Commission, racial and religious bigotry, and the farm program.

He looked tired, having been up most of one night during the Vietnam raids and was awakened the second night with two cabled reports from Saigon. He was worried over loss of American lives. But he was concentrating on the many difficult jobs facing an American President, as well as the almost impossible solution of the Indochinese impassee which he inherited.

Prior to the recent crisis, senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been impressed with the even-tempered conduct of foreign policy under Johnson. He has fallen back on his experience as Senate Majority Leader when he specialized on getting opposing sides to work together. In foreign affairs, he has recognized nations must also adjust to each other's point of view.

-- MOSCOW AND WASHINGTON--

Some Senators felt that he did not understand the factors behind the flag-burning incident in Panama last year; also was a little hasty in turning off Guantanamo water. But on the other hand he refused to fire back when President De Gaulle has taken sideswipes at the United States. He put the controversial MLF Naval Force for NATO on the back of the diplomatic stove when it aroused too much European dissension.

And the advice he gave Chancellor Erhard of Germany to explore avenues of better understanding with the Russians is considered the most stabilizing move recently made in Russian-German relations.

Johnson's most important foreign affairs achievement, however, was his steady build-up of confidence between Moscow and Washington which began with his sale of American wheat to Russia one year ago. This was followed by careful, well-timed moves to reduce arms both in the United States and the Soviet Union, a cutback in Plutonium, a Consular Treaty, scrapping of some bomber types and, more recently, the proposal of a Johnson-Kosygin exchange of visits.

This was not the work of a 2-gun Texan, and it had achieved more confidence between two hitherto suspicious countries than at any time since the war. Whether this will be upset by the Vietnam crisis remains to be seen. But it should be noted that before the Vietnam retaliation, President Johnson has authorized a third government to sound out the Chinese about a truce whereby the United States would withdraw from South Vietnam if the Chinese would end guerrilla warfare in that area. This was rejected.

In contrast to Johnson's even-keel conduct of foreign affairs, diplomats recall the Korean War and the Berlin airlift under Truman, plus his sudden statements about dropping the A-bomb in Korea which brought Prime Minister Attlee scurrying across the Atlantic from London; his scolding of Stalin for turning up late at Potsdam, and various other 2-gun statements.

--2-GUN PRESIDENT--

They also recall the mercurial foreign policy of Eisenhower which welcomed Khrushchev to Washington one month, then had him bellowing over the U-2 incident; a policy which lost Cuba to Castro, landed troops in Lebanon, had the 7th Fleet scurrying all around the China coast in the crisis over Formosa, and which proposed landing troops in Vietnam, then finally backed away from it.

President Kennedy also conducted foreign affairs, at times, more like a 2-gun Texan than a Harvard grad from Boston. Diplomats recall how he announced in February 1961 that we would never retreat in Laos, then pulled out of Laos a few months later; how he flew 50,-000 troops to West Germany then pulled them out later; how he waited to confer with Khrushchev until after he was in a weakened position as a result of the Bay of Pigs fiasco--though Adlai Stevenson and others had urged him to begin talks with Khrushchev much earlier when the Russian leader was in a much friendlier frame of mind.

It was mercurial foreign policy and the deterioration of our relations both with Cuba and Russia that led to the Cuban missile crisis. In the end, Kennedy handled this with masterful skill. Nevertheless, a successful foreign policy is one which prevents a crisis from becoming a crisis, not letting it boil until it almost precipitates World War III.

President Johnson may have such a crisis in Vietnam right now. But up until now, he has been anything but a 2-gun Texan. Now that he is in it, however, he is exerting the old college try on his Senate friends to an unprecedented degree, as will be revealed in an early column.

--SOUTHERNER DEFENDS HARLEM CONGRESSMAN--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem is not especially popular with his colleagues from the South. Southern congressmen are polite and courteous to the handsome, eloquent chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, but they neither love him nor go out of their way to defend him.

However, Powell got strong support from a southerner, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., in a hot closed-door debate with Rep. William Ayres, R-Ohio.

Ayres, the top Republican on Powell's Committee, had been abetting the tieup of expense money for the committee. Finally Perkins called his hand.

"Why don't you tell us your true feelings?" he asked Ayres. "You have been attacking Mr. Powell and myself too. That doesn't help the Education Bill, which has been under consideration by my subcommittee. Besides, your personal remarks are unwarranted."

"I deny your charge that I have been conducting a political vendetta," shot back Ayres.

"Oh, I can prove it," declared Perkins. "You made a bitter assault on Mr. Powell recently in Ashland, Ky., when you addressed a Republican group there. I have the press clipping."

"Let's get the clipping from your office," suggested Powell, who was present. Then this was done, and Perkins read aloud from a news account in the Ashland Daily Independent.

"Davis S. McGuire, assistant city editor of The Daily Independent, quoted you as telling a Lincoln Day audience: 'People write me as the ranking Republican on the Education Committee and ask why I can't help get rid of Adam Clayton Powell or the congressman from your district.

" 'Well, all I can say to you,' " Perkins continued to read, " ' Is that you have the Constitutional power to do something about getting rid of him (Perkins), but I don't.' "

"That's untrue," bellowed Ayres. "I didn't say that. I was misquoted."

"Well, I have the utmost faith in this newspaper," snapped Perkins. "It's objective and it prints the facts. The reporter who wrote the story would have no reason to garble what happened."

About the only one at one closed hearing who seemed to enjoy the flareup was Powell, who sat back in his chair and grinned.

Washington, D. C.: -- What price courage?

When the rewards are blood and terror and beatings of those who show the spirit, the crusader understands it and takes it without a whimper. But when the reward is defamation of character by a high government official, it is irony enough to break any spirit.

This is the story -- and fate -- of a brave man who crusaded single - handed against the machine inside the Teamsters until one day Jimmie Hoffa slugged him, pummeled him, threw him over a chair bleeding, bruised and semi-conscious.

The loner in this story is Sam Baron, a gentle man, a literate man, an honest and respected man, a decent labor leader, who is now suffering because of that very same decency.

The slightly built, 62-year-old Mr. Baron is in the news these days because the chief counsel of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee -- Bernard Fensterwald Jr. -- called him a "fink" and a "stool pigeon."

Mr. Fensterwald, deliberately and insultingly spelled out the world "F-I-N-K", while cross - examining Robert Kennedy the other day during a hearing of the subcommittee on invasion of privacy. Sen. Kennedy had been accused of attempting to plant an article by Mr. Baron on Jimmie Hoffa in Life magazine.

Mr. Fensterwald, an officer of the law, asked why Sen. Kennedy would do this for a "fink." The nation now knows that Mr. Kennedy angrily denied this and sharply protested the characterization of Mr. Baron.

Bob Kennedy is quite capable of taking care of himself. But what of Mr. Baron, now in Montreal?

Who will rise in his defense against the charges of a Senate committee's chief counsel who by calling Mr. Baron a "fink" charged him with being a strike-breaker and a labor spy? That is the actual meaning of the word "fink."

Mr. Baron was not and is not a labor spy. He never hid his animosity towards Jimmy Hoffa and the kind of regime the twice - convicted Teamsters' president has run.

Mr. Baron is one of those daring men who always seems to rise at the right moment at the strategic crossroads to battle for decency. It is the Sam Barons of the country to whom the citizenry, especially the industrialists and labor's rank and file, should be grateful for not being overrun by muscle.

Mr. Baron always was one to give a working Joe a hand. Back in the glamorous twenties he was a vice president of a famous movie company. He gave up the tinsel and the golden salary to help rank and file working people.

He joined the International Ladies Garment Workers union and fought infiltrating chiselers in the garment jungle.

The Textile Workers Union offered him a vice presidency. He took it and worked hard at it, respected by both labor and management here and in Canada.

Then in 1952, long before Jimmy H. became a national story and long before the tough-muscled man from Detroit shifted from white socks to hand - tailored suits and a $94,000-a-year union income, national teamster's officials asked Mr. Baron to join the union.

He did. They made him Executive Field Director of the Brotherhood's Warehouse Division in charge of some 500,-000 men.

As a free - spending Hoffa rose to power in the union, Sam Baron treated him with distaste. After Hoffa replaced Dave Beck, the Hoffa forces organized what is known as the "Chicago Caucus" to consolidate his power.

The boys needed Mr. Baron's respectability and eloquence as fronts. They asked him to become the caucus' secretary-treasurer. He refused. He began to fight Hoffa when others ran in terror.

Mr. Baron was horrified by what he saw inside the sprawling union. As men have done through the decades when they could not single - handedly upset a powerful union machine, he sought aid inside the government.

There were no conflicts of ethical considerations. Sam Baron is a trade unionist -- a clean labor man. This was consistent with going to the probers of the McClellan racket - probing committee, to the Justice Dept. and the FBI.

But he never once betrayed the half a million men for whom he bargained. On the morning of May 17, 1962, a Teamster publication was placed on the 30-foot-wide desk of Jimmie Hoffa.

It contained praise of Mr. Baron's dedication and ability, which he showed though the doctors had long advised him to ease off and submit to badly-needed stomach surgery.

At 10:20 that morning he disagreed with Hoffa over some matter of written reports. The Teamsters' president roared and slugged Baron. There are color photos to prove it.

Mr. Baron quit later. But he did give courage to many honest Teamsters in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and on the West Coast.

They, too, have been cooperating with the government in an effort to avoid being ground down by the machine.

Now a representative of that government rewards a crusader by calling him a "F-I-N-K."

What of the others now making the same fight? What price courage now?

There are many ways to blur a crusader's vision.

EUROPE'S AUTOMOBILE PROBLEMS

THEY PARK NOW on the sidewalks of the Champs Elysees, and almost anywhere else in Paris they can get away with it. Rome plans construction of a dozen parking garages. A pay-as-you-drive system -- charging fees for the use of congested streets -- has been proposed for London. An airline representative at a recent luncheon of the International Advertising Association in New York City showed a picture of a lovely street in Madrid and said, "Take away the trees and you've got Madison Avenue at noon."

Traffic jams in Rome are so commonplace that drivers roll back their sun roofs, and stand up and stretch. Forbidden to use their horns, Parisians bang furiously on the sides of their vehicles and call each other assassins. London traffic moves more decorously, but it can take an hour and a quarter to drive less than 15 miles at the peak 5-7 p.m. rush hour.

European policemen are notably skilled -- performing with the gestures and much of the elan of concert masters -- at breaking up jams. They see their duty as helping motorists, not catching them in law violations. But neither their ministrations nor time limitations on parking in the big cities have done much to speed up automobility.

PARIS has more than 1.5 million automobiles. A French magazine describes the city as caught in "the inferno of its traffic." Authorities awoke to the threat to the city's viability last year and adopted a master plan for regional development. An express highway is planned along the Seine, to the distress of aesthetes. Multilevel traffic is proposed, plus a $14.5 million ring road, or Boulevard Peripherique. Autoroutes -- express highways -- are under way out of the city.

Similar proposals for London and other cities in Britain are made in the recently published Buchanan Report. Meantime the London County Council is spending some $28 million a year for road improvements.

Rome, considerably smaller than either Paris or London, nevertheless has about half a million automobiles. The municipal council in December 1962 adopted a general town plan that calls for new housing and business and industrial complexes south of the historic area and similar areas southeast and northeast, all to be linked by an expressway.

WHILE EUROPE'S CITIES move at long last to relieve automotive strangulation, her ministers of transport have been more alert to accommodate themselves to the automobile era. A basic plan for a network of superhighways was laid down at a meeting in Geneva in 1950. A spider-web of 26 international routes was drawn, each with the letter "E" for Europe and each bearing a number.

Most of these routes bypass or freeway through the cities they connect, but they are linked to all important cities by secondary roads. Narrow winding town and city streets complicate Europe's traffic problems immeasureably.

Hitler's magnificent autobahnen, built for strategic military reasons, put Germany still far ahead of the rest of Europe. But the rest of Europe is catching up. Italy's Autostrada del Sole, stretching 468 miles from Milan to Naples, was completed last autumn. A 200-mile expressway across Switzerland eventually will connect the Italian road with the German autobahn from Basel to Hamburg. And in the more distant future the Continent will be linked to Britain by the proposed tunnel under the English Channel.

NEWSPAPERS: A TESTED PRODUCT

National manufacturers realize that proof of worth of a product should be obtained by testing public acceptance.

In this connection the local newspaper is probably the most tested product sold.

Each issue is tested not just by a small sample, but by the entire public. Every subscription renewal is a vote of approval.

Advertising in a local paper is similarly tested week after week by merchants that buy space and by the consumers who act upon the advertising.

In recent years, newspaper publishers themselves are actually amazed by the increasing vote of confidence in their medium. It is not unusual to hear an old - time newspaper man say that his advertising is increasing so fast he scarcely has the time or facilities to handle it.

This, of course, is a reflection of a new attitude on the part of many merchants in small cities, who themselves have found newspaper advertising an investment which brings larger profits and new customers to rapidly changing trading centers. The overall effect for the merchants, the community, and the newspaper is "escalating."

That is, expansion in nearly any community begets expansion.

This is true for individual stores as well as the community as a whole.

Of course, the merchant enjoys the profit and the newspaper appreciates increased business, but neither can come without continuing expression of confidence in the news and advertising content printed in the local newspaper.

Knights of the Road, they've been called, because truck drivers generally are courteous and willing to help motorists who get into trouble.

A new test program of a safety device may make it even easier for truckers to help motorists. If the test is successful, national distribution of the devices will be carried out.

Light - reflective "pylons" that motorists can use to signal passing trucks for help were recently distributed in the Lansing, Michigan area, at Pure Oil Company stations. Pure is conducting the test program in cooperation with the Michigan Trucking Association and the American Trucking Associations Foundation.

One side of the pylon has reflective red and white stripes, indicating that the motorist needs help. A second side, with green and white stripes, is a signal that the vehicle is stopped but doesn't need assistance. The third side has a postcard for the motorist to use if he was assisted by a truck driver. This will provide both Pure and the trucking association with information and will enable them or the trucker's employer to give the driver recognition.

State trucking associations have been informed of the project and it's hoped that this pylon - signal will come to be recognized and accepted over the entire country. Millions of motorists eventually will carry the pylons, if the test is successful.

The three - sided cardboard pylon was developed after various designs had been tested by the Safety Department of the American Trucking Associations in Washington.

Whether used to ask for assistance from truck drivers or to warn other motorists of a stopped or stalled car on the roadsides, the reflective pylons can be valuable safety aids. They'll be one way to slow - down the excessively high night fatality rates on our highways, rates that are considerably higher than daytime death rates, despite reduced traffic at night. In 1961 there were 20,500 motor-vehicle deaths at night as compared with 17,-500 in daytime, according to the National Safety Council.

Once again, the American public is indebted to the truck drivers who volunteer help for motorists. Perhaps we should at least return their courtesy on the highway.

The Casualty Count by Jerry Marcus

Most vehicles involved in accidents are in good mechanical condition.

The butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker apparently spent in 1964 the amazing sum of almost $30 billion in modernization and expansion. The projected total is a precise $29,758,597,871 to be exact.

This is the projection given by the electronic computers scanning the first two weeks' returns from the current field survey being conducted among small and independent business by the National Federation of Independent Business.

The compilation of the first two weeks that totals 2,584 respondents in 38 states out of a total that will swell to 70,000 or more in all 50 states by year's end shows 853, or 33.01% expanded. In so doing, they invested $17,088,481, or an average of $20,033.39 each. They also provided 2,777 new jobs, or an average of 3.255 jobs each.

If the trend indicated by these first returns holds up, projected over the nation's 4,500,000 independent business enterprises it indicates that last year 1,485,450 independent firms expanded and provided 4,790,576 new jobs.

The total estimated investment made by the smaller entrepreneurs also far exceeds the $18-1/2 billion generally considered to have been invested by the big industrial complexes.

A substantial share of this spending, of course , was for automation equipment to further reduce their reliance on employees.

Practically all of the independent business expansion was made through private borrowing, and re-investment of earnings. Apparently government sponsored loans have had only a minor role in this expansion, according to the report by the Small Business Administration, which places its entire loans for the past 18 months at $44 million.

The expanding firms cover all areas of economic activity, although manufacturing and service industries account so far for well over half of the number.

Overall, the independent businessmen seem to feel that capital is available. This viewpoint is shared by 62% of all respondents, and by 64% of those who actually expanded. For those who report the unavailability of capital for expansion, lack of long term loans is the biggest barrier reported to expansion plans. A substantial share also report there is a lack of sources from which to secure capital.

This last situation appears to be spotty from a geographical standpoint. In the states of Florida, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, New Mexico, Ohio, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Minnesota, Mississippi, Oregon and Texas originate the biggest share of the reports of lack of capital sources.

On the other hand, there seems to be some hesitation on the part of many to borrow to expand. This impression is gained from the voluntary comments written by respondents.

For example, a substantial small manufacturer in the New England area who did expand last year comments "profit margins are too thin to add much more for interest charges". A processor in Texas with 28 employees who expanded writes "some of the economists need to figure out how to have a heavy natural growth in the economy instead of the artificial and heavy future borrowing taking place now".

A banker in the midwest writes "I feel it is wrong to try to accomplish the desired end by taking a tax off one place and putting it on another". The head of a midwest independent telephone company that expanded last year with an expenditure of $100,000 writes "If payroll tax was reduced we could hire more people".

So far the results seem to indicate that although capital is available to many independent businessmen, there is a reluctance to borrow for expansion. There seems to be a more than isolated sentiment that government policies have pushed interest rates up to a point not compatible with profit margins.

The reaction to tax cuts and revisions is showing an interesting pattern so far. Among all respondents, 65% feel that the 1964 income tax cut was no help in expanding. Of those who did expand, however, 51% seem to feel it was helpful.

However, in both categories there is being registered a substantial feeling that the tax revision of 1962 which permits small business to take a 7% credit against taxes on the cost of newly purchased equipment is a strong factor in promoting expansion. Of those who actually expanded 61% say this revision was most helpful. Next favored is the 1958 law which permits recovers in the first year of an extra 20% of the purchases of new equipment when computing taxes.

Of the various tax revisions including the excise tax cut, the independent businessmen appear to be somewhat apathetic, with only minorities being voted on all proposals except one, including even a proposal to permit them to deduct more from taxable income toward their own retirement programs.

However, there is being registered more than an 80% approval for the so-called plow-back allowance which would permit a business to invest tax free in the enterprise up to 20% of a year's profits, to a maximum of $30,000.

This makes quite an interesting study by itself. It is developing quite clearly that the independent businessman is no where nearly as concerned over any measures that will give him some personal benefit, but rather, he is more interested in being able to expand his business and his payroll be being permitted to use more of the money he earns to accomplish this objective.

The Ethical Outlook

H. L. Hunt Says

IN SOUTH VIET NAM

A majority of the people in South Viet Nam know little difference between communism and the profit motive system. Probably less than one-fourth of the people there oppose communism.

Those who are for freedom may not approve of the United States civilian or military leadership in charge of the assistance the United States government is offering them.

Many know of General Douglas MacArthur rebuilding war-torn Japan. They know of MacArthur's dismissal and our State Department's part in this tragedy. Many of them have heard of the known communists Alger Hiss and Harry Dexter White and their co-workers who would have delighted in destroying MacArthur, and his greatness not made him indestructible. Many of them know the participants of the betrayal of China into communist domination by requiring Chiang Kai-Shek to set up a supposed neutral administration like the government Averell Harriman established in neighboring Laos.

They cannot concede that any Americans ever suspected of softness toward communism belong in the class with General MacArthur.

The Vietnamese might be willing to trust the U. S. State Department if they were more impressed with the loyalty of the free world leaders to their own nations and to the free world.

If the Vietnamese possess the wisdom to make them valuable to the free world and in defense of their country against the communists from the North and Sukarno from the South, this same wisdom may cause them to question what we will do in their behalf in South Viet Nam.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- In various foreign countries, including those friendly to the USA, President Johnson is getting the reputation of being a 2-gun Texan on foreign policy. He is accused of shooting from the hip.

This results from the image of Texans created by Hollywood and probably would be inevitable for any Texan who occupied the White House.

Real fact is, however, that the President has conducted foreign policy on a more even keel than any other recent president, certainly up until the current Vietnam crisis. Even during this difficult period he has been calm and collected.

One day after the first raids on North Vietnam, a caller found him working in his office until 9 p.m. on such problems as the dollar imbalance, appointments to the Federal Power Commission, racial and religious bigotry, and the farm program.

He looked tired, having been up most of one night during the Vietnam raids and was awakened the second night with two cabled reports from Saigon. He was worried over loss of American lives. But he was concentrating on the many difficult jobs facing an American President, as well as the almost impossible solution of the Indochinese impassee which he inherited.

Prior to the recent crisis, senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been impressed with the even-tempered conduct of foreign policy under Johnson. He has fallen back on his experience as Senate Majority Leader when he specialized on getting opposing sides to work together. In foreign affairs, he has recognized nations must also adjust to each other's point of view.

-- MOSCOW AND WASHINGTON--

Some Senators felt that he did not understand the factors behind the flag-burning incident in Panama last year; also was a little hasty in turning off Guantanamo water. But on the other hand he refused to fire back when President De Gaulle has taken sideswipes at the United States. He put the controversial MLF Naval Force for NATO on the back of the diplomatic stove when it aroused too much European dissension.

And the advice he gave Chancellor Erhard of Germany to explore avenues of better understanding with the Russians is considered the most stabilizing move recently made in Russian-German relations.

Johnson's most important foreign affairs achievement, however, was his steady build-up of confidence between Moscow and Washington which began with his sale of American wheat to Russia one year ago. This was followed by careful, well-timed moves to reduce arms both in the United States and the Soviet Union, a cutback in Plutonium, a Consular Treaty, scrapping of some bomber types and, more recently, the proposal of a Johnson-Kosygin exchange of visits.

This was not the work of a 2-gun Texan, and it had achieved more confidence between two hitherto suspicious countries than at any time since the war. Whether this will be upset by the Vietnam crisis remains to be seen. But it should be noted that before the Vietnam retaliation, President Johnson has authorized a third government to sound out the Chinese about a truce whereby the United States would withdraw from South Vietnam if the Chinese would end guerrilla warfare in that area. This was rejected.

In contrast to Johnson's even-keel conduct of foreign affairs, diplomats recall the Korean War and the Berlin airlift under Truman, plus his sudden statements about dropping the A-bomb in Korea which brought Prime Minister Attlee scurrying across the Atlantic from London; his scolding of Stalin for turning up late at Potsdam, and various other 2-gun statements.

--2-GUN PRESIDENT--

They also recall the mercurial foreign policy of Eisenhower which welcomed Khrushchev to Washington one month, then had him bellowing over the U-2 incident; a policy which lost Cuba to Castro, landed troops in Lebanon, had the 7th Fleet scurrying all around the China coast in the crisis over Formosa, and which proposed landing troops in Vietnam, then finally backed away from it.

President Kennedy also conducted foreign affairs, at times, more like a 2-gun Texan than a Harvard grad from Boston. Diplomats recall how he announced in February 1961 that we would never retreat in Laos, then pulled out of Laos a few months later; how he flew 50,-000 troops to West Germany then pulled them out later; how he waited to confer with Khrushchev until after he was in a weakened position as a result of the Bay of Pigs fiasco--though Adlai Stevenson and others had urged him to begin talks with Khrushchev much earlier when the Russian leader was in a much friendlier frame of mind.

It was mercurial foreign policy and the deterioration of our relations both with Cuba and Russia that led to the Cuban missile crisis. In the end, Kennedy handled this with masterful skill. Nevertheless, a successful foreign policy is one which prevents a crisis from becoming a crisis, not letting it boil until it almost precipitates World War III.

President Johnson may have such a crisis in Vietnam right now. But up until now, he has been anything but a 2-gun Texan. Now that he is in it, however, he is exerting the old college try on his Senate friends to an unprecedented degree, as will be revealed in an early column.

--SOUTHERNER DEFENDS HARLEM CONGRESSMAN--

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem is not especially popular with his colleagues from the South. Southern congressmen are polite and courteous to the handsome, eloquent chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, but they neither love him nor go out of their way to defend him.

However, Powell got strong support from a southerner, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., in a hot closed-door debate with Rep. William Ayres, R-Ohio.

Ayres, the top Republican on Powell's Committee, had been abetting the tieup of expense money for the committee. Finally Perkins called his hand.

"Why don't you tell us your true feelings?" he asked Ayres. "You have been attacking Mr. Powell and myself too. That doesn't help the Education Bill, which has been under consideration by my subcommittee. Besides, your personal remarks are unwarranted."

"I deny your charge that I have been conducting a political vendetta," shot back Ayres.

"Oh, I can prove it," declared Perkins. "You made a bitter assault on Mr. Powell recently in Ashland, Ky., when you addressed a Republican group there. I have the press clipping."

"Let's get the clipping from your office," suggested Powell, who was present. Then this was done, and Perkins read aloud from a news account in the Ashland Daily Independent.

"Davis S. McGuire, assistant city editor of The Daily Independent, quoted you as telling a Lincoln Day audience: 'People write me as the ranking Republican on the Education Committee and ask why I can't help get rid of Adam Clayton Powell or the congressman from your district.

" 'Well, all I can say to you,' " Perkins continued to read, " ' Is that you have the Constitutional power to do something about getting rid of him (Perkins), but I don't.' "

"That's untrue," bellowed Ayres. "I didn't say that. I was misquoted."

"Well, I have the utmost faith in this newspaper," snapped Perkins. "It's objective and it prints the facts. The reporter who wrote the story would have no reason to garble what happened."

About the only one at one closed hearing who seemed to enjoy the flareup was Powell, who sat back in his chair and grinned.

Washington, D. C.: -- What price courage?

When the rewards are blood and terror and beatings of those who show the spirit, the crusader understands it and takes it without a whimper. But when the reward is defamation of character by a high government official, it is irony enough to break any spirit.

This is the story -- and fate -- of a brave man who crusaded single - handed against the machine inside the Teamsters until one day Jimmie Hoffa slugged him, pummeled him, threw him over a chair bleeding, bruised and semi-conscious.

The loner in this story is Sam Baron, a gentle man, a literate man, an honest and respected man, a decent labor leader, who is now suffering because of that very same decency.

The slightly built, 62-year-old Mr. Baron is in the news these days because the chief counsel of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee -- Bernard Fensterwald Jr. -- called him a "fink" and a "stool pigeon."

Mr. Fensterwald, deliberately and insultingly spelled out the world "F-I-N-K", while cross - examining Robert Kennedy the other day during a hearing of the subcommittee on invasion of privacy. Sen. Kennedy had been accused of attempting to plant an article by Mr. Baron on Jimmie Hoffa in Life magazine.

Mr. Fensterwald, an officer of the law, asked why Sen. Kennedy would do this for a "fink." The nation now knows that Mr. Kennedy angrily denied this and sharply protested the characterization of Mr. Baron.

Bob Kennedy is quite capable of taking care of himself. But what of Mr. Baron, now in Montreal?

Who will rise in his defense against the charges of a Senate committee's chief counsel who by calling Mr. Baron a "fink" charged him with being a strike-breaker and a labor spy? That is the actual meaning of the word "fink."

Mr. Baron was not and is not a labor spy. He never hid his animosity towards Jimmy Hoffa and the kind of regime the twice - convicted Teamsters' president has run.

Mr. Baron is one of those daring men who always seems to rise at the right moment at the strategic crossroads to battle for decency. It is the Sam Barons of the country to whom the citizenry, especially the industrialists and labor's rank and file, should be grateful for not being overrun by muscle.

Mr. Baron always was one to give a working Joe a hand. Back in the glamorous twenties he was a vice president of a famous movie company. He gave up the tinsel and the golden salary to help rank and file working people.

He joined the International Ladies Garment Workers union and fought infiltrating chiselers in the garment jungle.

The Textile Workers Union offered him a vice presidency. He took it and worked hard at it, respected by both labor and management here and in Canada.

Then in 1952, long before Jimmy H. became a national story and long before the tough-muscled man from Detroit shifted from white socks to hand - tailored suits and a $94,000-a-year union income, national teamster's officials asked Mr. Baron to join the union.

He did. They made him Executive Field Director of the Brotherhood's Warehouse Division in charge of some 500,-000 men.

As a free - spending Hoffa rose to power in the union, Sam Baron treated him with distaste. After Hoffa replaced Dave Beck, the Hoffa forces organized what is known as the "Chicago Caucus" to consolidate his power.

The boys needed Mr. Baron's respectability and eloquence as fronts. They asked him to become the caucus' secretary-treasurer. He refused. He began to fight Hoffa when others ran in terror.

Mr. Baron was horrified by what he saw inside the sprawling union. As men have done through the decades when they could not single - handedly upset a powerful union machine, he sought aid inside the government.

There were no conflicts of ethical considerations. Sam Baron is a trade unionist -- a clean labor man. This was consistent with going to the probers of the McClellan racket - probing committee, to the Justice Dept. and the FBI.

But he never once betrayed the half a million men for whom he bargained. On the morning of May 17, 1962, a Teamster publication was placed on the 30-foot-wide desk of Jimmie Hoffa.

It contained praise of Mr. Baron's dedication and ability, which he showed though the doctors had long advised him to ease off and submit to badly-needed stomach surgery.

At 10:20 that morning he disagreed with Hoffa over some matter of written reports. The Teamsters' president roared and slugged Baron. There are color photos to prove it.

Mr. Baron quit later. But he did give courage to many honest Teamsters in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio and on the West Coast.

They, too, have been cooperating with the government in an effort to avoid being ground down by the machine.

Now a representative of that government rewards a crusader by calling him a "F-I-N-K."

What of the others now making the same fight? What price courage now?

There are many ways to blur a crusader's vision.

SPINNING BACK THE CLOCK

Those folks who long for the "good old days" will be happy to know that top spinning is making a comeback.

It has caught on again even in New York City where the other day a 10-year-old lad won the metropolitan championship over 55 other contestants by pitching five straight bullseyes into a plastic disk three feet away. A national competition has been scheduled for next June.

One of these days we may even hear of a penny candy store opening again.

Monday night, with the Powder Puff League, Peggy Godwin and Mavis Riley tied for high game with 174. Peggy Godwin had high series with 477. Liberty Market had high team game and series with 769 and 2158.

With the Newcomers on Tuesday morning, Mary Bain had high game of 162. High series went to Shirley Henry with a 449. Team #8 had high team game of 549. 1513 was the total high series for Team #7.

Sub, Flora Young, had high game of 178 and series of 452.

Also on Tuesday morning, with the Housewives, Mary Meyer had high game of 192 and Henrietta Ferrell took high series with a 461. The Strikers had high team game and series with 616 and 1767.

With the Delta Keglers, Peggy Swacker had high game of 227. This is also high for the week. Peggy Dickson had 565 for high series. Ziegenhorn Insurance had high team game with 852. R. D. Clayton had high 3 game total with 2325.

The other Tuesday night league, the Imperialettes, had Hildred Poole with high game and series of 194 and 492.

L & A Laundry had high team game with 776. A & B Cleaners had 2224 to cinch high series.

Wednesday night, with the Royal Keglers, we'll just say A & B Oil, as usual. Peggy Dickson of that team rolled a 205 and a 573 for high game and series. A & B Oil had both high game and series with 890 and 2456.

I must confess to getting a little pessimistic at times. Seems to be an impossibility to equal this team. But we must try to be optimistic; if it wasn't for the optimist, the pessimist would never know how happy he wasn't. True?

With the Friday Bowlettes, Peggy Godwin had both high game and series with 200 and 489. Vogue Dress Shoppe had high team game of 768. Shy's Rexall had high team series of 2190.

Apropos of nothing, my oldest child will observe his 23rd birthday this week. Brings home to me how old I am. Lots of you are in the same boat, I dare say. Allow me to quote Victor Hugo, "Forty is the old age of youth; fifty is the youth of old age."

Chocolate Pie Uses Candy Bars, Tastes Terrific

If you like pie and chocolate candy, then here's a pie that can't possibly miss pleasing you!

The filling is a billowy tempting concoction that's easily prepared because it uses convenience foods: marshmallows and almond chocolate candy bars. The top is whipped cream with a grated candy bar.

Pastry that holds all this goodness should be flaky, tender and light, as it certainly will be when lard is chosen, claims Reba Staggs, noted home economist.

Satin - Smooth Chocolate Pie Pastry

1 cup sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour and salt. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add ice water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line a 9-inch pie pan, allowing ½ inch pie crust to extend over edge. Crimp edges. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling

20 marshmallows
½ cup milk
6 bars (¾ ounce each) almond milk chocolate candy
1 pint whipping cream

Combine marshmallows and milk in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until marshmallows are melted. Add 5 candy bars and continue heating until chocolate melts. Cool thoroughly. Beat 1 cup whipping cream and fold into cooled chocolate mixture. Spoon filling into baked pie shell. Chill 3 to 4 hours. Whip remaining cream and spread over filling. Grate remaining candy bar and sprinkle over whipped cream. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from "Been There" hit me right between the eyes because I've been there, too.

In my case I filed for a legal separation but HE filed for divorce — and he got it on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. It was a travesty. He had no evidence but he got the decree.

So who lost? Everybody. He now has two children under three years of age. (He is 44.) His wife is miserable and lets everyone know it. My children, ages 8, 9 and 16, are robbed of the father they adored. Their mother is not able to give them the time they deserve because she must work to support them.

If men and women would work half as hard on their original marriage as they do building up an outside romance such tragedies would not occur. Please keep hammering away at this, Ann. People need to hear it from an unbiased third party. —TRIED TO SAVE IT

Dear Tried: You bet I will. The disenchanted throw in the sponge and look everywhere but at themselves for the cause of the trouble. Then, without realizing it, they bring to a second marriage the same qualities and the same problems that destroyed the first.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's first husband gave her a French poodle six months before he died. She named him Charles, after de Gaulle. Well, that darned dog never liked me. I couldn't even put my arm around Irene in front of Charles. He used to growl and raise cain.

When I was courting her, Charles bit me three times. Irene called them "nips." I say when a dog puts his teeth into you it's a bite.

Two weeks ago Charles died. Irene had to go on tranquilizers. She had a coffin made of pine and insisted that Charles be buried in the backyard with a French flag draped over the coffin. I told her this was an insult to the French government and that I hoped they wouldn't hear about it.

Now, Irene is begging me for another dog. I am so glad to be rid of that first hound I hate to get mixed up with another one. What do you say? -- JAKE

Dear Jake: You aren't going to win this one, so give in -- gracefully. Buy Irene a puppy and determine to make friends with the little beast from the first hello.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column Mrs. E. W. said you exposed your ignorance by saying that parrots imitate sounds but do not know what they are saying. On the contrary, Mrs. E. W. revealed her ignorance by claiming they do.

Her bird, Polly Walker, no doubt did all the things Mrs. E. W. said but the bird did not know what he was saying. The continuous repetition of Mrs. Harrison's name with one ring of the phone and repeating "Mother Platt' with two rings was an association that Polly picked up and repeated. The appearance of Bobbie was a visual stimulus that caused Polly to repeat the phrase "Bobbie, where's the whiskey?" because this phrase had been repeated when Bobbie entered the room.

At no time does Polly, or any other animal, "think" or "talk" in the way that humans do. Please set the record straight. -- S. L.

Dear S. L.: You did. Thanks.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Chocolate Pie Uses Candy Bars, Tastes Terrific

If you like pie and chocolate candy, then here's a pie that can't possibly miss pleasing you!

The filling is a billowy tempting concoction that's easily prepared because it uses convenience foods: marshmallows and almond chocolate candy bars. The top is whipped cream with a grated candy bar.

Pastry that holds all this goodness should be flaky, tender and light, as it certainly will be when lard is chosen, claims Reba Staggs, noted home economist.

Satin - Smooth Chocolate Pie
Pastry

1 cup sifted enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons lard
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Mix flour and salt. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add ice water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with a fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll to about ⅛ inch thickness and line a 9-inch pie pan, allowing ½ inch pie crust to extend over edge. Crimp edges. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling

20 marshmallows
½ cup milk
6 bars (¾ ounce each) almond milk chocolate candy
1 pint whipping cream

Combine marshmallows and milk in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until marshmallows are melted. Add 5 candy bars and continue heating until chocolate melts. Cool thoroughly. Beat 1 cup whipping cream and fold into cooled chocolate mixture. Spoon filling into baked pie shell. Chill 3 to 4 hours. Whip remaining cream and spread over filling. Grate remaining candy bar and sprinkle over whipped cream. Yield: one 9-inch pie.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: That letter from "Been There" hit me right between the eyes because I've been there, too.

In my case I filed for a legal separation but HE filed for divorce — and he got it on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. It was a travesty. He had no evidence but he got the decree.

So who lost? Everybody. He now has two children under three years of age. (He is 44.) His wife is miserable and lets everyone know it. My children, ages 8, 9 and 16, are robbed of the father they adored. Their mother is not able to give them the time they deserve because she must work to support them.

If men and women would work half as hard on their original marriage as they do building up an outside romance such tragedies would not occur. Please keep hammering away at this, Ann. People need to hear it from an unbiased third party. —TRIED TO SAVE IT

Dear Tried: You bet I will. The disenchanted throw in the sponge and look everywhere but at themselves for the cause of the trouble. Then, without realizing it, they bring to a second marriage the same qualities and the same problems that destroyed the first.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's first husband gave her a French poodle six months before he died. She named him Charles, after de Gaulle. Well, that darned dog never liked me. I couldn't even put my arm around Irene in front of Charles. He used to growl and raise cain.

When I was courting her, Charles bit me three times. Irene called them "nips." I say when a dog puts his teeth into you it's a bite.

Two weeks ago Charles died. Irene had to go on tranquilizers. She had a coffin made of pine and insisted that Charles be buried in the backyard with a French flag draped over the coffin. I told her this was an insult to the French government and that I hoped they wouldn't hear about it.

Now, Irene is begging me for another dog. I am so glad to be rid of that first hound I hate to get mixed up with another one. What do you say? -- JAKE

Dear Jake: You aren't going to win this one, so give in -- gracefully. Buy Irene a puppy and determine to make friends with the little beast from the first hello.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column Mrs. E. W. said you exposed your ignorance by saying that parrots imitate sounds but do not know what they are saying. On the contrary, Mrs. E. W. revealed her ignorance by claiming they do.

Her bird, Polly Walker, no doubt did all the things Mrs. E. W. said but the bird did not know what he was saying. The continuous repetition of Mrs. Harrison's name with one ring of the phone and repeating "Mother Platt' with two rings was an association that Polly picked up and repeated. The appearance of Bobbie was a visual stimulus that caused Polly to repeat the phrase "Bobbie, where's the whiskey?" because this phrase had been repeated when Bobbie entered the room.

At no time does Polly, or any other animal, "think" or "talk" in the way that humans do. Please set the record straight. -- S. L.

Dear S. L.: You did. Thanks.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Bloomfield Takes Third

BLOOMFIELD TAKES CHARGE

The Wildcats took charge of the contest in the early going of the third period and ripped out front 49-30. From there it was the Wildcats all the way.

WILDCATS TOUGH ON BOARDS

Bloomfield, with Mike Wise and Dennis Gillespie grabbing down 10 rebounds each, controlled the boards, especially in the last half.

UNDERWOOD COMES IN

Dale Underwood, the invaluable sixth man of the Wildcats, came off the bench in the second period to loosen up the Owensville defense by popping in three consecutive 25 to 30 feet setshots. He finished up the game in the fourth period and again he was shooting unmercifully against Owensville to haul down a total of 14 points for the game.

TOUGH FIRST HALF

In the early going of the game the Wildcats had their troubles and could pull away only by four in the initial frame, 13-9. The Owensville defense dropped back on the big men of the Wildcats at the start of the second period and pulled to the lead before Bloomfield could rally to hold their four point advantage, 30-26, as first half play subsided.

SUPERB SHOOTING PERCENT

From the field the Wildcats blasted loose to drill 33 of 62 field goal attempts for a blistering 53.2 per cent. Owensville had much less success, being able to hit only 17 of 55 for 30.9 per cent.

WHITE STARS

Ron White, thought by many to be the best playmaker in the state tournament, gave another starring performance with his playmaking and outstanding defensive moves. From the field he got nine points, but the assists that he set up were beauties. He is a real probable for college basketball.

HEWGLEY COMMENTS

Coach Tom Hewgley, states, "I am exceptionally proud of the team and the fans. And speaking for Coach Spoonhour and myself, and the Wildcats, we would like to thank all of Southeast Missouri for their backing this season."

BRILLIANT RESERVES

With six minutes left in the game the Bloomfield second team came in to show that they too could play a superb brand of basketball. Owensville, with their first team in all the way, could manage only to hold their own against the Wildcat's shock corps.

BALANCED OFFENSE

Three regulars and one reserve stuffed in enough points to register in the double figures for the Wildcats. Dennis Gillespie paced the offensive maneuvers with 16, followed by Ron Underwood with 15, Dale Underwood with 14, and Mike Wise's 12.

Hampton, with 11, was the only player on Owensville's team to register in the double figures.

A technicality is a technicality, but one team getting 29 fouls called on them while the other one gets only eight is just a little too technical.

That's what happened to the Bloomfield Wildcats last Friday night when they faced the Buffalo Bisons in the semi-finals of the State Tournament at Columbia. Bloomfield was the victim of 28 disastrous fouls as compared with eight called on the Bisons.

Bloomfield outscored Buffalo from the field 50-28, which under normal circumstances would be more than enough to drag down victory. But Bloomfield, like Southeast Missouri teams of the past, got into foul trouble.

Although I was not present at the Bloomfield-Buffalo game I did journey to Columbia for the finals Saturday afternoon and night to see the Wildcats in action for the last time this season. The officials that called their game Friday night did not call the Bloomfield-Owensville game, but they did call the Class "S" game between Archie and Lancaster, and the calling was very inconsistent.

I was sitting by a referee from Southeast Missouri and he said the same thing. A foul called one way would be changed to right the opposite just minutes later under the near same circumstances.

After seeing, and seeing is believing, I want to at this time state that Southeast Missouri is very fortunate to have the type officials that they do. Most of the ones that I have seen through this past roundball season at least have tried hard to be consistent in their calls.

After seeing Buffalo in action against California in the championship game Saturday night, I also believe that if a five game series was to be held between Buffalo and Bloomfield, Bloomfield would come out on top.

But too, you have to give Buffalo credit, they won the tournament to come in as the number one Class "M" team in the state.

A Southeast Missouri Basketball Conference game last Feb. 25 between Jackson and Fredericktown was ruled, "No Contest," by the Missouri State Activities Association. Why? -- Because Jackson had exceeded the legal schedule limit.

It's found that each team is allowed 14 games in the winter season, which starts with the Wednesday following the second Friday in December. This year that date fell on Dec. 16. Jackson had 15 games scheduled after that date.

Mike Jones, an all time great in the Kennett High School football history, has accepted a position on the University of Missouri Football coaching staff, Dan Devine, Missouri Head Coach, stated to the Daily Democrat of Kennett, Mo.

Devine said Jones would join the MU staff as an assistant while doing graduate work. He will work primarily with the freshman squad.

Hal Lane, Former All-Conference Quarterback at Cape State, is doing his practice teaching in history and physical education at the Sikeston High School. He didn't get to finish his last year of eligiblity because of a chronic knee injury.

Norm Dockins, former Sikeston Football Great is doing his student teaching at the Oran High School. At present it is not known just what or where Norm is going to do or go.

A sad note was heard as this year's roundball season ended. Bob Coffee, a referee for the past seven years in Southeast Missouri, is going to hang up his shoes as an official. He makes his home at Dexter and will be missed greatly by basketball, for his officiating was among the best in this part of the country.

Doug Sanders Wins Pensacola Golf Tournament

PENSACOLA, Fla. AP --"I hope 'Baby Beef' doesn't miss the $4,000," joked Doug Sanders after his dramatic playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the $65,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Sanders walked off with a $10,000 prize for sinking a 35-foot putt on the third playoff hole after he and Nicklaus Baby Beef finished regulation play with a 72-hole total of 277, which was 11 under par.

Nicklaus took $6,000 second money.

It was a great victory for the 31-year-old Ojai, Calif., pro who had not won a tournament since the 1963 Greensboro Open. The victory placed him in the Tournament of Champions and gave him a good shot at being selected for the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 9-12.

"It sure feels good to win again," he said. "Twenty-two months without a win is a long time."

Sanders led the burly Nicklaus by two strokes at the start of Sunday's action with a 12-under-par 204. But four bogies, especially one on the 15th hole at the Pensacola Country Club, left him into a tie.

Nicklaus took a temporary lead at that point with a birdie, only to go two-over at the 17th. A 10-foot putt on the 18th temporarily saved his day. Sanders parred the 18th to set up the playoff.

Sanders had nothing but praise for the 25-year-old Nicklaus. He called the Columbus, Ohioan, "one of the greatest players."

Billy Martindale, a young pro from Jacksonville, Tex., tied Billy Casper at 280 for third place. Sanders' win puts him ahead of Casper as the official top money winner on the tour.

Kermit Zarley, another youngster from Yakima, Wash., finished fifth with 282. Defending champion Gary Player tied for sixth with five others. Arnold Palmer and four others were next at 284.

From here, the PGA winter tour heads for the $70,000 Doral Open in Miami.

Hank Bauer Alarmed With Bunker's Arm

A year ago at this time Manager Hank Bauer was concerned with Wally Bunker because the bonus rookie was taking up a place on the Baltimore roster.

Now Bauer is worried about Bunker because the ace of the Orioles' pitching staff has a sore arm.

"I wouldn't say I am alarmed," Bauer said Sunday, "but it will be a relief when I see him throw a little batting practice and know that Wally's okay."

Bunker, who celebrated his 20th birthday 11 days ago, talked about his right arm during a 3 1/2-hour workout.

"It's really more of a stiffness in the shoulder, but I haven't been able to throw the way I like to," he said. "Actually it's been a little stiff ever since I arrived in Miami two weeks ago."

Bunker and Bauer, along with pitching coach Harry Becheen and trainer Eddie Weidner, expressed confidence that time and sunshine will solve the problem.

The Orioles signed Bunker in 1963 for an estimated $70,000 bonus. They placed him on the major league roster last season although they felt the move was impending the youngster's development and also was preventing them from using someone who might be of more immediate value to the team's American League pennant chances.

But the action was necessary to protect the hurler from the player draft. Then, several weeks and two injured starters later, Bauer was forced to call Bunker to pitch in regular rotation.

He responded by hurling a one-hitter in his initial start and following that masterpiece with another one-hitter, a three - hitter, one four-hitter, one five - hitter, four six-hitters, and 10 other victories, making 19 in all against only five defeats.

Far Flung NCAA Tournament Begins

The long, long road to Portland, Ore., and the finals of the far - flung NCAA Basketball Tournament begins tonight with first round activity in Philadelphia and Lubbock, Tex.

In addition, playoffs are scheduled tonight in Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the last two teams in the NCAA tourney field, a field that will be reduced to four for the finals in Portland, March 19-20.

In between, there's another set of first-round games in Bowling Green, Ky., Tuesday, and the four regional tourneys, in College Park, Md.; Lexington, Ky.; Manhattan, Kan., and Provo, Utah. All the regionals are scheduled Friday and Saturday.

Philadelphia has a tripleheader tonight, Penn State vs. Princeton, West Virginia vs. nationally fourth-ranked Providence, and third-ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., vs. Connecticut.

The winners of those three, along with North Carolina State, surprise winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tourney Saturday night, will advance to the East regional.

The doubleheader in Lubbock matches Houston and Notre Dame, and Colorado State U. against Oklahoma City. The Houston — Notre Dame winner goes into the Mid-West regional and the Colorado State-Oklahoma City winner to the West regional.

The playoff at Waco matches Southern Methodist and Texas for the right to represent the Southwest Conference. Tex Tech won the title but had to abandon it for using an ineligible player.

Ohio U. and Miami of Ohio play for the Mid-American Conference title in Dayton, with the winner going on to Bowling Green for a Mid-East first-round game against Dayton Tuesday. Eastern Kentucky plays DePaul in the other half of the doubleheader, completing all first-round play.

An obscure substitute and a veteran coach were the key figures Saturday in the wind-up weekend of the regular season.

Substitute Larry Worsley came off the bench, scored 30 points and led North Carolina State to a 91-85 upset of eighth-ranked Duke, 1964 runner-up to UCLA's national champions.

And the Oklahoma State Cowboys carried veteran Coach Hank Iba off the court after beating Kansas 64-58 and clinching the Big Eight title at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday.

The Big Eight crown had eluded Iba, an almost legendary coach. He is one of the two active coaches with 700 or more victories, was a many-time winner of the Missouri Valley title, has had NCAA champions and was the coach of the 1964 U.S. Olympic champions.

Michigan, the nation's No. 1 team, wrapped up its second straight Big Ten title and an NCAA berth with an 88-85 decision over sixth-ranked Minnesota. All-America Cazzie Russell sparked the Wolverines with 24 points, including the go-ahead basket.

Wichita also clinched an NCAA spot by edging Drake in overtime, 76-74, after Bradley had beaten St. Louis 94-91, also in overtime. Both Bradley and St. Louis will play in the National Invitation Tourney, opening in New York Thursday.

Ninth-ranked Villanova, the No. 1 seed in the NIT, finished its regular season with a 73-69 edge over Marquette, second-ranked UCLA took Southern California 52-50, fifth-ranked Vanderbilt beat Tulane 85-62 and 10th - ranked Brigham Young, already assured of the WAC title and NCAA spot, knocked off New Mexico, second seed in the NIT, 88-73.

Not all House members like the rules changes. Some find it hard to get used to the idea of letting issues be decided by the membership.

Slung beneath the belly of an F-101 Voodoo interceptor is a long, slim tow target now in final testing at Tyndall AFB, Fla. It is scheduled to be the primary low altitude target in the William Tell 1965 USAF world-wide weapons meet at Tyndall in October. The target, 12 feet long and some eight inches in diameter, is designed to be towed at speeds reaching 1½ times the speed of sound and at altitudes above 50,000 feet. During the William Tell competition, when other interceptors are firing their air-to-air missiles at the target, it will be reeled out far behind the tow plane. (NNS)

Star-spangled way to send a son to college

TOUGH FIRST HALF

In the early going of the game the Wildcats had their troubles and could pull away only by four in the initial frame, 13-9. The Owensville defense dropped back on the big men of the Wildcats at the start of the second period and pulled to the lead before Bloomfield could rally to hold their four point advantage, 30-26, as first half play subsided.

SUPERB SHOOTING PERCENT

From the field the Wildcats blasted loose to drill 33 of 62 field goal attempts for a blistering 53.2 per cent. Owensville had much less success, being able to hit only 17 of 55 for 30.9 per cent.

WHITE STARS

Ron White, thought by many to be the best playmaker in the state tournament, gave another starring performance with his playmaking and outstanding defensive moves. From the field he got nine points, but the assists that he set up were beauties. He is a real probable for college basketball.

HEWGLEY COMMENTS

Coach Tom Hewgley, states, "I am exceptionally proud of the team and the fans. And speaking for Coach Spoonhour and myself, and the Wildcats, we would like to thank all of Southeast Missouri for their backing this season."

BRILLIANT RESERVES

With six minutes left in the game the Bloomfield second team came in to show that they too could play a superb brand of basketball. Owensville, with their first team in all the way, could manage only to hold their own against the Wildcat's shock corps.

BALANCED OFFENSE

Three regulars and one reserve stuffed in enough points to register in the double figures for the Wildcats. Dennis Gillespie paced the offensive maneuvers with 16, followed by Ron Underwood with 15, Dale Underwood with 14, and Mike Wise's 12.

Hampton, with 11, was the only player on Owensville's team to register in the double figures.

A technicality is a technicality, but one team getting 29 fouls called on them while the other one gets only eight is just a little too technical.

That's what happened to the Bloomfield Wildcats last Friday night when they faced the Buffalo Bisons in the semi-finals of the State Tournament at Columbia. Bloomfield was the victim of 28 disastrous fouls as compared with eight called on the Bisons.

Bloomfield outscored Buffalo from the field 50-28, which under normal circumstances would be more than enough to drag down victory. But Bloomfield, like Southeast Missouri teams of the past, got into foul trouble.

Although I was not present at the Bloomfield-Buffalo game I did journey to Columbia for the finals Saturday afternoon and night to see the Wildcats in action for the last time this season. The officials that called their game Friday night did not call the Bloomfield-Owensville game, but they did call the Class "S" game between Archie and Lancaster, and the calling was very inconsistent.

I was sitting by a referee from Southeast Missouri and he said the same thing. A foul called one way would be changed to right the opposite just minutes later under the near same circumstances.

After seeing, and seeing is believing, I want to at this time state that Southeast Missouri is very fortunate to have the type officials that they do. Most of the ones that I have seen through this past roundball season at least have tried hard to be consistent in their calls.

After seeing Buffalo in action against California in the championship game Saturday night, I also believe that if a five game series was to be held between Buffalo and Bloomfield, Bloomfield would come out on top.

But too, you have to give Buffalo credit, they won the tournament to come in as the number one Class "M" team in the state.

A Southeast Missouri Basketball Conference game last Feb. 25 between Jackson and Fredericktown was ruled, "No Contest," by the Missouri State Activities Association. Why? -- Because Jackson had exceeded the legal schedule limit.

It's found that each team is allowed 14 games in the winter season, which starts with the Wednesday following the second Friday in December. This year that date fell on Dec. 16. Jackson had 15 games scheduled after that date.

Mike Jones, an all time great in the Kennett High School football history, has accepted a position on the University of Missouri Football coaching staff, Dan Devine, Missouri Head Coach, stated to the Daily Democrat of Kennett, Mo.

Devine said Jones would join the MU staff as an assistant while doing graduate work. He will work primarily with the freshman squad.

Hal Lane, Former All-Conference Quarterback at Cape State, is doing his practice teaching in history and physical education at the Sikeston High School. He didn't get to finish his last year of eligiblity because of a chronic knee injury.

Norm Dockins, former Sikeston Football Great is doing his student teaching at the Oran High School. At present it is not known just what or where Norm is going to do or go.

A sad note was heard as this year's roundball season ended. Bob Coffee, a referee for the past seven years in Southeast Missouri, is going to hang up his shoes as an official. He makes his home at Dexter and will be missed greatly by basketball, for his officiating was among the best in this part of the country.

Doug Sanders Wins Pensacola Golf Tournament

PENSACOLA, Fla. AP --"I hope 'Baby Beef' doesn't miss the $4,000," joked Doug Sanders after his dramatic playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the $65,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

Sanders walked off with a $10,000 prize for sinking a 35-foot putt on the third playoff hole after he and Nicklaus Baby Beef finished regulation play with a 72-hole total of 277, which was 11 under par.

Nicklaus took $6,000 second money.

It was a great victory for the 31-year-old Ojai, Calif., pro who had not won a tournament since the 1963 Greensboro Open. The victory placed him in the Tournament of Champions and gave him a good shot at being selected for the Masters in Augusta, Ga., April 9-12.

"It sure feels good to win again," he said. "Twenty-two months without a win is a long time."

Sanders led the burly Nicklaus by two strokes at the start of Sunday's action with a 12-under-par 204. But four bogies, especially one on the 15th hole at the Pensacola Country Club, left him into a tie.

Nicklaus took a temporary lead at that point with a birdie, only to go two-over at the 17th. A 10-foot putt on the 18th temporarily saved his day. Sanders parred the 18th to set up the playoff.

Sanders had nothing but praise for the 25-year-old Nicklaus. He called the Columbus, Ohioan, "one of the greatest players."

Billy Martindale, a young pro from Jacksonville, Tex., tied Billy Casper at 280 for third place. Sanders' win puts him ahead of Casper as the official top money winner on the tour.

Kermit Zarley, another youngster from Yakima, Wash., finished fifth with 282. Defending champion Gary Player tied for sixth with five others. Arnold Palmer and four others were next at 284.

From here, the PGA winter tour heads for the $70,000 Doral Open in Miami.

Hank Bauer Alarmed With Bunker's Arm

A year ago at this time Manager Hank Bauer was concerned with Wally Bunker because the bonus rookie was taking up a place on the Baltimore roster.

Now Bauer is worried about Bunker because the ace of the Orioles' pitching staff has a sore arm.

"I wouldn't say I am alarmed," Bauer said Sunday, "but it will be a relief when I see him throw a little batting practice and know that Wally's okay."

Bunker, who celebrated his 20th birthday 11 days ago, talked about his right arm during a 3 1/2-hour workout.

"It's really more of a stiffness in the shoulder, but I haven't been able to throw the way I like to," he said. "Actually it's been a little stiff ever since I arrived in Miami two weeks ago."

Bunker and Bauer, along with pitching coach Harry Becheen and trainer Eddie Weidner, expressed confidence that time and sunshine will solve the problem.

The Orioles signed Bunker in 1963 for an estimated $70,000 bonus. They placed him on the major league roster last season although they felt the move was impending the youngster's development and also was preventing them from using someone who might be of more immediate value to the team's American League pennant chances.

But the action was necessary to protect the hurler from the player draft. Then, several weeks and two injured starters later, Bauer was forced to call Bunker to pitch in regular rotation.

He responded by hurling a one-hitter in his initial start and following that masterpiece with another one-hitter, a three - hitter, one four-hitter, one five - hitter, four six-hitters, and 10 other victories, making 19 in all against only five defeats.

Far Flung NCAA Tournament Begins

The long, long road to Portland, Ore., and the finals of the far - flung NCAA Basketball Tournament begins tonight with first round activity in Philadelphia and Lubbock, Tex.

In addition, playoffs are scheduled tonight in Waco, Tex., and Dayton, Ohio, to determine the last two teams in the NCAA tourney field, a field that will be reduced to four for the finals in Portland, March 19-20.

In between, there's another set of first-round games in Bowling Green, Ky., Tuesday, and the four regional tourneys, in College Park, Md.; Lexington, Ky.; Manhattan, Kan., and Provo, Utah. All the regionals are scheduled Friday and Saturday.

Philadelphia has a tripleheader tonight, Penn State vs. Princeton, West Virginia vs. nationally fourth-ranked Providence, and third-ranked St. Joseph's, Pa., vs. Connecticut.

The winners of those three, along with North Carolina State, surprise winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference tourney Saturday night, will advance to the East regional.

The doubleheader in Lubbock matches Houston and Notre Dame, and Colorado State U. against Oklahoma City. The Houston — Notre Dame winner goes into the Mid-West regional and the Colorado State-Oklahoma City winner to the West regional.

The playoff at Waco matches Southern Methodist and Texas for the right to represent the Southwest Conference. Tex Tech won the title but had to abandon it for using an ineligible player.

Ohio U. and Miami of Ohio play for the Mid-American Conference title in Dayton, with the winner going on to Bowling Green for a Mid-East first-round game against Dayton Tuesday. Eastern Kentucky plays DePaul in the other half of the doubleheader, completing all first-round play.

An obscure substitute and a veteran coach were the key figures Saturday in the wind-up weekend of the regular season. Substitute Larry Worsley came off the bench, scored 30 points and led North Carolina State to a 91-85 upset of eighth-ranked Duke, 1964 runner-up to UCLA's national champions.

And the Oklahoma State Cowboys carried veteran Coach Hank Iba off the court after beating Kansas 64-58 and clinching the Big Eight title at Lawrence, Kan., Saturday.

The Big Eight crown had eluded Iba, an almost legendary coach. He is one of the two active coaches with 700 or more victories, was a many-time winner of the Missouri Valley title, has had NCAA champions and was the coach of the 1964 U.S. Olympic champions.

Michigan, the nation's No. 1 team, wrapped up its second straight Big Ten title and an NCAA berth with an 88-85 decision over sixth-ranked Minnesota. All-America Cazzie Russell sparked the Wolverines with 24 points, including the go-ahead basket.

Wichita also clinched an NCAA spot by edging Drake in overtime, 76-74, after Bradley had beaten St. Louis 94-91, also in overtime. Both Bradley and St. Louis will play in the National Invitation Tourney, opening in New York Thursday.

Ninth-ranked Villanova, the No. 1 seed in the NIT, finished its regular season with a 73-69 edge over Marquette, second-ranked UCLA took Southern California 52-50, fifth-ranked Vanderbilt beat Tulane 85-62 and 10th - ranked Brigham Young, already assured of the WAC title and NCAA spot, knocked off New Mexico, second seed in the NIT, 88-73.

Not all House members like the rules changes. Some find it hard to get used to the idea of letting issues be decided by the membership.

William Tell Apple

Slung beneath the belly of an F-101 Voodoo interceptor is a long, slim tow target now in final testing at Tyndall AFB, Fla. It is scheduled to be the primary low altitude target in the William Tell 1965 USAF world-wide weapons meet at Tyndall in October. The target, 12 feet long and some eight inches in diameter, is designed to be towed at speeds reaching 1½ times the speed of sound and at altitudes above 50,000 feet. During the William Tell competition, when other interceptors are firing their air-to-air missiles at the target, it will be reeled out far behind the tow plane. (NNS)

Star-spangled way to send a son to college

Educators expect a year of college will cost at least $2,500 by the time the class of '76 don their freshman beanies.

But you can get it for less—by buying Series E Savings Bonds now. That's because Bonds pay you back $4 at maturity for every $3 you invest.

Bonds are a good deal in another way, too. Because they help preserve your son's freedom to use his education. Uncle Sam makes good use of the money, safeguarding our interests around the world.

If you like, you can build your college fund automatically by buying Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

All you need is a Payroll Savings Application—and a promising youngster.

CHAPTER IX
DIVISION OF HEALTH (Con't.)

The legislature has created three advisory bodies and assigned each to the Division of Health. The members of two of these agencies (the Hospital Advisory Council and the State Cancer Commission) are appointed by the Governor with senatorial consent. The members of the third agency (the Nursing Home Advisory Council) are appointed by the director of the Divison of Health with the approval of the Governor.

The Hospital Advisory Council is composed of seven members each serving a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on the official state plan for the construction of additional hospital and health center facilities.

The Nursing Home Advisory Council is composed of the director of the Division of Health who serves as chairman ex officio, and eleven other members each serving for a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on matters of policy related to the licensing of convalescent and nursing homes.

The State Cancer Commission is composed of four members with the only qualification that they be qualified voters of the state. The Commission, with consent of the Governor, appoints an administrator who is made responsible for the operation and conduct of the state cancer hospital. The Commission also appoints the general medical staff of the hospital. All other employees are appointed by the administrator with their salaries fixed by the Commission in accordance with the state merit system.

1. Section of General Services -- The assistant director of health (administration) heads this section. The services provided are as follows:

Administrative and Personnel Services-- All the accounting, budget preparing, personnel and procurements programs of the division are supervised and the records maintained. A sizable printing, duplicating, and mailing room for divisional use is maintained.

Vital Records -- This unit registers all births and deaths in Missouri and issues birth and death certificates in accordance with statutory requirements. Its works in close cooperation with the U. S. Census Bureau, and supervises the work of the local registrars located in the counties. A project designed to microfilm more than seven million birth records and three million death records was started in 1962 and will be completed in 1965.

Statistical Services -- This unit collects, tabulates, and analyzes public data including all vital statistics, and makes special studies related to public health.

2. Section of Hospital and Technical Services -- This section contains the following programs which are administered from the central office:

Hospital Construction and Licensing--This unit is the agency for allocation and administration of federal grants to the state for hospital construction.

Since 1953 the division has administered the hospital licensing law which provides for the annual inspection and licensing of all hospitals except those operated by the state or federal governments.

Radiological Health Program --In 1963 the legislature established a program for radiation control. The Division of Health with the guidance and advice of the committee on radiation (a subcommittee of the Missouri Atomic Energy Commission) supervises a state-wide program for the evaluation and control of health hazards associated with atomic radiation.

Occupational Health -- This unit maintains a close liaison with the Division of Industrial Inspection to eliminate industrial health hazards.

Veterinary Public Health -- The functions performed by this unit include not only veterinary public health (animal diseases) but also the programs of milk and food sanitation, and food and drug control.

Laboratory -- The laboratory provides services for the other sections of the division, and makes tests and studies for local health agencies and private physicians.

Environmental Services -- Certain environmental sanitation inspection programs are conducted by this unit. These include general sanitary inspection of water supplies, including swimming pools, and air pollution control. Members of this unit also advise and consult with district and local health personnel on special problems of environmental sanitation.

State Tuberculosis Sanatorium and State Cancer Hospital -- These two hospitals provide direct medical and hospital care for indigent persons with these diseases. They also cooperate in the general health program by providing information and instruction to divisional personnel and students in training institutions.

3. Section of Chronic Diseases --This section is concerned with programs seeking to control the following chronic diseases: cancer; heart disease; tuberculosis; and diabetes. The preventive mental health program was transferred from the Division of Health to the Division of Mental Diseases July 1, 1964. Other activities carried on by this section are the nursing home licensing program and the home care program created in 1955.

4. Section of Local Health Services -- The division maintains five district offices as centers for educational, advisory, and inspectional work. Each office is under the general administrative supervision of a health officer who is a medical doctor. The staff consists of trained public health nurses, health educators, nutritionists, engineers, sanitarians, and other specialized public health workers.

The central office staff of the section are trained consultants in the areas of communicable diseases, dental health, environmental sanitation and health education. They are responsible for the development of programs and standards to guide the activities of personnel in the districts and local health departments.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — In an era of unprecedented prosperity more than two billion people are hungry, and widespread famine is a possibility in the near future. The following first of five articles on the world food supply—or lack of it—outlines the challenges man faces to avoid anarchy and war resulting from starvation.

The Hungry millions part 1
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Frightening specters haunt the rich North Atlantic world today.

These are the specters of widespread famine, pestilence, violence and ultimately war, less than a generation from now.

Men may be able to keep their fingers away from the trigger which would exterminate millions in nuclear clouds. Can mankind meet the other awesome challenge?

While the North Atlantic world rejoices in an era of unparalleled prosperity, scientists sound a grave warning: the inexorable mathematics of hunger can mean catastrophe is around the corner, probably less than 15 years away.

Hunger has a variety of forms: malnutrition, or lack of proteins, minerals and vitamins: undernutrition, or just not enough of any food, and starvation.

People in these categories are numerous enough to fill Metropolitan New York 160 times over. If they stood in single file, two feet apart, the line would circle the globe 25 times. Two years or less from now, there would be another circle, and then more at more frequent intervals. These are the hungry.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization estimates that one person in every two in the world is badly nourished, one in three is chronically hungry, one in 8 or 10 is undernourished. Nearly two-thirds of the world's people know some form of hunger.

These are just some of the grim statistics compiled by researchers contemplating a terrifying equation of population growth and food supply. Experts say that before long, famine can present the rich nations —their people outnumbered 2-1 by the hungry—with dangers as great or greater than those emanating from the clash of ideologies.

"If present trends continue," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, vice president for research at the State University of New York in Buffalo and an authority on the subject, "it seems likely famine will reach serious proportions in India, Pakistan and China in the early 1970s, followed by Indonesia, Iran, Turkey, Egypt, and Brazil, then followed by most of the other countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America by 1980.

"Such a famine will be of massive proportions, affecting hundreds of millions, possibly even billions of persons. If this happens, as appears very probable, it will be the most colossal catastrophe in history."

Part 1 Gal 2

To meet the challenge will take time and international cooperation, both scarce commodities.

"We have the skills and the scientific knowledge," says FAO Director General Binay Ranjan Sen. "What we need is the will."

Most experts agree that more than two billion of the world's 3.3 billion people are hungry.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says diet deficit areas are: Asia (except Japan), the Near East (except Israel) most of Central America and the Caribbean, northern and equatorial South America, much of Africa. Oddly, hunger is most prevalent south of the 38th Parallel.

A small group of nations with 16 per cent of the population has 70 per cent of the world's wealth. These are nations grouped around the North Atlantic, along with Japan, and Australia-New Zealand.

Two-thirds of the human race barely subsists. Most of the hungry are nonwhite. On the average they eat 900 less calories daily than those in the white, developed third of humanity. But calories are meaningless when two out of three have less than nutritional requirements in any event.

India eats 24 per cent less than it needs in nutrition. Americans eat 17 per cent more than they need. In general, people in developed nations eat two to three times more than the poor ones. North America consumes nearly five times more food per person than is eaten on the Asian mainland.

Americans, only 6 per cent of the world's people, have 40 per cent of the world income. About 1.4 billion people in about 100 countries have an average income per person of under $100 a year, 30 times less than President Johnson says should be the bare minimum for a U.S. married couple.

The FAO says that in the 1963-1964 fiscal year, the world produced less food per person than the year before. Deficits likely will grow.

The U.S. Agriculture Department says the food problem in poor countries can be the most insoluble problem that humanity faces in the next few decades. Production cannot keep up with rapid population growth without substantial changes in world agricultural policies.

Americans and the developed world now are concerning themselves with the problem. It is a staggering one, laden with ominous political and social connotations. Once the hungry did not know there was hope. Today, there is swift communication. People know. Hopes are aroused. But if ascending hopes clash with bitter disappointment, danger is near.

The southern areas of the world, for the most part, are in the grip of frustration. The northern areas wax richer all the time, their capacity to produce wealth constantly expanding. People in the north — even the poorest — are rich beyond the dreams of the poor in the southern parts.

The mathematics of violence is all too clear. There is an invitation in the poor lands to seek overnight solutions to their woes, solutions offered from such sources as the witch doctors of communism. The temptation is to seek the quick, violent answer.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

MEXICO CITY — It is a puzzling thing in any nation, listening to the courtroom language of a barrister or reading a paper he has written, for that matter.

Out of doors in the clear fresh air, the avis legis speaks in phrases of the working man. Even the letters he writes home are easily understood by small cousins.

Only in courts of law or other similar haunts do we find this conspiracy of language. I speak with authority on this curious situation, having attended a hearing here with a friend whose attorney did some very effective work in the Unknown Tongue. Some sort of an international case but don't ask what.

FAMED COMMUTER—Margaret Truman flashes a bright smile for studio make-up man as he prepares her for a Philadelphia TV show. The singer-actress daughter of former President Harry Truman commutes daily to Philadelphia from her New York City apartment for her TV chores.

It was an edifying experience and my friend's barrister explored such points as ex post facto, pro bono publico and quantum sufficit.

And the enemy fired back volleys of aurea mediocritas in a scholarly manner, all of which dripped from the impermeable back of our shyster. Otium cum dignitate was his middle name.

So during one of the recesses when everybody got back to Spanish, we tried reading a document on the case. It told all about the party of the first part hereinabove mentioned with another party who occupied some other part.

Nothing came of it, so far as we could tell.

Later on it turned out that my friend was the party of one of the parts but we didn't know which part. Even the judge seemed confused because he kept going into another room (to watch Perry Mason in Spanish on TV, if you ask me) and conferring with the barristers and a number of experts on different things.

Finally, the confusion was cleared up and since our solicitor had produced the most effective orbis scientiarum he won by a TKO.

The judge announced it and then rushed back to his chambers to check up on Perry Mason.

All of which is very well but did you ever imagine what might happen if the councelors used this frightening vocabulary in every day encounters? Picture such a meeting at the table next to you in a swanky restaurant like The Ambassadeur.

A tweedy barrister approaches this table in a casual manner and says, "Well, Harrison. Dulce et decorum es pro patria mori."

So the other caballero daubs his mustache with a napkin as he arises to shake hands and says, "Emmet old boy. De gusti bus non est disputandum." (Probably means "if we get in a dispute I'll miss my bus.")

Then the first legalist says, "Do you perchance have un embarras des richesses?"

Whereupon Harrison shrugs and answers, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum. I am barely together."

And the first one says, "Gee, that's casus belli. Did you have eggs?"

"Et tu, Brute." (Well, that's terribly corny but you can think of something better in Latin go ahead and laugh.)

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CHAPTER IX
DIVISION OF HEALTH (Con't.)

The legislature has created three advisory bodies and assigned each to the Division of Health. The members of two of these agencies (the Hospital Advisory Council and the State Cancer Commission) are appointed by the Governor with senatorial consent. The members of the third agency (the Nursing Home Advisory Council) are appointed by the director of the Divison of Health with the approval of the Governor.

The Hospital Advisory Council is composed of seven members each serving a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on the official state plan for the construction of additional hospital and health center facilities.

The Nursing Home Advisory Council is composed of the director of the Division of Health who serves as chairman ex officio, and eleven other members each serving for a term of two years. The council advises the director of the Division of Health on matters of policy related to the licensing of convalescent and nursing homes.

The State Cancer Commission is composed of four members with the only qualification that they be qualified voters of the state. The Commission, with consent of the Governor, appoints an administrator who is made responsible for the operation and conduct of the state cancer hospital. The Commission also appoints the general medical staff of the hospital. All other employees are appointed by the administrator with their salaries fixed by the Commission in accordance with the state merit system.

1. Section of General Services -- The assistant director of health (administration) heads this section. The services provided are as follows:

Administrative and Personnel Services-- All the accounting, budget preparing, personnel and procurements programs of the division are supervised and the records maintained. A sizable printing, duplicating, and mailing room for divisional use is maintained.

Vital Records -- This unit registers all births and deaths in Missouri and issues birth and death certificates in accordance with statutory requirements. Its works in close cooperation with the U. S. Census Bureau, and supervises the work of the local registrars located in the counties. A project designed to microfilm more than seven million birth records and three million death records was started in 1962 and will be completed in 1965.

Statistical Services -- This unit collects, tabulates, and analyzes public data including all vital statistics, and makes special studies related to public health.

2. Section of Hospital and Technical Services -- This section contains the following programs which are administered from the central office:

Hospital Construction and Licensing--This unit is the agency for allocation and administration of federal grants to the state for hospital construction.

Since 1953 the division has administered the hospital licensing law which provides for the annual inspection and licensing of all hospitals except those operated by the state or federal governments.

Radiological Health Program --In 1963 the legislature established a program for radiation control. The Division of Health with the guidance and advice of the committee on radiation (a subcommittee of the Missouri Atomic Energy Commission) supervises a state-wide program for the evaluation and control of health hazards associated with atomic radiation.

Occupational Health -- This unit maintains a close liaison with the Division of Industrial Inspection to eliminate industrial health hazards.

Veterinary Public Health -- The functions performed by this unit include not only veterinary public health (animal diseases) but also the programs of milk and food sanitation, and food and drug control.

Laboratory -- The laboratory provides services for the other sections of the division, and makes tests and studies for local health agencies and private physicians.

Environmental Services -- Certain environmental sanitation inspection programs are conducted by this unit. These include general sanitary inspection of water supplies, including swimming pools, and air pollution control. Members of this unit also advise and consult with district and local health personnel on special problems of environmental sanitation.

State Tuberculosis Sanatorium and State Cancer Hospital -- These two hospitals provide direct medical and hospital care for indigent persons with these diseases. They also cooperate in the general health program by providing information and instruction to divisional personnel and students in training institutions.

3. Section of Chronic Diseases --This section is concerned with programs seeking to control the following chronic diseases: cancer; heart disease; tuberculosis; and diabetes. The preventive mental health program was transferred from the Division of Health to the Division of Mental Diseases July 1, 1964. Other activities carried on by this section are the nursing home licensing program and the home care program created in 1955.

4. Section of Local Health Services -- The division maintains five district offices as centers for educational, advisory, and inspectional work. Each office is under the general administrative supervision of a health officer who is a medical doctor. The staff consists of trained public health nurses, health educators, nutritionists, engineers, sanitarians, and other specialized public health workers.

The central office staff of the section are trained consultants in the areas of communicable diseases, dental health, environmental sanitation and health education. They are responsible for the development of programs and standards to guide the activities of personnel in the districts and local health departments.

The Hungry Millions

Editor's Note — In an era of unprecedented prosperity more than two billion people are hungry, and widespread famine is a possibility in the near future. The following first of five articles on the world food supply—or lack of it—outlines the challenges man faces to avoid anarchy and war resulting from starvation.

The Hungry millions part 1
By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Frightening specters haunt the rich North Atlantic world today.

These are the specters of widespread famine, pestilence, violence and ultimately war, less than a generation from now.

Men may be able to keep their fingers away from the trigger which would exterminate millions in nuclear clouds. Can mankind meet the other awesome challenge?

While the North Atlantic world rejoices in an era of unparalleled prosperity, scientists sound a grave warning: the inexorable mathematics of hunger can mean catastrophe is around the corner, probably less than 15 years away.

Hunger has a variety of forms: malnutrition, or lack of proteins, minerals and vitamins: undernutrition, or just not enough of any food, and starvation.

People in these categories are numerous enough to fill Metropolitan New York 160 times over. If they stood in single file, two feet apart, the line would circle the globe 25 times. Two years or less from now, there would be another circle, and then more at more frequent intervals. These are the hungry.

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization estimates that one person in every two in the world is badly nourished, one in three is chronically hungry, one in 8 or 10 is undernourished. Nearly two-thirds of the world's people know some form of hunger.

These are just some of the grim statistics compiled by researchers contemplating a terrifying equation of population growth and food supply. Experts say that before long, famine can present the rich nations —their people outnumbered 2-1 by the hungry—with dangers as great or greater than those emanating from the clash of ideologies.

"If present trends continue," said Dr. Raymond Ewell, vice president for research at the State University of New York in Buffalo and an authority on the subject, "it seems likely famine will reach serious proportions in India, Pakistan and China in the early 1970s, followed by Indonesia, Iran, Turkey, Egypt, and Brazil, then followed by most of the other countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America by 1980.

"Such a famine will be of massive proportions, affecting hundreds of millions, possibly even billions of persons. If this happens, as appears very probable, it will be the most colossal catastrophe in history."

Part 1 Gal 2

To meet the challenge will take time and international cooperation, both scarce commodities.

"We have the skills and the scientific knowledge," says FAO Director General Binay Ranjan Sen. "What we need is the will."

Most experts agree that more than two billion of the world's 3.3 billion people are hungry.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says diet deficit areas are: Asia (except Japan), the Near East (except Israel) most of Central America and the Caribbean, northern and equatorial South America, much of Africa. Oddly, hunger is most prevalent south of the 38th Parallel.

A small group of nations with 16 per cent of the population has 70 per cent of the world's wealth. These are nations grouped around the North Atlantic, along with Japan, and Australia-New Zealand.

Two-thirds of the human race barely subsists. Most of the hungry are nonwhite. On the average they eat 900 less calories daily than those in the white, developed third of humanity. But calories are meaningless when two out of three have less than nutritional requirements in any event.

India eats 24 per cent less than it needs in nutrition. Americans eat 17 per cent more than they need. In general, people in developed nations eat two to three times more than the poor ones. North America consumes nearly five times more food per person than is eaten on the Asian mainland.

Americans, only 6 per cent of the world's people, have 40 per cent of the world income. About 1.4 billion people in about 100 countries have an average income per person of under $100 a year, 30 times less than President Johnson says should be the bare minimum for a U.S. married couple.

The FAO says that in the 1963-1964 fiscal year, the world produced less food per person than the year before. Deficits likely will grow.

The U.S. Agriculture Department says the food problem in poor countries can be the most insoluble problem that humanity faces in the next few decades. Production cannot keep up with rapid population growth without substantial changes in world agricultural policies.

Americans and the developed world now are concerning themselves with the problem. It is a staggering one, laden with ominous political and social connotations. Once the hungry did not know there was hope. Today, there is swift communication. People know. Hopes are aroused. But if ascending hopes clash with bitter disappointment, danger is near.

The southern areas of the world, for the most part, are in the grip of frustration. The northern areas wax richer all the time, their capacity to produce wealth constantly expanding. People in the north — even the poorest — are rich beyond the dreams of the poor in the southern parts.

The mathematics of violence is all too clear. There is an invitation in the poor lands to seek overnight solutions to their woes, solutions offered from such sources as the witch doctors of communism. The temptation is to seek the quick, violent answer.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

MEXICO CITY — It is a puzzling thing in any nation, listening to the courtroom language of a barrister or reading a paper he has written, for that matter.

Out of doors in the clear fresh air, the avis legis speaks in phrases of the working man. Even the letters he writes home are easily understood by small cousins.

Only in courts of law or other similar haunts do we find this conspiracy of language. I speak with authority on this curious situation, having attended a hearing here with a friend whose attorney did some very effective work in the Unknown Tongue. Some sort of an international case but don't ask what.

It was an edifying experience and my friend's barrister explored such points as ex post facto, pro bono publico and quantum sufficit.

And the enemy fired back volleys of aurea mediocritas in a scholarly manner, all of which dripped from the impermeable back of our shyster. Otium cum dignitate was his middle name.

So during one of the recesses when everybody got back to Spanish, we tried reading a document on the case. It told all about the party of the first part hereinabove mentioned with another party who occupied some other part.

Nothing came of it, so far as we could tell.

Later on it turned out that my friend was the party of one of the parts but we didn't know which part. Even the judge seemed confused because he kept going into another room (to watch Perry Mason in Spanish on TV, if you ask me) and conferring with the barristers and a number of experts on different things.

Finally, the confusion was cleared up and since our solicitor had produced the most effective orbis scientiarum he won by a TKO.

The judge announced it and then rushed back to his chambers to check up on Perry Mason.

All of which is very well but did you ever imagine what might happen if the councelors used this frightening vocabulary in every day encounters? Picture such a meeting at the table next to you in a swanky restaurant like The Ambassadeur.

A tweedy barrister approaches this table in a casual manner and says, "Well, Harrison. Dulce et decorum es pro patria mori."

So the other caballero daubs his mustache with a napkin as he arises to shake hands and says, "Emmet old boy. De gusti bus non est disputandum." (Probably means "if we get in a dispute I'll miss my bus.")

Then the first legalist says, "Do you perchance have un embarras des richesses?"

Whereupon Harrison shrugs and answers, "De mortuis nil nisi bonum. I am barely together."

And the first one says, "Gee, that's casus belli. Did you have eggs?"

"Et tu, Brute." (Well, that's terribly corny but you can think of something better in Latin go ahead and laugh.)

Obviously, someone must faint to put a stop to this ignoranti juris and it might as well be us.

But in defence of this legal lingo, my friend's solicitor offers this bit of unexpected information, to wit: court encounters are even more confusing in London where they speak a combination of Puritan and Latin. With British accents.

GIRL SCOUT WEEK
MARCH 7th - 13th

THE GIRL SCOUT PROMISE --

ON MY HONOR, I WILL TRY

TO DO MY DUTY TO GOD

. . . AND MY COUNTRY.

TO HELP OTHER PEOPLE AT ALL TIMES,

TO OBEY THE GIRL SCOUT LAWS.

The promise is made by every girl when she becomes a member of the Girl Scouts -- it is the code of honor by which she lives.

While earning proficiency badges in a variety of activities she learns to live up to the Girl Scout Laws and prepares to become an honorable and useful citizen of her community.

THE GIRL SCOUT LAW --

1. A Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted.
2. A Girl Scout is loyal.
3. A Girl Scout's duty is to be helpful and help others.
4. A Girl Scout is a friend to all and a sister to every Girl Scout.
5. A Girl Scout is a friend to animals.
6. A Girl Scout obeys orders.
7. A Girl Scout is cheerful.
8. A Girl Scout is thrifty.
9. A Girl Scout is clean in thought, word and deed.

WE SALUTE EVERY MEMBER OF THIS FINE ORGANIZATION FOR THEIR SUCCESS IN HELPING EACH OTHER, OUR COMMUNITY, AND OUR NATION.

Town And Country Place

DR. GENE SHIPLEY

"There is a basic need for education concerned with meat inspection in Missouri," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

"We will not have meat inspection in Missouri until the consumer demands complete inspection.

"The final answer to the assurance that all meat sold to the public is safe is of course complete inspection of all facilities and of all meat. This requires a lot of money and a lot of personnel.

"Inspection in Missouri, we have determined, would cost in excess of $500,000 dollars a year. This is quite an amount of money. In the past and even today, most consumers are unaware that all meat is not inspected. Also they are unaware of the hazards inherent in the situation.

"When the consumer is educated, the consumer will demand the inspection.

"The education of the producer and processor of these meat products is also important. These people can only do the job they are educated to do.

"When we point out the need for sanitation — the need for inspections of the product — when we are able to convince all processors of this, then we'll have a better product for you to consume.

INSPECTION:

"Two basic sections of Missouri statutes (part of the Food and Drug Act of the State of Missouri) constitute the base for all meat inspection activities in the state," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

These two sections are concerned with adulteration and misbranding of food products. They apply from the wholesale level through the retail levels and actually up to the consumer.

"Under these statutes we have a set of regulations — a code governing meat and slaughter houses. This code involves twenty-two separate items of basic construction and sanitation for the protection of the product. It does not involve any inspection of the meat itself, or of the animals being slaughtered.

"We go into these plants on a periodic basis to inspect and to see that these plants are constructed in accordance with the regulations, and that the sanitation or cleanliness of the plants conforms to our standards.

The items of construction are basically involved with walls, floors, ceilings, etc. The construction of water supplies and sewage treatment is very important.

Sanitation is just the cleanliness of keeping the equipment in the plant and the product in the plant clean and well protected from any kind of contamination. Pests and rodents must be excluded from the plant.

"We have several types of plants under inspection in Missouri.

"Some are one room slaughter houses. Some handle only one kind of meat such as beef. More of them are complete including total processing, curing of meats, some even to the retail level. These plants contribute a great amount of meat to the total meat consumption of the state.

"We do not know exactly how much or what percentage of the meat is from these plants under so called state inspection.

"We have state inspection of facilities only. It does not apply to the product or to the animal slaughtered.

"These plants are under sanitation inspection — not under meat inspection regulations.

"We have other types of inspection in the state. We have city inspection in the larger cities and there are a number of cities in the state and some city-county health units that have enacted ordinances or laws which enable them to give the same sort of inspection the federal government gives — a continuous on the line inspection of the animals before they are slaughtered and the product afterwards as well as the plant itself.

The state regulations provide only for the inspection of the facilities — primarily once a year.

We have facilities and procedures whereby if a plant is not in compliance with a regulation, we do make more frequent inspections. We issue work orders which require the plant to come up to specifications.

If they fail to meet the requirements of the work order we can (under the Director of the Division of Health) issue a closing order which requires the plant to close until such time as they meet our regulations. They may then reopen.

PROBLEMS OF UNINSPECTION:

"Thee are a number of diseases which can be transmitted to the human through uninspected meat. This is the basic reason for meat inspection where we do have it.

Many people are not aware of the fact that there is not complete coverage of inspection of meat. There is a large amount of uninspected meat in out state Missouri. By and large, this is good meat, but there are of course some carcasses from diseased animals or that may become contaminated during the slaughter and processing. This could lead to staphylococcus infections, various stomach ailments, brucellosis, tuberculosis, and these types of diseases which animals have and to which humans are susceptible.

"About 230 plants in Missouri of which we are aware slaughter under state sanitation only. These plants do produce uninspected meat and quite a large quantity of meat in Missouri is so produced.

All meat you may purchase is not necessarily inspected. Only if it has a Federal or City Inspection stamp on it, you will know it has been inspected.

The division of health is divided into five districts. Each of these districts do the inspection of slaughter houses and meat processing plants in their area.

Dr. Shipley coordinates the activities of these districts — to assist them whenever necessary and to achieve some standardization so all inspections are handled in the same way and to give the same sort of service to consumers in the state.

CHEMICALS:

Chemicals such as sulphides are used to prevent meat from spoiling or to conceal spoilage.

Sulfites in spoiled hamburger will make the hamburger appear fresh and red as though it had just been ground.

Carmine dye is added to make the meat look red and appetizing. It has no other useful purpose.

Sodium benzoate is added to ground meat to maintain freshness. Under the state regulations no additive may be added to fresh ground meat products other than salt or tenderizer.

The federal regulations specify what additives may be put in preserved meats such as cured sausage, etc. also in some of the combined meat products, meat loaves, etc.

We accept these Federal standards and attempt to enforce them to the best of our ability in Missouri.

Our regulations too on hamburger with regard to preservatives is in line with the federal regulation.

"You are always more safe with inspected meat. If the inspection stamp is on there you know the meat was produced under sanitary conditions from wholesome animals," concluded Dr. Shipley.

New Madrid County Library

A brisk business in birthday parties for pre-school and school age children is the mid-winter prospect in many homes.

A number of excellent manuals are available at the New Madrid County Library which cover all aspects of planning children's parties.

One of the most recent guides is "The Complete Guide to Giving Successful Parties for Children," by Lois Freeman. The volume provides complete instructions for over 150 children's games and activities, in addition to advice on everything else needed to make party-giving for 5 to 11 year olds a happy experience.

Airman
Sylvester M. Sisson Jr.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. -- Airman Sylvester M. Sisson Jr., grandson of Mrs. Laura A. Pope of Rt. 1, Bell City, Mo., has completed his U. S. Air Force basic military training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and has been selected for technical training.

Airman Sisson will be trained as a water and sanitation specialist at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. The school is one of the many military and civilian education facilities used in the vast Air Training Command system to prepare officers and airmen for duty in the diverse skills required by the nation's aerospace force.

The airman is a 1964 graduate of Bell City High School.

FORT RUCKER, ALA. (AHTNC)—Pvt. Louis R. L. Thatch, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezell Thatch, Parma, Mo., completed a two-week single rotor utility helicopter maintenance course at the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., March 5.

During the course Thatch received instruction in the maintenance and repair of Army utility helicopters.

He entered the Army last September and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood.

VICENZA, ITALY (AHTNC) —PFC Glenn M. Holmes, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Holmes, Route 1, Box 59, Oran, Mo., a member of the U.S. Army's Southern European Task (SETAF), participated in a five-day NATO maneuver KING NEPTUNE 65 in northern Italy.

The exercise, which ended March 5, was designed to test the command's ability to provide advance weapons support under fast moving battlefield situations with integrated staffs of the participating NATO countries.

Holmes, a member of the Supply and Maintenance Group's Direct Support Company near Vicenza, Italy, entered the Army in February 1964 and arrived overseas last November.

He was graduated from Oran High School in 1962.

VICENZA, ITALY (AHTNC) —PFC Charles E. Organ, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Organ, Star Route, Box 337, East Prairie, Mo., a member of the U.S. Army's Southern European Task Force (SETAF), participated in a five-day NATO maneuver KING NEPTUNE 65, in northern Italy.

The exercise, which ended March 5, was designed to test the command's ability to provide advance weapons support under fast moving battlefield situations with integrated staffs of the participating NATO countries.

Organ, an auto mechanic in Headquarters Battery of the 30th Artillery's 5th Battalion near Vicenza, Italy, entered the Army in March 1964 and completed basic training at Fort Gordon, Ga. He was last stationed at Fort Hood, Tex.

Organ was graduated from Kewanee High School in 1960 and was employed by St. Louis Shipbuilding before entering the Army.

Lady Bullfighter Teaches Others

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlene Abernathy, 43, anxious to share her knowledge of bullfighting with others of her sex, brandished a pair of horns and pretended to be a charging bull.

A score of young women watched. They appeared in Griffith Park in answer to Miss Abernathy's advertisement for girls interested in learning the art of bloodless bullfighting.

Miss Abernathy, a slim, tailored blonde, says she has given bullfighting exhibitions in Mexico, where she learned the matador's technique. She said she hopes to train a team to tour the United States demonstrating the art.

"After two months of training," said Miss Abernathy, "we'll be ready for the first live animal. Later we'll get around to real fighting bulls — about 700 pounds on the hoof."

"But," said Lora Davis, 22, a model and a student bullfighter, "they'll have padded horns, like in Portugal."

"Of course," said Miss Abernathy. "Crowds love to see us thrown — but not gored."

The girls include housewives, secretaries and models. Many said they came to the first lesson out of curiosity. The appearance of live bulls is expected to cut attendance a trifle, but Miss Abernathy hopes she'll keep enough girls to form a demonstration team.

The girls are training with horns from which the bulls have been removed — although one set is mounted on a wheeled-cart, called a carretilla, at which neophytes can wave capes.

In bloodless bullfighting swords aren't used, and most of the risks are assumed by the matador.

"Now," said Miss Abernathy, spinning her cape, "this is a right-hand pass."

Carol Christmas, 27, a bathing suit model, giggled. "Most of us already know about those," she said.

FHA Represented at State Meeting

The Matthews R-V Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America will be represented at the Missouri State Meeting of the FHA on March 6, on the Lincoln University Campus in Jefferson City by Paula Huffstutler, Regional Officer; Linda Tollison, Chorus; Linda Buchanan and Janice Griffin, Chapter Representatives. They will be accompanied by their advisor, Mrs. Bernice Rogers, and Mrs. Willie Tollison, a Chapter Mother. The 1400 delegates will represent the 336 FHA chapters in Missouri.

"For We Are the Builders of Homes" is the theme of the meeting. Dr. John Furbay, Educational Director, Trans-World Airlines, will make the keynote address at the opening session. Other program highlights include: a panel discussion on the education needed for a successful marriage, a performance by the 190-voice all-state chorus and the installation of new state and regional officers.

A banquet for regional and state officers will be held Friday evening March 5. Miss America of 1964, Miss Donna Axum, will be guest speaker.

FHA is a national organization of youth enrolled in home economics. It is co-sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education and the American Home Economics Association.

Grade School Students Exchange with Foreigners

The sixth grade students at Matthews R-V Grade School are building strong international friendship with their counterparts in Australia. Under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Cecile Greene, they will exchange scrapbooks, letters, tape recordings and school projects with students at Barham Central School, Barham New South Wales, Australia. The affiliation was arranged through People-to-People, Inc. as part of its School and Classroom program.

"The Program has strong educational value," Mrs. Greene said. "This project was designed to build students' interest in geography, history, language and culture of Australia, and more important, to create an awareness of the people in other countries," she added.

People-to-People officials report that over 700,000 students in 67 countries are participating in the classroom exchange. The program was set up to be flexible and practical for all grade levels. The purpose of the exchange is to stimulate international good will and to teach students how to communicate with others who speak different languages and follow other customs.

People-to-People is an organization dedicated to promoting international understanding. The program was conceived by General Dwight D. Eisenhower at a White House conference in 1956. In November, 1961, People-to-People was established as a non-profit, non-political movement of private citizens with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. General Eisenhower is chairman of the board of trustees.

Mrs. Greene's pupils received replies last week from the letters they wrote last fall to the students at Barham. The delay in answering was caused by the Australian children being out of school for a 7-week Christmas vacation, during which they were having temperatures of 100 degrees and above.

High School Honor Roll

Students at Matthews R-V High School whose names appear on the Honor Roll for having attained an "S" (3.00) or better average in academic subjects for the first six-weeks period of the second semester are:

Seniors: Ruth Jones, Janice Bye, Paul Roberts, Willis Rodgers, Richard Schuerenberg, Larry Roach, Danny Causey, Patricia Griffin, and Mary Ann Gruen.

Juniors: Linda Tollison, Diane Bratton, Alan Hartlein, Randy Porter, Douglas Moore, and Barbara Roach.

Sophomores: Joel Buchanan and Charles Conrad.

Freshmen: Paul Lomax, Patricia McMillen, Connie Griffin, Judy Jenkins, Michael Geske, James Myers, Amon Ring, Eugene Gruen, Jimmy Tollison and Mason Yarbrough.

Grade 8: Jerry McCoy and Carl Sullivan.

Former Matthews Man Appointed Superintendent

Mrs. Malcolm Ratcliffe has received word that her son, David Ratcliffe, who has been acting superintendent of schools at Danville, Illinois, was recently elected to the position of Superintendent of Schools for a three-year period beginning July 1965. Mr. Ratcliffe is an alumnus of Southeast Missouri State College, as is Mrs. Ratcliffe, the former Miss Bobby Lou Lear, of Jackson. The couple have two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas and son, Bruce Douglas, of Milwaukee, Wis. visited during the weekend with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whiffen, and children.

Mrs. Ralph Fairies was called to Flint, Mich. Saturday by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Roberts, who had undergone surgery. She was accompanied by her nephew, Leon Kesler of Essex. Mrs. Robert's condition improved and they returned Tuesday.

Jimmy Burch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, was dismissed from Missouri Delta Hospital where he had been a surgical patient. Other patients at the hospital are Talton Cannon, Charles Spalding, George Gaines, and Ralph Fairies.

DR. GENE SHIPLEY

"There is a basic need for education concerned with meat inspection in Missouri," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

"We will not have meat inspection in Missouri until the consumer demands complete inspection.

"The final answer to the assurance that all meat sold to the public is safe is of course complete inspection of all facilities and of all meat. This requires a lot of money and a lot of personnel.

"Inspection in Missouri, we have determined, would cost in excess of $500,000 dollars a year. This is quite an amount of money. In the past and even today, most consumers are unaware that all meat is not inspected. Also they are unaware of the hazards inherent in the situation.

"When the consumer is educated, the consumer will demand the inspection.

"The education of the producer and processor of these meat products is also important. These people can only do the job they are educated to do.

"When we point out the need for sanitation — the need for inspections of the product — when we are able to convince all processors of this, then we'll have a better product for you to consume.

INSPECTION:

"Two basic sections of Missouri statutes (part of the Food and Drug Act of the State of Missouri) constitute the base for all meat inspection activities in the state," says Dr. Gene Shipley, Public Health Veterinarian, Missouri Division of Health, Jefferson City, Missouri.

These two sections are concerned with adulteration and misbranding of food products. They apply from the wholesale level through the retail levels and actually up to the consumer.

"Under these statutes we have a set of regulations — a code governing meat and slaughter houses. This code involves twenty-two separate items of basic construction and sanitation for the protection of the product. It does not involve any inspection of the meat itself, or of the animals being slaughtered.

"We go into these plants on a periodic basis to inspect and to see that these plants are constructed in accordance with the regulations, and that the sanitation or cleanliness of the plants conforms to our standards.

The items of construction are basically involved with walls, floors, ceilings, etc. The construction of water supplies and sewage treatment is very important.

Sanitation is just the cleanliness of keeping the equipment in the plant and the product in the plant clean and well protected from any kind of contamination. Pests and rodents must be excluded from the plant.

"We have several types of plants under inspection in Missouri.

"Some are one room slaughter houses. Some handle only one kind of meat such as beef. More of them are complete including total processing, curing of meats, some even to the retail level. These plants contribute a great amount of meat to the total meat consumption of the state.

"We do not know exactly how much or what percentage of the meat is from these plants under so called state inspection.

"We have state inspection of facilities only. It does not apply to the product or to the animal slaughtered.

"These plants are under sanitation inspection — not under meat inspection regulations.

"We have other types of inspection in the state. We have city inspection in the larger cities and there are a number of cities in the state and some city-county health units that have enacted ordinances or laws which enable them to give the same sort of inspection the federal government gives — a continuous on the line inspection of the animals before they are slaughtered and the product afterwards as well as the plant itself.

The state regulations provide only for the inspection of the facilities — primarily once a year.

We have facilities and procedures whereby if a plant is not in compliance with a regulation, we do make more frequent inspections. We issue work orders which require the plant to come up to specifications.

If they fail to meet the requirements of the work order we can (under the Director of the Division of Health) issue a closing order which requires the plant to close until such time as they meet our regulations. They may then reopen.

PROBLEMS OF UNINSPECTION:

"Thee are a number of diseases which can be transmitted to the human through uninspected meat. This is the basic reason for meat inspection where we do have it.

Many people are not aware of the fact that there is not complete coverage of inspection of meat. There is a large amount of uninspected meat in out state Missouri. By and large, this is good meat, but there are of course some carcasses from diseased animals or that may become contaminated during the slaughter and processing. This could lead to staphylococcus infections, various stomach ailments, brucellosis, tuberculosis, and these types of diseases which animals have and to which humans are susceptible.

"About 230 plants in Missouri of which we are aware slaughter under state sanitation only. These plants do produce uninspected meat and quite a large quantity of meat in Missouri is so produced.

All meat you may purchase is not necessarily inspected. Only if it has a Federal or City Inspection stamp on it, you will know it has been inspected.

The division of health is divided into five districts. Each of these districts do the inspection of slaughter houses and meat processing plants in their area.

Dr. Shipley coordinates the activities of these districts — to assist them whenever necessary and to achieve some standardization so all inspections are handled in the same way and to give the same sort of service to consumers in the state.

CHEMICALS:

Chemicals such as sulphides are used to prevent meat from spoiling or to conceal spoilage.

Sulfites in spoiled hamburger will make the hamburger appear fresh and red as though it had just been ground.

Carmine dye is added to make the meat look red and appetizing. It has no other useful purpose.

Sodium benzoate is added to ground meat to maintain freshness. Under the state regulations no additive may be added to fresh ground meat products other than salt or tenderizer.

The federal regulations specify what additives may be put in preserved meats such as cured sausage, etc. also in some of the combined meat products, meat loaves, etc.

We accept these Federal standards and attempt to enforce them to the best of our ability in Missouri.

Our regulations too on hamburger with regard to preservatives is in line with the federal regulation.

"You are always more safe with inspected meat. If the inspection stamp is on there you know the meat was produced under sanitary conditions from wholesome animals," concluded Dr. Shipley.

Grade School Students Exchange with Foreigners

The sixth grade students at Matthews R-V Grade School are building strong international friendship with their counterparts in Australia. Under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Cecile Greene, they will exchange scrapbooks, letters, tape recordings and school projects with students at Barham Central School, Barham New South Wales, Australia. The affiliation was arranged through People-to-People, Inc. as part of its School and Classroom program.

"The Program has strong educational value," Mrs. Greene said. "This project was designed to build students' interest in geography, history, language and culture of Australia, and more important, to create an awareness of the people in other countries," she added.

People-to-People officials report that over 700,000 students in 67 countries are participating in the classroom exchange. The program was set up to be flexible and practical for all grade levels. The purpose of the exchange is to stimulate international good will and to teach students how to communicate with others who speak different languages and follow other customs.

People-to-People is an organization dedicated to promoting international understanding. The program was conceived by General Dwight D. Eisenhower at a White House conference in 1956. In November, 1961, People-to-People was established as a non-profit, non-political movement of private citizens with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. General Eisenhower is chairman of the board of trustees.

Mrs. Greene's pupils received replies last week from the letters they wrote last fall to the students at Barham. The delay in answering was caused by the Australian children being out of school for a 7-week Christmas vacation, during which they were having temperatures of 100 degrees and above.

FHA Represented at State Meeting

The Matthews R-V Chapter of the Future Homemakers of America will be represented at the Missouri State Meeting of the FHA on March 6, on the Lincoln University Campus in Jefferson City by Paula Huffstutler, Regional Officer; Linda Tollison, Chorus; Linda Buchanan and Janice Griffin, Chapter Representatives. They will be accompanied by their advisor, Mrs. Bernice Rogers, and Mrs. Willie Tollison, a Chapter Mother. The 1400 delegates will represent the 336 FHA chapters in Missouri.

"For We Are the Builders of Homes" is the theme of the meeting. Dr. John Furbay, Educational Director, Trans-World Airlines, will make the keynote address at the opening session. Other program highlights include: a panel discussion on the education needed for a successful marriage, a performance by the 190-voice all-state chorus and the installation of new state and regional officers.

A banquet for regional and state officers will be held Friday evening March 5. Miss America of 1964, Miss Donna Axum, will be guest speaker.

FHA is a national organization of youth enrolled in home economics. It is co-sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education and the American Home Economics Association.

Mrs. Doyle Lefler, left, is the leader of Girl Scout Troop #199. She and Mr. Moore, who is a postal clerk, have two children--Robert, age fifteen who is a Life Scout and Teresa, age nine, who is a Brownie scout.

Mrs. Moore is also a member of the Meadow Lane Garden Club and LaForge Extension Club. The Moores are members of the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

Mrs. Robert Moore, right, is the assistant leader of Troop #199. She and Mr. Moore, who is a postal clerk, have two children--Robert, age fifteen who is a Life Scout and Teresa, age nine, who is a Brownie scout.

Mrs. Moore is also a member of the Meadow Lane Garden Club and LaForge Extension Club. The Moores are members of the First Baptist Church in Sikeston.

Former Matthews Man Appointed Superintendent

Mrs. Malcolm Ratcliffe has received word that her son, David Ratcliffe, who has been acting superintendent of schools at Danville, Illinois, was recently elected to the position of Superintendent of Schools for a three-year period beginning July 1965. Mr. Ratcliffe is an alumnus of Southeast Missouri State College, as is Mrs. Ratcliffe, the former Miss Bobby Lou Lear, of Jackson. The couple have two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas and son, Bruce Douglas, of Milwaukee, Wis. visited during the weekend with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whiffen, and children.

Mrs. Ralph Fairies was called to Flint, Mich. Saturday by the serious illness of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Roberts, who had undergone surgery. She was accompanied by her nephew, Leon Kesler of Essex. Mrs. Robert's condition improved and they returned Tuesday.

Jimmy Burch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, was dismissed from Missouri Delta Hospital where he had been a surgical patient. Other patients at the hospital are Talton Cannon, Charles Spalding, George Gaines, and Ralph Fairies.

A CIVILIZED GAME?

In the most primitive regions of darkest Africa, natives beat the ground with clubs and utter blood-curdling yells.

Anthropologists define this savage behavior as primitive self-expression.

In America, it's called golf. .....Santa Fe Magazine

Section 6: Candidates shall be nominated by a primary election, and no other names shall be placed upon the general ballot except those nominated as herein prescribed. The primary for such nomination shall be held on the second Tuesday preceding the election and the Judges and Clerks appointed for the general election shall also serve for the primary election, so far as possible, and the primary and general elections shall be held at the same polling places so far as possible, and the polls shall be opened and closed at the same hours with the same number of Clerks as required for said general election.

Section 7: Any person desiring to become a candidate for Councilman shall file with the City Clerk at least ten days prior to said primary election a statement of such candidacy in substantially the following form:

State of Missouri) SS
County of_____)

I, _____, being first duly sworn, say that I reside at _____ Street, City of Sikeston, County of _____, State of Missouri; that I am a qualified voter therein; that I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Councilman to be voted upon at the primary election to be held on the third Tuesday of March, 1965, and am eligible therefor and I hereby request that my name be printed upon the official primary ballot for nomination by primary election for such office, and that I will serve as such officer, if elected.

Signed: _____

Subscribed and sworn to (or affirmed) before me _____ on this _____ day of _____, 1965.

Signed: _____

Section 8: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to have published all the necessary poll books, tally sheets, and ballots for said election, as authorized by law.

Section 9: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to give notice of said election, as required by law, by publishing notice in the Daily Sikeston Standard in three issues, the first issue shall appear not less than 20 days before the date of election.

Section 10: Immediately upon the expiration of the time for filing the statements, the City Clerk shall cause to be published in proper form for three successive days in the Daily Sikeston Standard, the names of the candidates to appear upon the primary ballot, and said Clerk shall thereupon cause the primary ballots to be printed, and shall arrange their names thereon in the order filed with him. Above the names of such candidates shall appear the words, "Vote for (number to be elected)-Scratch all others." The ballots shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper, and shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be chosen for any one office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL PRIMARY BALLOT
Candidates for nomination for Councilman of Sikeston, Missouri, at the primary election.

FOR COUNCILMAN

Vote for (number to be elected): scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Section 11: The City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last municipal election. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges cannot be made by more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges at a general election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election except as to the number. Judges of the election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by said Clerk, within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the Council shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall make and publish the result thereof in the Daily Sikeston Standard. Such canvass by the Council shall be publicly made, and the names of candidates receiving the highest number of votes for councilman, equal to twice the number to be elected, if there be so many running, shall be placed upon the official ballot for councilman at such general election.

Section 12: The primary election shall not be required if upon the expiration of the time for filing of statements with the City Clerk of persons desiring to become a candidate for councilman, the number of such persons shall not exceed a number equal to twice the number to be elected at the general election. Within forty-eight hours after the expiration of the time for filing of such statements with the City Clerk, the council shall canvass the statements filed to determine from the number of statements filed whether this section shall be applicable. In the event that it is determined that the provisions shall be applicable, the council shall, by ordnance, provide that a primary election shall not be held and that the names of the persons filing statements shall be printed on the general election ballots as the nominees for councilman, provided, however, that the name of such persons appearing on such ballot shall appear thereon in the order that they were filed with the City Clerk.

Section 13: The City Clerk shall thereupon cause the official ballots to be printed, and upon the said ballots the names of the candidates shall be arranged in the order of their vote received at the primary election, and above the names of the candidates shall appear the words "Vote for (number to be elected) -- scratch all others". The ballot shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The ballots shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be elected to any office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL BALLOT

FOR COUNCILMAN
Vote for Two (2) Candidates only -- scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each volling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election.

Section 14: Each of the nominees for Councilman may appoint a challenger. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make the return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said Clerk within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said election, the Council shall canvass said returns so received from the polling precincts and declare the result; and the two candidates receiving the first and second highest number of votes for Councilman, shall be declared duly elected Councilman.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 1st day of February, 1965.

WARD FOUR-PRECINCT TWO
Inez L. Baker, Muriel E. Lambert, Lillian Capps, Lucille Tetley, Ethel Baugus, Ethel Duggins.

Section 6: Candidates shall be nominated by a primary election, and no other names shall be placed upon the general ballot except those nominated as herein prescribed. The primary for such nomination shall be held on the second Tuesday preceding the election and the Judges and Clerks appointed for the general election shall also serve for the primary election, so far as possible, and the primary and general elections shall be held at the same polling places so far as possible, and the polls shall be opened and closed at the same hours with the same number of Clerks as required for said general election.

Section 7: Any person desiring to become a candidate for Councilman shall file with the City Clerk at least ten days prior to said primary election a statement of such candidacy in substantially the following form:

State of Missouri) ss
County of_____)

I, _____, being first duly sworn, say that I reside at _____ Street, City of Sikeston, County of _____, State of Missouri; that I am a qualified voter therein; that I am a candidate for nomination to the office of Councilman to be voted upon at the primary election to be held on the third Tuesday of March, 1965, and am eligible therefor and I hereby request that my name be printed upon the official primary ballot for nomination by primary election for such office, and that I will serve as such officer, if elected.

Signed: _____

Subscribed and sworn to (or affirmed) before me _____ on this _____ day of _____, 1965.

Signed: _____

Section 8: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to have published all the necessary poll books, tally sheets, and ballots for said election, as authorized by law.

Section 9: That the City Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to give notice of said election, as required by law, by publishing notice in the Daily Sikeston Standard in three issues, the first issue shall appear not less than 20 days before the date of election.

Section 10: Immediately upon the expiration of the time for filing the statements, the City Clerk shall cause to be published in proper form for three successive days in the Daily Sikeston Standard, the names of the candidates to appear upon the primary ballot, and said Clerk shall thereupon cause the primary ballots to be printed, and shall arrange their names thereon in the order filed with him. Above the names of such candidates shall appear the words, "Vote for (number to be elected)-Scratch all others." The ballots shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper, and shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be chosen for any one office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL PRIMARY BALLOT
Candidates for nomination for Councilman of Sikeston, Missouri, at the primary election.

FOR COUNCILMAN

Vote for (number to be elected): scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Section 11: The City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each polling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last municipal election. The persons who are qualified to vote at the general election shall be qualified to vote at such primary election, and challenges cannot be made by more than two persons, to be appointed at the time of opening the polls by the judges of election; and the law applicable to challenges at a general election shall be applicable to challenges made at such primary election except as to the number. Judges of the election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by said Clerk, within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said primary election the Council shall canvass said returns so received from all the polling precincts, and shall make and publish the result thereof in the Daily Sikeston Standard. Such canvass by the Council shall be publicly made, and the names of candidates receiving the highest number of votes for councilman, equal to twice the number to be elected, if there be so many running, shall be placed upon the official ballot for councilman at such general election.

Section 12: The primary election shall not be required if upon the expiration of the time for filing of statements with the City Clerk of persons desiring to become a candidate for councilman, the number of such persons shall not exceed a number equal to twice the number to be elected at the general election. Within forty-eight hours after the expiration of the time for filing of such statements with the City Clerk, the council shall canvass the statements filed to determine from the number of statements filed whether this section shall be applicable. In the event that it is determined that the provisions shall be applicable, the council shall, by ordnance, provide that a primary election shall not be held and that the names of the persons filing statements shall be printed on the general election ballots as the nominees for councilman, provided, however, that the name of such persons appearing on such ballot shall appear thereon in the order that they were filed with the City Clerk.

Section 13: The City Clerk shall thereupon cause the official ballots to be printed, and upon the said ballots the names of the candidates shall be arranged in the order of their vote received at the primary election, and above the names of the candidates shall appear the words "Vote for (number to be elected) -- scratch all others". The ballot shall be printed upon plain, substantial white paper and shall have no party designation or mark whatever. The ballots shall be in substantially the following form:

Warning: Voting for more than the total number of candidates to be elected to any office will invalidate this ballot.

OFFICIAL BALLOT

FOR COUNCILMAN
Vote for Two (2) Candidates only -- scratch all others. Names of Candidates.

Having caused said ballots to be printed, the City Clerk shall cause to be delivered at each volling place a number of said ballots equal to twice the number of votes cast in such polling precinct at the last general municipal election.

Section 14: Each of the nominees for Councilman may appoint a challenger. Judges of election shall, immediately upon the closing of the polls, count the ballots and ascertain the number of votes cast in such precinct for each of the candidates, and make the return thereof to the City Clerk upon proper blanks to be furnished by the said Clerk within eighteen hours of the closing of the polls. On the day following the said election, the Council shall canvass said returns so received from the polling precincts and declare the result; and the two candidates receiving the first and second highest number of votes for Councilman, shall be declared duly elected Councilman.

Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 1st day of February, 1965.

Attest: John W. Vaughn,
City Clerk
Approved: Harry E. Dudley

Women's Health

WOMEN GAINING IN BATTLE VS. CANCER

Slowly but surely women are gaining in the fight for life against cancer -- which caused one out of six deaths among women in 1962. The reason for their victory: Early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

According to a recent study made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 8 percent fewer women of all ages died of cancer in 1960-1962 than ten years earlier (1950-1952).

Death from cancer of the various organs of the digestive system showed a striking decrease, as did death from uterine cancer.

"The cancer death toll," emphasizes the study, "can be reduced by early diagnosis and treatment. A recent follow-up study of cases diagnosed in 1950-1954 showed that among patients with breast cancer whose disease was detected while still at localized stage, the five-year survival rate was 82 percent compared with 57 percent for all breast cancer cases."

WOMEN STAY YOUNG LONGER

If you've had the feeling that women nowadays look younger longer, you're right. Science now documents your observation. According to British physician Dr. J. J. Frommer, menopause is occurring about four years later than it did 100 years ago. He observes, "There may be a link between later menopause and decreased rate of aging."

Dr. Frommer says that the median age of menopause for 443 women who were patients at London's Royal Free Hospital was 50.1 years. In 1845, menopause occurred at around 45 years of age, while in ancient times, says Dr. Frommer, it occurred at about 40 years. Dr. Frommer believes that later menopause may be a result of better nutrition and our greater knowledge of how to keep healthy. Dr. Frommer's findings were published in the British Medical Journal.

AN EXTRA HEALTH DIVIDEND

Before a physician gives a women a prescription for a contraceptive -- and the safest, most reliable contraceptives must be prescribed — he usually gives her a thorough physical check-up. "This step can do a great deal to safeguard a woman's health and a family's happiness," says Dr. Frank R. Lock, President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"In the course of such an examination we may catch defects and illnesses which, untreated," the doctor warns, "might interfere with pregnancy and childbirth. The precontraceptive exam adds up to safer pregnancy and delivery, as well as better maternal health, and increases the odds that the baby will be normal."

"SPRING-CLEAN" YOUR MEDICINE CABINET

Even the most meticulous housekeeper often neglects giving her medicine cabinet a thorough spring-cleaning. If yours is crammed with an assortment of bottles and jars of partly used, outdated, inadequately labeled drugs, the time has come for an all-out cleaning. Here are some indications for immediate down-the-drain treatment of "tired" drugs:

Any medicine whose color has changed.

Prescription drugs whose labels are gone or whose labeling is so vague that the medicine is unidentifiable. Name and strength of dosage, and for whom the drug was prescribed, should be on the label. If these designations are not on, and you're not sure what the medicine is, discard it.

Peroxide that is flat, doesn't bubble vigorously; milk of magnesia that has caked; aspirin that has a vinegary odor and crumbles easily; left-over eyewash or eye drops; discolored, spotty ointments; cloudy or sedimented nose drops.

Regular "editing" of the medicine cabinet is more than good housekeeping. It may be lifesaving.

Women's Health

WOMEN GAINING IN BATTLE VS. CANCER

Slowly but surely women are gaining in the fight for life against cancer -- which caused one out of six deaths among women in 1962. The reason for their victory: Early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

According to a recent study made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 8 percent fewer women of all ages died of cancer in 1960-1962 than ten years earlier (1950-1952).

Death from cancer of the various organs of the digestive system showed a striking decrease, as did death from uterine cancer.

"The cancer death toll," emphasizes the study, "can be reduced by early diagnosis and treatment. A recent follow-up study of cases diagnosed in 1950-1954 showed that among patients with breast cancer whose disease was detected while still at localized stage, the five-year survival rate was 82 percent compared with 57 percent for all breast cancer cases."

WOMEN STAY YOUNG LONGER

If you've had the feeling that women nowadays look younger-longer, you're right. Science now documents your observation. According to British physician Dr. J. J. Frommer, menopause is occurring about four years later than it did 100 years ago. He observes, "There may be a link between later menopause and decreased rate of aging."

Dr. Frommer says that the median age of menopause for 443 women who were patients at London's Royal Free Hospital was 50.1 years. In 1845, menopause occurred at around 45 years of age, while in ancient times, says Dr. Frommer, it occurred at about 40 years. Dr. Frommer believes that later menopause may be a result of better nutrition and our greater knowledge of how to keep healthy. Dr. Frommer's findings were published in the British Medical Journal.

AN EXTRA HEALTH DIVIDEND

Before a physician gives a women a prescription for a contraceptive -- and the safest, most reliable contraceptives must be prescribed — he usually gives her a thorough physical check-up. "This step can do a great deal to safeguard a woman's health and a family's happiness," says Dr. Frank R. Lock, President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"In the course of such an examination we may catch defects and illnesses which, untreated," the doctor warns, "might interfere with pregnancy and childbirth. The precontraceptive exam adds up to safer pregnancy and delivery, as well as better maternal health, and increases the odds that the baby will be normal."

"SPRING-CLEAN" YOUR MEDICINE CABINET

Even the most meticulous housekeeper often neglects giving her medicine cabinet a thorough spring-cleaning. If yours is crammed with an assortment of bottles and jars of partly used, outdated, inadequately labeled drugs, the time has come for an all-out cleaning. Here are some indications for immediate down-the-drain treatment of "tired" drugs:

Any medicine whose color has changed.

Prescription drugs whose labels are gone or whose labeling is so vague that the medicine is unidentifiable. Name and strength of dosage, and for whom the drug was prescribed, should be on the label. If these designations are not on, and you're not sure what the medicine is, discard it.

Peroxide that is flat, doesn't bubble vigorously; milk of magnesia that has caked; aspirin that has a vinegary odor and crumbles easily; left-over eyewash or eye drops: discolored, spotty ointments; cloudy or sedimented nose drops.

Regular "editing" of the medicine cabinet is more than good housekeeping. It may be lifesaving.

Today is Monday, March 8, the 67th day of 1965. There are 298 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1782, on the banks of the Tuscarawas River in central Ohio, 90 Indians who had been converted to Christianity were massacred by a company of militia.

On this date

In 1765, the British House of Lords approved the Stamp Act resented by the Colonies.

In 1841, Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes was born.

In 1848, the expedition led by Gen. John Charles Fremont reached Sutter's Fort in California.

In 1888, the great American football coach, Knute Rockne, was born.

In 1941, the Senate passed the Lend-Lease Act.

Ten years ago—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles warned the Chinese Communists in a broadcast that any use of force against Formosa would bring retaliation by the United States.

Five years ago—John F. Kennedy won the year's first presidential preference primary with a heavy vote by New Hampshire Democrats.

One year ago — Suspended Black Muslim leader Malcolm X announced he was forming his own black nationalist party.

If the English word ends in 'ent', such as, 'president', simply add an 'E' and you will see that you have a Spanish word:

A) president, B) presidente, C) pray-see-DAIN-tay

A) accident, B) accidente, C) ox-see-DAIN-tay

A) eminent, B) eminente, C) a-me-NAIN-tay

A) incident, B) incidente, C) een-see-DAIN-tay

Thee are scores of 'ent' ending words that you already know in Spanish, all you need do is change your vowel sounds to Spanish, and add an 'E'. Thus, whenever you see a Spanish word ending in 'ente', look to your English word that ends in 'ent' and they most likely will be the same word.

Now let us review the noun "keys" that you have studied:

No. 1 — Words ending in 'or' in English will almost always be the same in Spanish:

interior, director, superior, actor, color, doctor

No. 2 — If it ends in 'tion' in English, change the 'T' to 'C' and you have a Spanish word:

description - descripcion; admiration-admiracion; anticipation-anticipacion; invitation-invitacion

No. 3 — If it ends in 'C', add an 'O':

economic - economico; dramatic - dramatico; critic-critico; artistic-artistico

No. 4 — If it ends in 'ent', add an 'E':

president - presidente; eminent - eminente; accident-accidente; incident-incidente

As we proceed we will give you additional "keys" to transform your English vocabulary into Spanish.

Mrs. Albert Merrell, left, is the leader of Junior Troop #30 and has served in that capacity and as an assistant for the past three years. She has taken the basic leaders' training course, as well as the Arts Caravan and other available training, in order to prepare for competent leadership.

She and Mr. Merrell, who is employed as a plumber, have two daughters in scouting, Linda, age eleven, a junior scout, and Peggy, age nine, a Brownie scout. They are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Billie Butler, right, has served as the assistant leader for Troop #30 for the past three years. She and her husband, the Rev. Billie Butler, have one daughter, Donna, age ten, who is a junior scout. They are active in the ministerial alliance and Rev. Butler is pastor of the Apostolic Penecostal Church of Sikeston.

Here's Plan for Stopping Red 'Take-overs' at Start

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The same Communist methods that work in Viet Nam could work in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East.

The careful blending of terrorism, tight, militant organization, exploitation of the woes of minorities, and "promises" of social reform (land, credit, equality, freedom from foreign domination) can be as effective in Chile, Panama, the Congo or Iran as in Asia.

Ten worried officials who among them spent 20 years in Viet Nam and 50 years in the Far East on counterinsurgency and development are now working unofficially on a proposal to prevent future Viet Nams by "strangling" insurgencies before they appear.

Says one leader in this project: "In retrospect, we got into South Viet Nam three years late. We should have moved in during 1958 before the Communists built their strong political organization. We've got to stick there now at heavy cost."

SOMETIMES IT TAKES THE REDS five or six years to build an organization in a country, sometimes 10 or 15. This group of U.S. officials proposes that the United States pick 10 priority countries where the Reds have begun building underground political organizations but are still relatively weak and move in with strong four-year preinsurgency crash programs.

Targets for such projects might include Chile, Ecuador, Peru, Brazil, the Congo.

The four-year preinsurgency programs would operate in four phases, average $10 million a year per country.

PHASE I IN EACH TARGET COUNTRY, the evaluation phase, would last three to six weeks. The Phase I team would consist of four high-ranking men.

The chief would be an expert in the country, important enough personally and so close to the U.S. President that Mr. Johnson and the host government would respect what he reported.

The second man would be experienced in intelligence and counterinsurgency. The third would be expert in government systems with knowledge of how coups are managed. The fourth man would be expert in organizing—from labor unions to freedom fighters.

All four men would be sharp in practical politics.

PHASE II, THE SELLING PHASE, would last one year and would concentrate on propaganda, training and political action.

Phase III—also one year—would be devoted to carrying out the program "sold" (propagandized for 12 months) in Phase II.

In Phase IV, the two-year technical phase, technical teams would further step up farm, factory and government productivity, and encourage wider land ownership and widespread, reasonable credit.

Then, these 10 countries would be on their own—the plan says—able to handle their own Communist underground.

Secret Communist Plans

NOTE: The following message is composed of verbatim excerpts from several newspaper articles in the August 25, 1964 and later issues of the CONCORD VALLEY TRANSCRIPT, (California), and written by Andy Gerber, Transcript Staff Writer. We received this information AFTER publication of our last issue of divine love, no. 29. This documentation ties in perfectly with facts given in our last issue, in the article, "Communist Strategy For World Conquest."

By ANDY GERBER

You may believe the following statements, you may not. You may scoff at the predictions, or, you may shrug them off. Whatever your reaction, you will not forget:

"Nuclear powered Russian aircraft in February, (1964), flew over San Francisco, Oakland, New York, New Jersey and the Hawaiian Islands undetected by U. S. radar equipment."

"Target date for Communists to begin their all-out attack for world domination is set for the last days of 1965."

These statements are made and attested to by Kilsoo Haan, a diminutive, compact Korean, 65 years of age who has for the past 32 years headed the Korean Underground movement in the United States.

He is a dedicated man, a citizen of the United States and the man who in January of 1941 submitted to the Advisory Council of National Defense the complete 455-page Japanese Imperial High Command book of war plans which described in detail the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. The plans had been stolen and smuggled out to Haan by members of the Korean Underground. They were ignored.

On March 25, 1941, Haan submitted to the State Department the "Three Power Alliance and a United States-Japanese War" plans written in Japanese. It revealed the plan to send a "peace envoy" to Washington and during the talks the Japanese were to open a "sneak attack" on Pearl Harbor.

U. S. Senator Guy M. Gillette in April 1942 said, "The loyalties of certain Koreans to the interest of the United States, and especially the earnest, unremitting and tireless efforts of Mr. Kilsoo Haan, made this volume available to certain of our governmental agencies prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor."

On the 5th of December -- two days before the infamous date of the beginning of the war--Haan warned U. S. officials: "It is our considered observation and sincere belief that December is the month of the Japanese attack, and the suprise attack is aimed at Hawaii, perhaps the first Sunday in December."

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, in April, 1942, said, "The Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor had been accurately predicted by alert Korean exiles."

MANY ACCURATE PREDICTIONS

There is more. Much more to support the credulity of Kilsoo Haan . . . In May, 1950, Haan reported to the office of National Defense that Russians and North Korean armies had held joint maneuvers. South Korea was invaded by the joint forces in June of 1950...

Koreans reported that Russians had developed an A-bomb in May 1947. President Truman announced in 1949 that the Russians had exploded their first nuclear fission bomb in Siberia. The Russians announced on September 24th -- the day following Truman's revelation--that they had possessed the bomb since November, 1947.

The Korean Underground reported to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission the first Sputnik on June 29, 1954. The report revealed that Soviet scientists were working on their first space vehicle and that it would be launched by 1958. In October of 1957 the first Sputnik went into orbit...

To return to the statements made at the beginning of this article, Haan has this to say: "Soviet Russia now has 150 thermo-nuclear powered bombers capable of speeds in excess of 3500 miles per hour. These planes can remain aloft for from 90 to 120 days without refueling. They can lift loads many times greater than anything our planes can carry. And, (flying at 85,000 feet), they are not detectable on our radar devices."

The second statement is based on a report received by Haan and forwarded to Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Dec. 15, 1962. It stated: "Soviet Embassy officials and Mao Tse Tung held a conference at Mao's official residence in Peiping November 2, 1962. Soviet officials urged Mao and Chou En-Lai to revise their strategy and create a climate to ease U. S.-Red China tensions. Soviet officials stressed the need and importance of stockpiling grains, industrial products and machines if Sino-Soviet alliance is to attain its goal of realistic military readiness by 1965."

The report further stated that "Mao observed it would be advantageous to the alliance to fully exploit the Western Power's thinking that the Sino-Soviet alliance is in danger and will soon break apart." This, said Haan, was done to lull suspicions of the United States. And it came to pass...

On the Cuban situation, Haan says: "The removal--or seeming removal--of surface ICBM weapons in Cuba following the crisis of 1962 should not be taken as proof that the U. S. is safe from that quarter . . . Underwater launching pads not unlike submersible platforms now are in Cuba. They are capable of launching ICBM missiles of the Polaris type carried by our own nuclear-powered submarines, and have ranges from 1,000 miles. These are nuclear war-headed missiles.

"The Reds expect that civil defense troops in Cuba would be the invasion forces to be used on the southern and eastern coasts of the United States. Installations, which the Communists hope to place either in Bolivia, Uruguay or Chile area are to house additional civil defense troops which will invade the west coast and Alaska."

1965 CRITICAL YEAR

The year 1965 will be Soviet Russia's banner year, Haan says. "It is the year Soviet Russia will be at the height of nuclear war readiness, particularly in the field of nuclear weapons and its new delivery system--the fleet of space platforms." The reference to "space platforms" is not made lightly by the underground chief. Existence of th platforms was reported to Secretary of Defense Robert MacNamara on Aug. 20, 1962. Haan's report, as relayed to MacNamara, gives the following specifications for the vehicles: The vehicles weigh 10 tons, carry three and four-man cosmonaut teams and are capable of sustained flights lasting 14 to 21 days.

Each vehicle is equipped with rocket propulsion units to control speed and direction. Among the significant military features are the facts that platforms are capable of delivering and detonating nuclear bombs at designated enemy targets. They are able to launch and guide missiles. Their equipment includes a new anti-missile unit which can search out and destroy enemy missiles in flight. Soviet and Red Chinese high commands term it the ultimate nuclear warfare weapon. It is still in the experimental stage but the Soviets claim it will be ready by the winter of 1964 and, at that time, they will have an operational fleet of space platforms.

The following intelligence report has just been received from Kilsoo Haan of the Korean underground: "Three days before Khrushchev was ousted the Chief of Soviet Strategic Command, Marshal Nicolai Kraylov representing the Soviet Military high command called on Mao Tse Tung in Peiping.

"Marshal Kraylov told Mao Tse Tung Russia was in the final phase of nuclear preparation and it was necessary to remove Khrushchev. Beginning in 1965 Soviet high command will assist with Red China's "Arsenal of China" which is centered in the provinces of Kansu, Sinkiang and Tibet.

"The Russians agreed to equip for Red China: 1. Two underground plants for production of anti-aircraft weapons. 2. Two underground plants for production of medium range missiles. 3. One or more underground plants for production of jet bombers. 4. Two underground plants for production of nuclear tactical weapons. The Soviets also agreed to deliver 500 anti-aircraft weapons to Red China by February 1965.

"Marshal Kraylov expressed confidence that the Sino-Soviet military alliance can be militarily ready for any international emergency by late 1965 or early 1966."

TURNING POINT

Standing on a Northwest corner one night recently, two Negro youths . . . saw a gang of younger teen-agers snatch a purse from a 70-year-old woman . . . The two took off in pursuit, collared the purse-snatcher and, after a scrap with the gang, turned the culprit -- and the purse -- over to police.

The matter could have ended then, but it didn't. Police commended the two 18-year-olds, Erskine Gregory and Francis Wells. An anonymous donor sent then $50. School Superintendent Hansen sent his compliments, with an apt notation that the "good things young people perform" are too seldom noticed. At the Garnet-Patterson School the other night, more than 100 people turned out to honor the boys. And best of all, Lt. Tilman O'Bryant of the 2d Precinct has found them jobs.

Perhaps there is no moral of great significance in this story, But for these two youths, at least, that decision to do the right thing could have been a turning point in their lives. At least they have the opportunity now to make it so. -- The Evening Star (Washington)

Four Reigning Kings Attend Funeral

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) —Four reigning kings are expected to attend the state funeral Saturday of Queen Louise of Sweden, great-granddaughter of Britain's Queen Victoria.

Together with the 75-year-old queen's husband, King Gustaf VI Adolf, 82, Kings Frederik IX of Denmark, Olav VI of Norway and Constantine II of Greece are to walk in the funeral procession through the streets of Stockholm.

Queen Louise died in a Stockholm hospital Sunday, four days after emergency surgery for removal of a blood clot in her right leg. A change in her main artery, the aorta, caused her heart to falter.

Her husband, confined to bed with a severe cold, rushed to St. Goeran Hospital when told his wife was dying. The king's daughter, Queen Ingrid of Denmark, was also at the hospital when the queen was pronounced dead.

The Swedish court prescribed a six-week mourning period, but there will be no lying in state.

Isn't it amazing that the Car of the Year is also the buy of the year?
Not really, that's the way we do things.

Who says the Car of the Year has to be expensive? Value is one of the things Motor Trend magazine takes into account when it gives the honor. Witness Pontiac for 1965; it doesn't take much shopping to convince yourself that a buck goes farther at your Pontiac dealer's. He can put you in anything from a swinging six-cylinder model to a roaring 421-cubic inch tiger with stick shift or automatic transmission. And any model you pick will probably be less than you'd pay for some low-voltage copycat. Top it off with our sleek styling and Wide-Track ride and there's just no comparison. Come to Wide-Track Town—make the year's shrewdest investment.

Here's Plan for Stopping Red 'Take-overs' at Start

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) The same Communist methods that work in Viet Nam could work in Latin America, Africa, the Middle East.

The careful blending of terrorism, tight, militant organization, exploitation of the woes of minorities, and "promises" of social reform (land, credit, equality, freedom from foreign domination) can be as effective in Chile, Panama, the Congo or Iran as in Asia.

Ten worried officials who among them spent 20 years in Viet Nam and 50 years in the Far East on counterinsurgency and development are now working unofficially on a proposal to prevent future Viet Nams by "strangling" insurgencies before they appear.

Says one leader in this project: "In retrospect, we got into South Viet Nam three years late. We should have moved in during 1958 before the Communists built their strong political organization. We've got to stick there now at heavy cost."

SOMETIMES IT TAKES THE REDS five or six years to build an organization in a country, sometimes 10 or 15. This group of U.S. officials proposes that the United States pick 10 priority countries where the Reds have begun building underground political organizations but are still relatively weak and move in with strong four-year preinsurgency crash programs.

Targets for such projects might include Chile, Ecuador, Peru, Brazil, the Congo.

The four-year preinsurgency programs would operate in four phases, average $10 million a year per country.

PHASE I IN EACH TARGET COUNTRY, the evaluation phase, would last three to six weeks. The Phase I team would consist of four high-ranking men.

The chief would be an expert in the country, important enough personally and so close to the U.S. President that Mr. Johnson and the host government would respect what he reported.

The second man would be experienced in intelligence and counterinsurgency. The third would be expert in government systems with knowledge of how coups are managed. The fourth man would be expert in organizing—from labor unions to freedom fighters.

All four men would be sharp in practical politics.

PHASE II, THE SELLING PHASE, would last one year and would concentrate on propaganda, training and political action.

Phase III—also one year—would be devoted to carrying out the program "sold" (propagandized for 12 months) in Phase II.

In Phase IV, the two-year technical phase, technical teams would further step up farm, factory and government productivity, and encourage wider land ownership and widespread, reasonable credit.

Then, these 10 countries would be on their own—the plan says—able to handle their own Communist underground.

Secret Communist Plans

NOTE: The following message is composed of verbatim excerpts from several newspaper articles in the August 25, 1964 and later issues of the CONCORD [illegible]ALY TRANSCRIPT, (California), and written by Andy Gerber, Transcript Staff Writer. We received this information AFTER publication of our last issue of divine love, no. 29. This documentation ties in perfectly with facts given in our last issue, in the article, "Communist Strategy For World Conquest."

By ANDY GERBER

You may believe the following statements, you may not. You may scoff at the predictions, or, you may shrug them off. Whatever your reaction, you will not forget:

"Nuclear powered Russian aircraft in February, (1964), flew over San Francisco, Oakland, New York, New Jersey and the Hawaiian Islands undetected by U. S. radar equipment."

"Target date for Communists to begin their all-out attack for world domination is set for the last days of 1965."

These statements are made and attested to by Kilsoo Haan, a diminutive, compact Korean, 65 years of age who has for the past 32 years headed the Korean Underground movement in the United States.

He is a dedicated man, a citizen of the United States and the man who in January of 1941 submitted to the Advisory Council of National Defense the complete 455-page Japanese Imperial High Command book of war plans which described in detail the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. The plans had been stolen and smuggled out to Haan by members of the Korean Underground. They were ignored.

On March 25, 1941, Haan submitted to the State Department the "Three Power Alliance and a United States-Japanese War" plans written in Japanese. It revealed the plan to send a "peace envoy" to Washington and during the talks the Japanese were to open a "sneak attack" on Pearl Harbor.

U. S. Senator Guy M. Gillette in April 1942 said, "The loyalties of certain Koreans to the interest of the United States, and especially the earnest, unremitting and tireless efforts of Mr. Kilsoo Haan, made this volume available to certain of our governmental agencies prior to the attack on Pearl Harbor."

On the 5th of December -- two days before the infamous date of the beginning of the war--Haan warned U. S. officials: "It is our considered observation and sincere belief that December is the month of the Japanese attack, and the suprise attack is aimed at Hawaii, perhaps the first Sunday in December."

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, in April, 1942, said, "The Japanese assault on Pearl Harbor had been accurately predicted by alert Korean exiles."

MANY ACCURATE PREDICTIONS

There is more. Much more to support the credulity of Kilsoo Haan . . . In May, 1950, Haan reported to the office of National Defense that Russians and North Korean armies had held joint maneuvers. South Korea was invaded by the joint forces in June of 1950...

Koreans reported that Russians had developed an A-bomb in May 1947. President Truman announced in 1949 that the Russians had exploded their first nuclear fission bomb in Siberia. The Russians announced on September 24th -- the day following Truman's revelation--that they had possessed the bomb since November, 1947.

The Korean Underground reported to the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission the first Sputnik on June 29, 1954. The report revealed that Soviet scientists were working on their first space vehicle and that it would be launched by 1958. In October of 1957 the first Sputnik went into orbit...

To return to the statements made at the beginning of this article, Haan has this to say: "Soviet Russia now has 150 thermo-nuclear powered bombers capable of speeds in excess of 3500 miles per hour. These planes can remain aloft for from 90 to 120 days without refueling. They can lift loads many times greater than anything our planes can carry. And, (flying at 85,000 feet), they are not detectable on our radar devices."

The second statement is based on a report received by Haan and forwarded to Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Dec. 15, 1962. It stated: "Soviet Embassy officials and Mao Tse Tung held a conference at Mao's official residence in Peiping November 2, 1962. Soviet officials urged Mao and Chou En-Lai to revise their strategy and create a climate to ease U. S.-Red China tensions. Soviet officials stressed the need and importance of stockpiling grains, industrial products and machines if Sino-Soviet alliance is to attain its goal of realistic military readiness by 1965."

The report further stated that "Mao observed it would be advantageous to the alliance to fully exploit the Western Power's thinking that the Sino-Soviet alliance is in danger and will soon break apart." This, said Haan, was done to lull suspicions of the United States. And it came to pass...

On the Cuban situation, Haan says: "The removal--or seeming removal--of surface ICBM weapons in Cuba following the crisis of 1962 should not be taken as proof that the U. S. is safe from that quarter . . . Underwater launching pads not unlike submersible platforms now are in Cuba. They are capable of launching ICBM missiles of the Polaris type carried by our own nuclear-powered submarines, and have ranges from 1,000 miles. These are nuclear war-headed missiles.

"The Reds expect that civil defense troops in Cuba would be the invasion forces to be used on the southern and eastern coasts of the United States. Installations, which the Communists hope to place either in Bolivia, Uruguay or Chile area are to house additional civil defense troops which will invade the west coast and Alaska."

1965 CRITICAL YEAR

The year 1965 will be Soviet Russia's banner year, Haan says. "It is the year Soviet Russia will be at the height of nuclear war readiness, particularly in the field of nuclear weapons and its new delivery system--the fleet of space platforms." The reference to "space platforms" is not made lightly by the underground chief. Existence of th platforms was reported to Secretary of Defense Robert MacNamara on Aug. 20, 1962. Haan's report, as relayed to MacNamara, gives the following specifications for the vehicles: The vehicles weigh 10 tons, carry three and four-man cosmonaut teams and are capable of sustained flights lasting 14 to 21 days.

It is still in the experimental stage but the Soviets claim it will be ready by the winter of 1964 and, at that time, they will have an operational fleet of space platforms.

The following intelligence report has just been received from Kilsoo Haan of the Korean underground: "Three days before Khrushchev was ousted the Chief of Soviet Strategic Command, Marshal Nicolai Kraylov representing the Soviet Military high command called on Mao Tse Tung in Peiping.

Isn't it amazing that the Car of the Year is also the buy of the year? Not really, that's the way we do things.

Who says the Car of the Year has to be expensive? Value is one of the things Motor Trend magazine takes into account when it gives the honor. Witness Pontiac for 1965; it doesn't take much shopping to convince yourself that a buck goes farther at your Pontiac dealer's. He can put you in anything from a swinging six-cylinder model to a roaring 421-cubic inch tiger with stick shift or automatic transmission. And any model you pick will probably be less than you'd pay for some low-voltage copycat. Top it off with our sleek styling and Wide-Track ride and there's just no comparison. Come to Wide-Track Town—make the year's shrewdest investment.
